EARLE TO OFFER GRAFT DEFENSE AT OWN INQUIRY

Story Will Fall on Friendly Ears.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Gov. George H. Earle will be called to tell his own story before the legislative committee conducting an alleged investigation into charges of graft and corruption in his administration, it was announced today. The so-called "inquisitorial" body was created at the instigation of the governor in order to stave off a grand jury inquiry.

While the Democrats in control of the committee are expected to handle their "gallant leader" [as campaign posters for Earle call him] with daintiness, they threw everything they had today at Charles J. Margiotti, former state attorney general who was fired by Earle during the heat of the primary campaign last spring.

Ousted as Attorney General.

Margiotti was ousted when he demanded a grand jury investigation into the charges which the Democratic factions were hurling at each other when Gov. Earle headed one ticket for senator against a slate backed by Senator Joseph F. Guffey and John L. Lewis' C. I. O.

The former chief law officer of the state was the committee's target today because yesterday he testified that the Earle administration leaders had sold legislation to the beer and movie interests for $150,000.

Among those whom Margiotti accused of being in on the deal were Chairman David L. Lawrence of the Democratic state committee; Matthew H. McCloskey, the state's most favored contractor and lender of large sums to Gov. Earle; Harry E. Kalodner, Earle's former secretary and recent Roosevelt appointee to the federal District court.

Margiotti Silenced.

The committee refused to let Margiotti disclose the substance of conversations he had with Charles Melchiorre, a state representative, and others regarding the peddling of legislation. Instead the committee chairman, Representative Herbert B. Cohen, Democratic floor leader in the house, demanded to know why Margiotti had decided upon a grand jury investigation rather than arresting the alleged culprits.

"I knew something of the pressure that could be brought to bear by these public officials on witnesses," declared Margiotti, "and I explained all that to Gov. Earle when he directed me to go ahead with a grand jury investigation into the mayor of Philadelphia."

Mayor S. Davis Wilson, who fought Earle for the Democratic nomination for senator in the primary, was indicted ten days ago for misconduct in office in connection with furnishing protection for gambling houses. The special grand jury which indicted Mayor Wilson was an outgrowth of an inquiry ordered by the governor.

Margiotti Raises Question.

Why, Margiotti wanted to know and the committee seemed to resent the question, did Gov. Earle think a grand jury investigation into the activities of his political foe in Philadelphia was perfectly proper while a grand jury investigation of the governor was outlawed.

An investigation by a grand jury in Dauphin county, controled by Republican officials, was halted when Earle called a special session of the legislature and had the Democratic majorities declare such an inquiry illegal. Then the legislative committee, a creature of the governor, was appointed to investigate the graft charges against the governor and his leaders.

Abram Salsburg, counsel for the committee, asked Margiotti whether he thought he was performing his duty as attorney general by not arresting the officials when information of their reputed guilt first came to him.

"I did perform my duty and I was fired for it," snapped Margiotti.

At another point Chairman Cohen remarked that he had heard rumors

A JUDGE IS TOUCHED BY PRISONER AT BAR BUT HE DENIES LOAN

"Judge, could you let me take $31 till the first of the month?"

It was Philip Barasch speaking. Judge Joseph B. Hermes had just found him guilty yesterday of obtaining $39 under false pretenses by giving worthless checks. Not a sound was heard in the courtroom.

"So I can make restitution," explained Barasch.

"I should make restitution?" demanded the judge. "I just judge the world. I don't take it on my shoulders."

The judge gave Barasch probation on Barasch's promise to get the $31 and repay it by Monday. He has already repaid $8. Barasch is an attorney, living at 2500 North California avenue.

SHE'S NOT STINGY, BUT KEEPS $3,420 SEWED TO DRESS

Miss Angeline Korkec didn't want to be caught downtown without carfare. When police took her to the central station last night in a dispute over some furniture she had a canvas bag sewn to her dress. In it were sixteen $100 bills, thirty-two $50 bills, and eleven $20 bills—a total of $3,420.

Miss Korkec, who is 40 years old, said she had earned the money by hard work, and thought the safest place to keep it was under her dress. But she didn't pinch pennies. When the police charged her with petit larceny and said her bond would be $500, she engaged a professional bondsman. The customary fee is between $25 and $50. Then she spent 7 cents more—going home to 3745 South Hermitage avenue on a street car.

Smithton, Ill., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Joey, the beer guzzling groundhog, was dead today, the victim of a hit and run driver. But Joey's admirers said he wasn't drunk at the time of the accident. For several months the animal came to A. W. Hanson's filling station daily for his beer.

Trap Couple in $100,000 Stamp Theft

New York, Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Marked $10 bills and the wave of a handkerchief at a window exposed the theft of $100,000 worth of rare stamps from Capt. W. G. Nowell-Usticke, a millionaire New York stamp dealer.

Capt. Nowell-Usticke. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Police said Francis Greulich and his wife, Anne, confessed the thefts. Mrs. Greulich had been in the employ of Nowell-Usticke for fourteen years. Four years ago she got her husband a job in the stamp dealer's office.

Greulich decided to go into business for himself, police said, and in the next two years he opened three offices under assumed names and did a flourishing business.

Wife Resigns Job.

Each day he would describe to his wife the stamps his customers wanted, and each night she would bring the stamps to him, according to the couple's confession. Money flowed in so fast that he decided to conduct a legitimate business, with Mrs. Greulich helping him. Yesterday she resigned her job with Nowell-Usticke, effective today.

The thefts might have gone undetected except for one error. Nowell-Usticke called detectives to investigate the disappearance of two valuable sets of stamps. They suggested that Mrs. Greulich might be the thief and laid a trap by marking some $10 bills and putting them in the cash drawer.

Woman Seized with Bills.

Last night Nowell-Usticke wished Mrs. Greulich good luck with her new business and told her good-by. Then he looked in the cash till and noticed that the bills were gone.

He ran to the window and by prearranged signal waved his handkerchief to a detective waiting across the street. The detective seized Mrs. Greulich and found the bills on her.

Detectives searched the couple's home and reported finding $9,664 in cash, $5,000 in securities, and bankbooks showing a $5,000 balance. They also found fifteen tailored suits, $500 worth of silk underwear, and furnishings insured for $15,000.

"We stole because we wanted luxurious things and an expensive home," said Mrs. Greulich.

ALL BEGIN WITH D; AT LEAST SOME OF THEM END IN JAIL

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Dr. Robert A. Kilduffe, laboratory director of the Atlantic City hospital, told the International Association of Police and Fire Surgeons today that he had figured out these stages of drunkenness:

1. Decently dippy.
2. Delighted and devilish.
3. Delinquent and disgusting.
4. Dizzy and delirious.
5. Dazed and dejected.
6. Dead drunk.

The surgeons are seeking an airtight definition of drunkeness, but they concluded that no matter how drunk a driver may be a smart lawyer often can find flaws in the doctor's test.

Hitler Orders 20,000 More Women Into Labor Service

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler decreed today that the number of women in the Nazi labor service be increased from the present 30,000 to 50,000 by April 1, 1939. While labor service is compulsory for men, it still is voluntary for women. Government offices and many private concerns, however, have announced their intention not to employ women unless they have done their six months of labor service.

PRAGUE'S DEFIANCE STIFFENS; ARMY TALKS DICTATOR FOR WAR ON HITLER

Berlin Press Teems with Stories of 'Atrocities.'

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—German Storm Troopers in Berlin, Vienna, and Chemnitz today started arresting Czech citizens as hostages for Sudeten Germans arrested in Czechoslovakia.

The first Czech to be arrested in Berlin was the leader of the Czech gymnastic group. His name is Novak. He is a relatively young man who has the same kind of job which Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader, had before he went into politics.

Czech Editor Arrested.

In Vienna Frederick Cepelka, managing editor of Videnski Noviny, Czech language newspaper, and thirteen other Czechs were arrested. Cepelka also is secretary of the Czech minority in Vienna. Four of those arrested were later released.

It is believed the Czechs are being taken to prison camps.

Officers in most local military headquarters in Berlin were on duty tonight.

While Neville Chamberlain, British prime minister, was informing the British cabinet about his talk with Reichsfuehrer Hitler in Obersalzburg, Bavaria, yesterday, the "dissolution" or end of Czechoslovakia was being forecast openly in official German quarters and in the Nazi controlled press.

Demand Czechs Be Puppets.

The disintegration of Czechoslovakia would remove the main obstacle to Germany's "eastward urge," which has driven the Germans ever since the Teutonic knights rode eastward to conquer, Christianize, or throw back the Slavs.

The various statements of Nazi officials all appear to bear out the general belief that Hitler told Chamberlain frankly that he demanded not only annexation of the Sudeten German area of Czechoslovakia, but also that what remains of Czechoslovakia after this annexation be merely a vassal state of Germany. The alternative was considered to mean war.

The Fuehrer was said to have demanded that Berlin direct the Czech foreign policy and that the Czech alliance with soviet Russia be broken. The Czech economic system, if Hitler's demands are fulfilled, would be coördinated with the German system. Germany particularly would be given virtual control of the great Skoda munitions works in Pilsen, just outside the Sudeten German area. The Nazis would dictate where the output of the plant could be sold.

Expected to Take Time.

Hitler, however, is expected to take his time before making his next decisive move.

Before leaving for home this morning the British premier and his assistants said they expected to return to Germany Tuesday to resume their talk with Hitler in Godesberg, on the Rhine river about 25 miles from Cologne. Nazi leaders expressed hope that France's premier, Edouard Daladier, and possibly Premier Mussolini would join the conference to seek a four power peace pact.

"The peace of Europe was saved in 1878 at the congress of Berlin, when Disraeli came to Germany to coöperate with Bismarck," one Nazi official said. "We hope that the visit of the British premier to Hitler will prove equally successful."

Says Czechs Cannot Survive.

An official spokesman said that after Chamberlain's conference with Hitler "there can be no doubt that the two statesmen have agreed that Czechoslovakia cannot survive in its present state. Its case is very much like that of the man who suffered a serious leg injury. Everybody agreed the leg must be amputated. The question was, should they chop it off or use surgical instruments and increase the patient's chance to survive? There was also the possibility of doing nothing about the leg. That would mean a quick poisoning and a quicker disintegration."

BRITISH CABINET CALLED; PREMIER REPORTS TO KING

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 16.—London again today became the focus of the limelight on Europe's crisis over Czechoslovakia.

Hitler, Chamberlain may meet in Godesberg [see arrow].

With the return of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, after his encounter yesterday with Reichsfuehrer Hitler, the situation was looked upon by some officials as being a bit easier. The danger of war, however, nowhere was regarded as passed. The possibility of war will not be ended, it was felt, until it is known whether the Czechs will accept meekly what appears to be their abandonment by the British and French.

Soon after his plane landed today Prime Minister Chamberlain called a meeting of the cabinet for 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. At 9:30 o'clock tonight he called on King George VI. of Great Britain in Buckingham palace and laid before the king the facts of his historic conference with the German Fuehrer.

Expects to See Hitler Again.

Chamberlain announced upon his return that he would confer with Hitler again Tuesday or Wednesday. It was believed this meeting would take place in Godesberg, the Rhineland, and political circles hinted that representatives of other powers than Britain and Germany might be present. Later, however, it was learned that until the cabinet meets it will not be known when Chamberlain will see Hitler, or when parliament will be summoned to hear a statement by the government.

The question before the ministers tomorrow will be: Will the Czechoslovak army consent to a surgical operation by a boundary commission to remove the Sudeten German area from Czechoslovakia, (or will it call Threatens to Oust Government, Halt Any Surrender.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 16.—Resistance to a sellout of Czechoslovakia is hardening here. Yesterday there were deep feelings of despair. Everyone, from President Eduard Benes on down, was convinced that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain had gone to see Reichsfuehrer Hitler in Berchtesgaden to dispose of Czechoslovak territory without obtaining or even asking the consent of the Czechs.

Today news from London and Paris gave hope that the sellout might not, after all, be a cut and dried affair. Then voices began to be raised here against it. The Telegraf, most popular of all Prague newspapers, came out with a front page editorial:

"No plebiscite and no anschluss [union]. We shall not tolerate either one."

"No More Concessions."

In the more highbrow Lidove Noviny Dr. Hubert Ripka, one of the government's spokesmen, said the "government of Prague will not go one millimeter further in concessions. A plebiscite in the Sudeten territory or any district of the country is out of the question."

Tonight Minister of Railways Rudolf Bechyne declared "a plebiscite would be a short cut to war, inasmuch as if there were a plebiscite, no government would exist in Prague. Any Czechslovak government which would permit a plebiscite to take place would fall immediately, because it would awaken opposition of a determined people, which would rather die than permit its homeland to be dismembered. There will be no plebiscite and no international police. We have established order and we also maintain it. I plead to the public that it have complete faith in the government and the army."

Summarized, the situation as seen from Prague today is that the government now has high hopes that Great Britain and France will fight to maintain Czechoslovakia in its present form and not permit even a plebiscite in the Sudeten German territory. But if Britain and France prove false in their promises, then the Czechs are likely to fight anyway.

Foresee Internal Trouble.

In any case, there is great likelihood of serious internal trouble. Responsible citizens say Premier Milan Hodza will be brushed aside instantly if he consents to a plebiscite. Hodza for months has been suspected by ultra-patriotic Czechs of being sympathetic with the Fascist dictatorships. It is even possible that Benes may not weather the storm.

The prospect of military dictatorship under Gen. Ludwig Jan Krejci, chief of the general staf, or Gen. Jan Syrovy, inspector general of the army, is freely discussed.

In an emergency either of these men would have support from at least three members of the present cabinet. They are those most frequently mentioned as being leaders of the "war party."

Believe France Will Help.

Popular support for resistance to a sellout is based on the conviction that Czechoslovakia without its Sudeten border districts would be a snail without its shell and that even if a show of independence were preserved for what should be left of Czechoslovakia, it would be nothing more than a satellite of Germany—a space inside the German system enjoying very little local autonomy.

Spokesmen for the war party today assured THE TRIBUNE correspondent they know that openly announced news of Czech mobilization automatically would be a signal for French mobilization.

That being the case, they see the question of war or peace depending not on Reichsfuehrer Hitler alone, but also on Gen. Krejci, who would certainly get cabinet support for a mobilization decree if he declared it necessary, or for any "defensive" action he might take which would be sufficient to start war.

Thus there would be set in motion the gigantic mechanism which the Czech war party views as inevitably involving Great Britain, so that Britain would have to aid Czechoslovakia even if Chamberlain were opposed to it.

Civil War Ended.

Czechoslovakia's so-called civil war seemed to be ended temporarily, reports in Prague said. No serious disorders were reported.

The cabinet this evening declared the Sudeten German party illegal and ordered police to close all its headquarters. Documents were seized in a raid on Sudeten headquarters in Eger.

The party's legal department said the government's action was illegal since the law authorizing the government to dissolve political parties expired last Jan. 1 and has not been reenacted.

[The Sudeten German party was formed in 1934 from a fusion of the two proscribed National Socialist and Nationalist parties.]

The government also ordered the FS [Freiwilliger Schutzdienst, a Sudeten German organization copied after Hitler's Brown Shirts] dissolved. The wearing of uniforms for political purposes was forbidden.

The government issued a decree requiring inhabitants of more than 90 districts in Bohemia and Moravia—mostly trouble centers—to surrender all concealed weapons and ammunition under penalty of hard labor for from six months to five years.

Claim Nazi Party Is Split.

Government sources announced an important split in the Sudeten German party organization. Several district leaders in the region under martial law, it was claimed, has gone spontaneously to the police to renounce Konrad Henlein, head of the party. Nazi parliamentary leaders in Prague, it also was said, have declared themselves discontented with the policy of Henlein and his second man, Karl Hermann Frank. Sudeten German spokesmen denied these stories.

The government also said a new so-called "Bohemian German" party is being organized and already has hundreds of adherents among Sudeten Germans who are disgusted with Henlein and loyal to the Czechoslovak state.

The whereabouts of Henlein remains a mystery. In his home town of Asch it is believed, THE TRIBUNE'S informants reported, that he is in Germany, having fled from a warant for his arrest issued by Czechoslovak authorities yesterday. Sudeten leaders in Prague say they have not heard from him, but that they have "good reasons" to believe that he has not left Czechoslovakia and now is in hiding.

ticle concerning Czechoslovakia, said the territorial integrity of the republic, which France has guaranteed, "is worth less than the promise of the German Fuehrer to respect the inviolability of the French eastern border."

The paper said that "measures of violence adopted by Prague indicate that the Czech government believes it is strong enough to keep what it was able to take by exploiting the temporary defeat of a great nation."

New Kind of Negotiations.

The officially inspired Koelnische Zeitung said: "Negotiations no longer are being carried on with Czechoslovakia, but about Czechoslovakia. She is no longer a subject, but an object. She has no future left and she is not worth the great diplomatic to do made about her, must less a possible war."

For years Germany complained that during the world war the allies vilified her unnecessarily in their propaganda. The campaign waged against Czechoslovakia in the German press and over the radio today sounds like a synopsis of years of wartime horrors.

The number of Sudeten Germen refugees who have fled from what the Nazi press described as the "Czech hell" has reached 20,000 and is steadily increasing, German reports said tonight. It is asserted that "whole armed detachments of Sudeten and Slovak soldiers crossed the Czech-German frontier in close formation."

Tell of "Czech Terrorism."

The Nazi press devoted columns of blood curdling stories of alleged terrorism, as told by Sudeten German refugees. One paper told of Sudeten Germans being awakened in the middle of the night by Czech soldiers with bayonets fixed to their rifles and forced to join the Czech army and "shoot down their own brothers." On the same page of this paper it was asserted that the Sudeten conscripts are not allowed to carry arms but are forced to do menial work.

Other stories reported that even Czech women were armed with pistols. "The anarchistic hyenas amuse themselves by doing pistol practice on the streets," it was declared. Other reports told of refugees arriving at the border in nightshirts after they were attacked at night by "armed communist hordes."

Czech officials and police were said to have told Sudeten Germans: "We will play football with your heads," or "We shall pave the streets of Prague with your skulls."

LEAGUE DROPS OBLIGATION TO AID WAR VICTIM

GENEVA, Sept. 16.—(AP)—League of nations machinery for punitive measures against an aggressor crumbled further today. Great Britain pulled a strong block out of the league sanctions structure by agreeing, along with the so-called "neutral" nations, that league members have "no automatic obligation" to apply economic or military measures against an aggressor.

Britain and the "neutral" nations—the Scandinavian countries, the Netherlands, and Belgium, with Poland joining—all made it clear they considered the league's punitive measures against an aggressor purely optional, and not, as the league covenant indicates, obligatory.

Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov of Russia was reported to be sounding out diplomatic ground for future soviet action in event the Prague government should be abandoned by Britain and France. Moscow was reported to be considering the idea that while the French might not stand behind the Czechoslovaks, despite their treaty obligations, they would be unable to stand apart if the Czechoslovaks and Russians both became involved with Germany.

a halt and revolt if the British and French try to insist on this course?

Hitler Makes Strong Demands.

The cabinet also will consider a report which Viscount Runciman, British mediator in the Czech-German minority quarrel, made tonight to Chamberlain. Runciman returned by plane from Prague today, having been summoned by the prime minister. It was believed Runciman told Chamberlain the Czech government has every intention of standing firm.

This will have to be set against the statement of Hitler, who, it was reported, showed that his mind is firmly made up to demand the utmost concession from Prague.

The Daily Telegraph diplomatic correspondent asserted that Hitler presented to Chamberlain demands in unequivocal terms, amounting virtually to an ultimatum. Chamberlain, this writer said, retorted with an equally stiff warning that if Germany attempted a settlement of the Czech problem by force then both Great Britain and France would use force to resist.

Predict Four Power Pact.

It seemed that Hitler, however, led Chamberlain on by dangling before him the idea that if they could come to a peaceful solution in this immediate crisis the Fuehrer might be willing to enlarge the scope of negotiations later on to bring in other European questions.

There was a belief in diplomatic circles tonight that what may follow is a meeting of four European powers — France, England, Germany, and Italy — for discussing further Europe's big problems. There was an indication also that a deal between the Germans, French, and British about Czechoslovakia has been maturing over a period of several days, and that Chamberlain's flight to Hitler was not altogether a sudden decision. This indication was the revelation that for a week aircraft was in readiness, at the British government's disposal, to carry an envoy to Germany. One source asserted Chamberlain had in mind for about a month the idea of visiting Hitler.

"A Frank Talk" with Hitler.

Chamberlain's arrival at 5:29 p. m. at Heston airdrome this afternoon ushered in a busy evening, the forerunner of a week-end in which momentous decisions on peace or war doubtless will be made.

A great crowd was on hand to welcome him. Chamberlain, smiling, stepped to a microphone and made the following statement:

"I have come back again rather quicker than expected after a journey which, if I had not been so preoccupied, I should have found thoroughly enjoyable. Yesterday afternoon I had a long talk with Herr Hitler. It was a frank talk, it was a friendly one, and I feel satisfied now that each of us fully understands what is in the mind of the other.

"You won't expect me to discuss now what may be the result of that talk. What I have got to do now is to discuss them with my colleagues, and I would advise you not to accept prematurely any unauthorized account of what took place in the conversations.

"But I shall be discussing them tonight with my colleagues and others, especially Lord Runciman, and later on, perhaps in a few days, I am going to have another talk with Herr Hitler.

"Only this time he has told me that it is his intention to come half way to meet me. He wishes to spare an old man another such long journey."

Chamberlain then went to Downing street for his interview with Runciman. Thereafter he conferred with his inner cabinet: Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary; Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary for home affairs. It was in this session that tomorrow's cabinet meeting was arranged.

MOSCOW CHIEFS STUDY TROOPS ON FITNESS FOR WAR

Ammunition May Be Given Armies Soon.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 16.—Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov, Russian commissar of war, and Gen. M. Mechlis, chief of the political department of the Red army, have completed their tour of inspection of the soviet forces concentrated on Russia's western frontiers. The purpose of their visit, THE TRIBUNE has learned, was to discover if the morale of the army justified their being entrusted with ammunition should war break out in Europe.

Nicolai Yeshov. [Acme Photo.]

With the armies of many European countries approximating war strength and stationed near frontiers, the soviet army is the only fighting force in Europe which does not possess ammunition.

Arsenals Held By Police.

Russian arsenals as well as munition factories are under control of the GPU [secret police] which has its own army numbering 600,000 widely distributed throughout Russia. All munitions requirements for Marshal Voroshilov's army must be passed on by Commissar Nicolai Yeshov, chief of the GPU.

Marshal Voroshilov and Gen. Mechlis upon their arrival in Moscow are expected to report personally to the political bureau, the highest government group of Russia whose meetings are presided over by Josef Stalin.

Strongly Against War.

Russia's participation in war depends upon the decision of this group. Since hostilities would mean greatly increased authority and prestige for the Red army and also entail wide distribution of ammunition, the political bureau is reported to be strongly against Russia becoming involved in war either in the Far East or Europe.

Loyalty of the Red army is said still to be questionable after repeated purges which began with Marshal Michail Tukhachevsky. During their visit in Kiev, the war commissar and Gen. Mechlis investigated another plot alleged to have been engineered by youthful Ukrainian officers to free the Ukraine from Moscow.

Conditions in the White Russian military districts were reported more satisfactory, but the commanders were reprimanded because Marshal Voroshilov noticed many unshaven and slovenly dressed soldiers who failed to salue the officers, dressed in civilian clothes, during the day's inspection.

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 16.—The government press today demanded annexation of the Czech portion of Silesia, with its rich coal mines and great steel mills.

The newspaper Kuryer Poranny said the return to Germany of the Sudeten Germans would not settle the minorities problem in Czechoslovakia. Other minorities will demand the right to decide freely their future, it was declared. Application of the self-determination principle must be general, the paper said.

The democratic press warned that annexation of the Sudeten area by Germany would constitute a grave danger for Poland's future. It regards a strong Czechoslovakia within its present boundaries as a necessary element of stability and equilibrium in present day Europe. Dismemberment, it believes, would also encourage secessionist tendencies of minorities in other countries.

ITALY CHARGES MOSCOW AGENT ADVISES CZECHS

ROME, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor who is regarded as a spokesman for Premier Mussolini, said today that "extraneous forces of European disorder are bolstering Czechoslovak resistance."

Gayda wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia that Georgi Dimitrov, secretary general of the communist Internationale, was in Prague, Czechoslovak capital.

[Czechoslovak authorities in Prague denied today that Dimitrov was there.]

Gayda urged quick action on the so-called Mussolini plan for separation of minority territory from Czechoslovakia and establishment of local self-government in regions populated by mixed nationalities. He warned of the danger in delay.

POLAND HOLDING WAR MANEUVERS ON LARGE SCALE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 16.—Poland's autumn war maneuvers are being held on an unusually large scale this year because of the international crisis. A heavy concentration of military forces is stationed in southeast Poland.

The exercises are in progress within 30 miles of the soviet frontier. Poland's eastern fleet, which operates in the vast Pinsk swamps and which is the most important part of Poland's naval forces, also is participating. This section of Poland's fleet, largely unknown to the outside world, consists of shallow draft gunboats and launches commanding a large section of the soviet frontier.

FRENCH STIFFEN UP IN ATTITUDE TOWARD BERLIN

Officials Miffed by Lack of Hitler Parley Facts.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 16.—Despite the fact that no official account of the talk between Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain and Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler has yet reached the Quai D'Orsay, uncertainty and disappointment over the generally accepted accounts of Hitler's uncompromising stand are revealed in the attitude of French officials.

There is a marked reluctance to take an unqualified stand in advance of the expected visit of Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet to London—the British government may invite them tomorrow—but the "peace party" continues to envisage a solution based on annexation of the Sudeten region by the reich and neutralization of Czechoslovakia in line with the Fuehrer's reported demands.

Stiffen Attitude Toward Nazis.

But in some quarters the aftermath of the now historic Berchtesgaden conference has brought about a slight stiffening in the attitude toward Germany. This is encouraged by the reported dissatisfaction of a substantial number of followers of Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten German [Nazi] party, and the rallying of the Slovak autonomists to the republic.

Indications that the government of President Eduard Benes is not weakening in the face of its formidable difficulties is given great importance here in view of the "immense sacrifices" Prague admittedly must be forced to accept if the eventual settlement is anything like what Hitler wants.

Welles Dined in Paris.

American diplomacy again today came to the foreground in French preoccupations. Premier Daladier, Bonnet, and Camille Chautemps, minister of coördination, lunched with Sumner Welles, assistant secretary of state of the United States, as guests of William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to France. It is understood they discussed the troubled international crisis.

Bonnet called on Daladier for a twenty minute conversation before accompanying him to the luncheon. It was stated at the embassy that the luncheon was arranged ten days ago when Ambassador Bullitt learned that Welles was coming to Paris.

Some commentators linked this diplomatic luncheon with an article by Leon Blum, former premier, this morning hinting at a possible last minute intervention by President Roosevelt to save peace.

A Havas news agency message from Washington, D. C., however, warns the French public that American sentiment is strongly isolationist and that the state department is in a mood to let Prime Minister Chamberlain pull all the European chestnuts out of the fire if they are to be pulled.

The British ambassador, Sir Eric Phipps, called on Bonnet today but no intimation as to the drift of their conversation was available.

Paper Urges Peace.

The campaign against war to save Czechoslovakia continued to gain in strength despite discouragement over Chamberlain's visit. Today the official organ of French labor unions, Le Peuple, which hitherto has been strongly under communist influence, came out unequivocally in favor of peace even at the price of heavy sacrifices.

Some unidentified propaganda group has been sending aggressive agents through the streets to shower motorists with handbills declaring it is the Jews who are trying to make France fight for Czechoslovakia.

To Tell Czechs

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Loud speakers such as this one have been attached to every other lamp post along principal streets in Prague, Czechoslovakia, to warn citizens of danger or inform them of developments in crisis.

HUNGARY ANGRY; PROTESTS CZECH MILITARY MOVES

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Hungary today was reported to have protested to Czechoslovakia against what was termed Czechoslovak mobilization along the Hungarian frontier. It was said the Hungarian government probably would take measures to meet the situation.

"Hungary will exercise a good deal of patience to remain neutral should war start between Germany and Czechoslovakia," a foreign office official said.

It was pointed out that only three weeks ago Hungary was permitted formally to scrap the military clauses of the world war peace treaties and rearm. Consequently it is believed the country is not ready to enter a war, although it is generally believed that remarkable progress toward rearmament has been made in recent months.

CABINET CONFERS WITH ROOSEVELT ON CRISIS ABROAD

Meet Two Hours to Study Effects on U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt spent the day canvassing the possible effects of the European crisis over Czechoslovakia on American neutrality, American foreign policy, the trade agreement program, and international finance.

The critical state of European affairs was considered for two hours at a cabinet meeting, summoned by the President yesterday as he was on his way to the capital from the bedside of his son and secretary, James, who underwent an operation for a stomach ulcer at Rochester, Minn., Sunday.

Believe Tension Relieved.

Earlier in the day the President conferred again with the Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who met him upon his return to Washington last night. The President also conferred with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. and lunched with Norman Davis, his ambassador at large.

The consensus at the cabinet meeting was that the visit of Neville Chamberlain, British prime minister, to Chancellor Hitler at Berchtesgaden had relieved the tension of the situation, but affairs are still serious.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper revealed that most of the two hour session was spent in bringing the President up to date on European developments which occurred during his absence from the White House. He said no conclusions had been reached.

Edison Gives Indication.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison lifted the curtain of secrecy on the meeting just high enough to afford waiting newspaper men a peep on its nature. He said it was agreed the strain had been relieved somewhat, but the situation was still "teetering."

It was announced that the President would make by radio from the White House a speech he intended to deliver tomorrow at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. It will commemorate the 150th anniversary of the ratification of the constitution by New York state.

U. S. WILL SHIP WHEAT TO SPAIN TO AID REFUGEES

Attacks Are Expected for Interference in War.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—The state department today announced that the government had arranged with the American Red Cross to ship federal surplus wheat in American boats to Spanish refugees.

The wheat, which is supposed to go equally to loyalists and rebels as needed, will be distributed among needy loyalists with the coöperation of the American Friends of Service Committee, a Quaker organization.

The action was expected to bring wholesale attacks on this country for interference in the Spanish war. Although it is being undertaken in the interests of humanity and is avowedly nonpartisan, the action will aid the loyalist cause.

Shipment May Pierce Blockade.

Gen. Francisco Franco, chief of the rebels, has asserted there is no want in the part of Spain that is under his control. Most of the shipment, it is expected, will go to Loyalist Spain and through the blockade by which Franco hopes to starve the loyalists into surrender.

It was considered probable that the American action would draw blasts from Germany and Italy. German authorities, it was expected, would look upon the shipment as a precedent by which America might be expected to come to the side of Czechoslovakia or any other enemy Germany might attempt to starve into submission.

German and Italian reaction was expected to be especially bitter in view of American criticism of troops and munitions of war the two powers have poured in upon Franco.

Report Widespread Need.

The state department announcement carried no hint of possible repercussions which may rebound on this country. The announcement said that information of the last few months has indicated the existence of a growing problem of misery which will result in widespread starvation and loss of life among women and children in Spain.

Because the government cannot organize or dispense relief abroad, it was said, the American Red Cross has volunteered to meet the situation.

The author of the plan was not disclosed. It has been known that for some time pressure has been exerted upon the President by certain radicals and racial groups to aid the Spanish loyalists. At one time they sought to influence the President toward lifting the embargo, imposed under the neutrality act, in favor of loyalist Spain.

This plan was dropped when it was believed possible that such a step might alienate the country's 26 million Catholics.

Spanish Rebel Regime Fights Riots in Morocco; Bars Borders

TANGIER, Morocco, International Zone, Sept. 16.—(AP)—All permits to leave Spanish Morocco were suspended today, travelers reported, as a result of rioting yesterday in Tetuan. Thirty-five persons were said to have lost their lives in the riots.

The travelers were the last to leave the region before the new border restrictions went into effect. They said numerous arrests were made in Tetuan, Larache, and other points following the rioting. Spaniards opposed to the insurgent régime inspired the disorders, it was said.

Police Arrest 26.

Police in the international zone arrested twenty-six persons, said to have been armed Spanish government sympathizers. They were caught trying to enter Spanish Morocco in a caravan made up of six automobiles and two trucks.

Included in the party were native Moroccans and Spaniards. Police said all carried automatic pistols.

Officials did not disclose the purpose of the expedition, but it was believed its members had intended to seize some Spanish Moroccan town and start a revolt against insurgent rule.

Reports from Spanish Morocco said persons in high position were suspected in connection with yesterday's rioting.

31 Die in Air Raid.

BARCELONA, Spain, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Fifteen insurgent warplanes attacked the port section of Barcelona today, killing 31 persons and wounded 112. Many of the wounded were in serious condition, and more deaths were feared.

Two foreign ships were damaged. They were the British collier Lake Hallwill, struck by bomb fragments, and the British freighter Bobie. The American freighter Wisconsin of Portland, Ore., was untouched. Officers reported it escaped unharmed yesterday afternoon also when attacked by a lone plane off Palamos.

The greatest number of casualties in today's raid, the worst Barcelona has experienced in months, were in a market where women had lined up to receive food.

There was little fighting in the civil war today, with both sides watching central European developments for possible effects on them.

130 ARABS SLAIN IN BATTLE WITH ROYAL AIR FORCE

JERUSALEM, Sept. 16.—(AP)—A strange battle between 13 Royal Air force planes and a large band of Arabs has ended in victory for the British airmen and death for 130 tribesmen.

The government today officially announced the result of the fight, which occurred late yesterday near Ramallah, north of Jerusalem.

The report said a scouting plane spotted several hundred armed Arabs and summoned the twelve other craft. The action ended after dark with the Arabs scattered. Several planes were hit, but returned safely to their base.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—A constitutional rally will be held in the National Guard armory here tomorrow night. It will be sponsored by the Indiana Republican Editorial association and by the Republican women's clubs of the 11th and 12th congressional districts. The principal address will be delivered by Col. JAPAN'S TROOPS SEIZE 2 TOWNS IN HANKOW DRIVE

Capture Boom Barring Push Up Yangtze.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 17 [Saturday].—(AP)—Japanese dispatches today reported Japan's invading forces had captured Wusueh, 100 miles down the Yangtze river from Hankow, giving the Japanese control of a boom obstructing river navigation.

A concentrated bombardment of Chinese defenses from air, river, and land was said to have preceded the capture. Occupation of Matow previously had given the Japanese possession of the other end of the boom.

Capture of Wusueh, twenty-seven miles up river from Kiukiang, would open the way for attack on Tienkiachen and Kichun, where there is reported to be another river obstruction.

Shangcheng Is Captured.

Japanese authorities also announced the capture of Shangcheng, about 75 miles east of the Peking-Hankow railway. It is along this railway that the northernmost Japanese army on the Hankow front hopes to march into the provisional Chinese capital.

This column has been hammering its way deep into southeastern Honan province. Its next objective, army spokesmen said, is the town of Hwangchwang, about 28 miles northwest of Shangcheng.

"The big push toward the Peking-Hankow railway will get under full steam after Hwangchwang falls," the Japanese asserted.

Scores of Chinese villages west of Juichang, on the south shore of the Yangtze river, were flattened by Japanese bombs, airmen reported. They said there was a great loss of life in this bombardment.

At the mouth of the Yangtze river, far from the present battlefields, pirates attacked the Dollar Line tug Dahlay today. They captured four towed junks.

Chinese Attack League.

GENEVA, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese delegate to the league of nations, today attacked the league of nations' failure to intervene actively in the Chinese-Japanese war. He proposed a three point course for the organization to take against Japan. It is:

FIRST—Apply article 17 of the league covenant, paving the way for mediation in disputes between league members and nonmembers, and a stepping stone to punitive measures.

SECOND—Apply the resolutions of the previous league council and assembly sessions by enforcing an embargo against Japan, and giving financial and other material aid to China.

THIRD—Create new measures to deter Japan from the alleged use of poison gas and halt the bombing of undefended towns and civilian populations.

4 Chicagoans, Wounded in Spain, Sail for Home

Four Chicagoans are among twenty-two Americans, wounded while fighting for loyalist Spain, who sailed for home from Paris Thursday on the liner Ile de France, it was learned yesterday. The Chicagoans are Robert Teske, Baret Leavitt, Alexander McKnee, and Oscar Hunter, colored. The Friends of the Abraham Lincoln brigade, which has been raising funds to aid in bringing the wounded home, did not learn the address of the Chicagoans.

LIBERTY'S MARCH ON CONSTITUTION DAY FETE TONIGHT

Sen. Vandenberg to Give Pageant Keynote.

Chicago's fifth consecutive observance of Constitution day will be celebrated tonight in the Civic Opera house. United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan will be the principal speaker.

Julius H. Miner, general director of the Constitution day committee, said last night he believed the 1938 celebration would prove the most enthusiastic of all.

"One of the most encouraging and gratifying signs of the times is the interest manifested by youth in this year's observance of Constitution day," Miner said. "They have been given due representation in the program and the historical pageant, 'Human Rights,' which will follow Senator Vandenberg's address.

Depicts Struggle for Liberty.

"The pageant will depict the origin of and the struggle for the liberties which we enjoy under the constitution and the bill of rights. It will present historical events from the time of Socrates to the present, portraying step by step in the history of civilization the quest of mankind for the freedom of the individual. Each scene is historically accurate."

Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, will preside tonight as chairman of the Constitution day committee. The invocation will be delivered by Dr. John Timothy Stone and Dr. Louis L. Mann will pray at the conclusion of the program.

Young Patriots to Parade.

Preceding the program a parade through the loop will be held, led by the Young Patriots of America. It will include groups from leading youth organizations of the city, such as the Y. M. C. A., Sons of Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the B'nai Brith organization.

Senator Vandenberg will speak at 9 p. m. Between 7:30 and 8:30 o'clock a musical program will be held, featuring the Armour Tech Glee club, the Chicago Choral society, and several soloists. Among the soloists will be Roy Glahan, tenor, and Miss Jeanette Todd, winners in the Chicagoland Music Festival.

Constitution day was celebrated yesterday in the 335 elementary schools of Chicago before more than 306,000 pupils. Most of the programs included flag raising ceremonies and recitations on the constitution and the bill of rights. History teachers coached the performers in the meaning of the basic law.

In the Hibbard school, 3244 Ainslie street, the sixth grade staged a quiz program before the school's 1,500 pupils, calling on students to answer questions on the constitution and the bill of rights.

High schools will observe Constitution day on Monday. Assemblies will be addressed by speakers furnished by the Chicago Bar association.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Under a new convention between Canada and the United States it was announced today an international joint commission would be empowered to control water levels in the Rainy lake watershed on the international boundary between Minnesota and Ontario.

The commission made an exhaustive investigation which started in 1925 and ended with a fin : report in 1934.

DEFEAT OF PURGE BOON TO LIBERTY, DECLARES LYONS

Columbus, O., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Citizens of the purge states, by refusing to send Roosevelt yes-men to Washington, have given a new meaning to American government, Richard J. Lyons, Illinois Republican senatorial nominee, told a Constitution day audience here tonight.

Lyons interrupted his own campaign to come to Ohio's capital and address the Buckeye Republican club.

"South Carolina, Maryland, Georgia, and other states have broken the shackles which federal patronage and political intrigue were forging upon them," he said. "They have driven federal trespassers and New Deal henchmen out of their states and have once more rung the liberty bell."

STOVE EXPLODES; TWO BURNED.

HORNER SALUTES CONSTITUTION AS GUARD OF LIBERTY

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Describing the federal constitution as a bulwark that insures a maximum of human liberty, Gov. Horner today designated tomorrow as Constitution day.

"Our federal constitution, the great charter of our liberties, guarantees to all of us the right of life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness, and the protection of our civil integrity," the governor said.

"It is a protection and a shield for all citizens alike, at all times and under all circumstances, and is not the exclusive instrument of any single group or class. It should never be subverted to use for partisan and selfish purposes."

FINED FOR CAUSING CYCLE CRASH.

Edward Steinman, 3015 Ainslie street, was fined $50 yesterday for speeding and failing to signal a turn. These violations caused Policeman Edward Peterson of River Forest to crash his motorcycle Thursday and injure himself.

FEAR DAVIS MAY NOT TESTIFY AT NEW HINES TRIAL

Dewey Witness Upstate for Murder Quiz.

New York, Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Associates of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey expressed fear tonight their star witness, J. Richard [Dixie] Davis, disbarred attorney, may be prevented from testifying at a retrial of James J. [Jimmy] Hines, Tammany leader.

Davis, former attorney for the Dutch Schultz gang, was the state's principal witness in the Hines policy racket case which recently ended in a mistrial. His testimony involved him in the reopened investigation of the murder of a Schultz mobster, to which he referred on the witness stand.

Davis was taken to Troy, N. Y., today and questioned there for four hours about the slaying of Jules Martin in 1935. Tomorrow the dapper witness will tell to a Rensselaer county grand jury his story of how the late Dutch Schultz shot and killed Martin during a drunken rage. It is deemed possible that Davis will be indicted as an accessory to the murder.

Dewey Aids Apprehensive.

Dewey's aids have expressed some apprehension over the unexpected interest which various upstate authorities took in the Martin case after it became known that Davis would be a witness against Hines.

After lying dormant for three years the Martin slaying inquiry is being reopened at Troy by District Attorney Charles J. Ranney. The prosecutor is a Democrat and is affiliated with the Rensselaer county machine of Joe Murphy, long an ally of Tammany hall.

Although Martin's body was found near Troy in Rensselaer county it is possible Albany county may seek to try Davis because he has said Martin was shot in Cohoes, which is in that county. Albany county is dominated by the O'Connell political machine, which also has relations with Tammany.

In this mixup Dewey's associates see the possibility that legal entanglements between the two counties over jurisdiction of the murder case might involve their star witness and prevent him from testifying when wanted at the retrial of Hines.

Pecora Rules Out Questions.

Dewey tried to bring out at the Hines trial Davis' story of the Martin killing, but this line of testimony was stopped by Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora. Davis was allowed to say no more than that he was present when Martin was slain.

However, Davis has made a statement for Prosecutor Ranney that Schultz shot Martin in the Harmony hotel at Cohoes, N. Y., during a drunken brawl, over the return of $21,000 in collections.

Testimony at the restaurant racket trial, another Dewey prosecution, showed that only a few days before he was killed Martin, who was in charge of the restaurant racket for Schultz, had been ordered by his boss to turn over $21,000.

District Attorney Dewey, it was learned tonight, has asked Justice Pecora to remove himself from having anything further to do with the Hines trial. Dewey asked Pecora to sign an order transferring the trial of Hines to the Court of General Sessions and also requested Pecora to allow a General Sessions court to sentence the former Schultz mobsters who have turned state's evidence. These include, in addition to Davis, George Weinberg and Big Harry Schoenhaus.

that Margiotti was a candidate for governor for four years before he made any public announcement. Margiotti polled 200,000 votes as an independent candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination last spring.

"I have heard some rumors about you that are not so pleasant," the witness shot back.

Margiotti then offered to make public the name of the man who collected $20,000 from brewers throughout the state to further certain legislation on licenses they wanted and to describe about his coming to Harrisburg where he distributed the cash among prominent administration officials. The committee refused to let him divulge the name.

The committee adjourned until Monday with Margiotti stating that the only way the facts could be brought out for a successful prosecution was through a grand jury investigation. Similar to those conducted by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey into the New York rackets.

VOID CLEANERS' UNION ELECTION; ORDER NEW ONE

The election of officers of the Cleaners, Dyers and Pressers' union local No. 3 of Chicago, held last April, has been declared irregular and a new election ordered by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor. Instructions to this effect, received from William Green, A. F. of L. president, were made public yesterday by former officers of local No. 17742, a federal union, which was merged with local No. 3, chartered under an international union.

Last April the executive council of the A. F. of L. ordered a transfer of members of 17742 to local 3 and the holding of an election of officers by the combined membership under supervision of an A. F. of L. representative. The former officers of 17742 protested the nominations to the executive council last July. They charged that two of their officers were arrested as they were entering the meeting place. These officers later were cleared in court.

PRESS SEARCH FOR CLEWS IN FARM KILLINGS

Determined to solve the mystery of the Le Voy farm killings, Lake county authorities pressed their investigation yesterday. Meanwhile ballistics experts were completing their test of one of the guns used in the double shooting. Scott Le Voy, 65 years old, was found shot to death Tuesday morning in his farm home nine miles west of Waukegan. His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Maye Le Voy, 26, was found shot to death in the basement. Her husband, James Le Voy, discovered the bodies.

Never Again!

257 MILES AND NOT THERE YET!
LOON LAKE
LOON LAKE! JUST THE PLACE FOR US—LOONS FOR GOING SO FAR FROM CHICAGO!
OUCH! WHAT A BED!
AND WHAT A STOVE!
WILL BREAKFAST EVER BE READY MOM?
I AXE YOU—IS THIS A VACATION?
WHEW! HALF A MILE TO GET WATER FIT TO DRINK!
AW, GEE I WANNA GO HOME!

NO—NO—NEVER AGAIN! Driving, driving, only to find disappointment, discomfort and food that wouldn't do at home. Sentencing ourselves to hard labor when we wanted a good time. Home again, sore, tired, busted, worse off than when we went. Was it a vacation or endurance test?

NO, SIREE! From now on it's unmitigated pleasure for us in our own cottage on a lake and near Chicago—all summer long and into the beautiful fall and even for winter sports and hunting. And the neighbors, they're wonderful, hand picked, a pleasure to know.

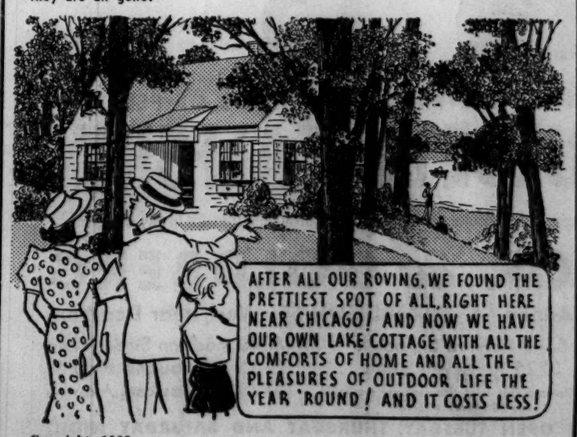
MOM DID IT! All the credit goes to her for finding this perfect spot. After that sour vacation she came across a lake cottage ad that struck her just right. It said, "Drive out this Sunday and see this lake." And we did. We took route U. S. 14 to route 59-A near Barrington and there turned right to Wauconda where we took route 176 to the entrance of the lake.

AND WHAT DID WE FIND? Less than an hour's drive from home we found this lake—Island Lake—set like a turquoise in emerald hills. A sand bottom, spring fed lake with beaches of finest sand. Many homes, all brand new peeping out between the trees. Gosh, we were just enchanted, almost!

THAT VERY SUNDAY we picked a site and ordered our cottage built, to be ready by spring. A cute four room cottage—complete—insulated with Celotex for winter use—and a big hunk of woods cost only $695. They got us an FHA loan and our monthly payments are only twelve bucks. Contrary to all expectations we found that by building in the fall you get a lot more value for your money.

THE LIFE OF RILEY—we led it this summer! Excepting time off to commute to work in Chicago every day—less than an hour's ride—the whole family spent the entire summer together bathing, fishing, boating, playing, resting.

OUR LITTLE PARADISE is at Island Lake, near Wauconda. We got it from the National Mortgage & Investment Company, 188 West Randolph—State 7385. The home they built for us for so little far exceeded our expectations. Friends who visited our cottage are so pleased that they are now picking sites and choosing plans for their own cottages to be ready next spring. Other folks who can appreciate the joys of a lake cottage like ours had better drive out to Island Lake—RIGHT NOW—and grab off one of these pretty sites before they are all gone!



AFTER ALL OUR ROVING, WE FOUND THE PRETTIEST SPOT OF ALL, RIGHT HERE NEAR CHICAGO! AND NOW WE HAVE OUR OWN LAKE COTTAGE WITH ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME AND ALL THE PLEASURES OF OUTDOOR LIFE THE YEAR 'ROUND! AND IT COSTS LESS!

ONE DEAD, 62 ILL FROM POISONING; INQUIRY OPENED

Food or Water Blamed in Elmwood Park.

State, county, and suburban health authorities yesterday began an investigation into the death of one man and the illness of sixty-two other residents of Elmwood Park. They are believed to be the victims of food poisoning or water contamination.

Earl Bennison, 52 years old, died early yesterday while being taken to the Oak Park hospital from his home at 2732 North 76th avenue. His wife, Margaret, and four other members of the family became ill at the same time.

Five Taken to Hospital.

Dr. F. L. Hadden, who was summoned, ordered Mrs. Bennison and the others taken to the County hospital. He said their condition is serious. The other residents of the suburb, supposedly affected with the same complaint, are being treated in their homes.

This morning the health authorities expect to have the report of the coroner's chemist on the Bennison death. They also are awaiting a report from the Illinois Research hospital, which is examining the ingredients of a pastry many of the victims ate.

Edwin Nelson, village health commissioner, and his assistant, Dr. James A. Moxon, said they believe the illness may be due to chocolate eclairs purchased in the neighborhood where most of those afflicted live.

Water to Be Analyzed.

Samples of the water used in the village have been sent to Springfield for analysis, Dr. Moxon said. Laboratories are also examining other foodstuffs in the homes of those who are ill, he said.

"At least half of those who are ill ate the chocolate eclairs," said Ollie Karwowski, investigator for the coroner. "The illness may be due to a combination of food poisoning and contaminated water.

"On Tuesday night the water supply was shut off for two hours when a main broke. For several hours after the service was resumed residents complained that the water was muddy and were advised by the police to boil it.

Find Bakery Is Sanitary.

"Bennison and his family ate the eclairs Tuesday night. They began getting ill Wednesday and Thursday. Today the health department was flooded with complaints. The health commissioner examined the bakery and said he was convinced the shop was sanitary, and that if it is food poisoning, the contamination may have occurred in some other way."

Members of the Bennison family in the hospital are his widow, a son, Glenn; his wife, Alberta, each 23; a son, Clyde, 14; and a daughter, Marjorie, 20.

MYSTERY BLASTS BLANKET ILLINOIS CITY IN DARKNESS

Murphysboro, Ill., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Three mysterious dynamite blasts that plunged this city of 9,000 into darkness last night probably were intended to shield an attempt by robbers to raid the local bank, authorities said today.

Any such plot was frustrated, however, by vigilantes who guarded the bank and business property throughout the night. Electric service was restored at 8 a. m.

The dynamite blasts toppled a tower that held high tension wires leading into the city. Both authorities and officials of the utilities concerned insisted there had been no labor trouble and that they knew of no one who would make such an attack on the utility.

AX RAIDERS FIND HUNTING POOR; 7 JOINTS SMASHED

Three of State's Attorney Courtney's ax squads were out yesterday searching for handbooks to smash, but the hunting was pretty thin. Only 167 seven were found open and demolished. The last one of the day was at 428 South Wabash avenue on the fourth floor. It had opened Wednesday.

The others were at 732 South Wabash, 640 North State street, 1402 North Western avenue, 1219 South Wabash avenue, 5004 Sheridan road, and 26 South Cicero avenue.

The seven raids brought the score to 167 in Courtney's drive to wipe out the gambling joints.

City police made five raids, three of them in the loop. They were at 37 South Clark street, 672 North Clark street, 4711 Prairie avenue, 63 North Wabash avenue, and 38 North Dearborn street.

Wives Tell Woes in Court

[Tribune Photos.]

Mrs. Pauline Collins (left) sued for a divorce yesterday, charging her husband threatened to blow up office where she is employed; Mrs. Grace Nelson (center) was awarded temporary alimony, and Mrs. Ethel Petersen won divorce with story of husband's blacking both her eyes.

BLONDE, REDHEAD AND BRUNETTE GO BEFORE A JUDGE

He Listens to Woeful Stories of 3 Wives.

One husband threatened to blow up his wife's office—with her in it. One was jealous as could be. One gave his wife black eyes. That's the way the wives told the stories yesterday, anyway—a blonde, a brunette, and a redhead.

The brunette, Mrs. Pauline Collins of 5647 South Throop street: She's a stenographer, 30 years old. She sued Charles E. Collins for divorce on a charge of desertion. And then, she testified, he went around and told her boss he'd blow up the office unless her boss fired her. Moreover, Mrs. Collins said, her husband ought to support their daughter, Barbara Jean, 20 months old.

Judge Warns Husband.

Her attorney, Harry X. Cole, drew up an order. Francis J. Benda, master in chancery, approved it, and Judge Walter J. La Buy signed it. It said for Collins to pay $6 a week and warned him very sternly against blowing up her office.

The redhead, Mrs. Grace Nelson, of 8032 South Shore drive: She asked temporary alimony of Axel Nelson, whom she is suing for divorce on grounds of cruelty. But Nelson said she didn't deserve alimony, because she has men admirers.

"He's just unduly suspicious," said her attorney, Norman Becker. "He's jealous, besides," said Mrs. Nelson. And then she said she'd always been afraid to ride on the upper decks of buses because passengers sometimes smoke up there and she might get smoke in her hair. Then her husband would be sure to think she'd been out with a man, she said.

Awarded Temporary Alimony.

Mrs. Nelson, who's 29 years old, got $12 a week temporary alimony.

The blonde, Mrs. Ethel Petersen of 2016 Berwyn avenue. She's 26 years old and doesn't like black eyes. She knows, she said, because her husband gave her a pair on Sept. 1. It wasn't the first time he'd struck her either, she said. The judge granted her a divorce on grounds of cruelty from Adolph Petersen, with whom she used to be in the tavern business at 5120 Broadway.

DOG'S $8 A WEEK IRKS PHYSICIAN'S WIFE; SHE SUES

If Dr. William B. Marcusson's dog gets $8 a week for support, Mrs. Ruth Marcusson thinks she ought to have more than $100 a month. She explained it yesterday in a divorce suit charging desertion.

Of the $100 he gives her, she said, $70 goes for rent. That leaves only $1 a day for her, as compared to the $8 a week for the dog, which, her bill said, lives in a boarding school. The bill, drawn by Attorney Louis L. Cohen, said that Dr. Marcusson earns $20,000 a year.

He is a physician and surgeon with offices at 503 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park. Mrs. Marcusson, who is 40 years old, lives at 706 Lyman avenue, Oak Park. She charged that he deserted her in 1931.

DOCTORS FIGHT POLITICAL RULE OVER MEDICINE

A. M. A. Chiefs Called in Emergency Session.

A united front against political control of medicine was urged of all physicians yesterday by speakers at the opening session of an emergency meeting of the house of delegates of the American Medical association.

Dr. Rock Sleyster.

One hundred and seventy-five delegates, the governing body of the association, attended the meeting in the Palmer house. They are expected to reach a vote today in their stand on the government medical care program. Indications were that a majority of the delegates would oppose federal control.

Would Cost 850 Millions.

The government medical program was recommended by a presidential committee at the national health conference in Washington last July. It would cost more than $850,000,000 a year. Conservative leaders of organized medicine particularly oppose a proposed tax for compulsory sickness insurance.

Dr. Rock Sleyster of Wawatosa, Wis., president-elect of the association, asserted that for some years various groups have tried to create an artificial sentiment for introduction into the United States of foreign systems of medical care. This propaganda has been well financed and disguised in the name of humanitarianism, he said.

"To plans which will benefit the people," he said, "we offer our whole hearted and unselfish support. That is our plain duty. It is equally our duty to oppose in every way at our command unsound doctrins which would eventually lower the standards of medical service to that found in many other countries, where the physician has been made subservient to political control.

"We have believed that no one plan can fit the needs of every section—that each community must be treated according to its needs and local conditions."

Plan Railroaded to Approval.

Dr. Irvin Abell of Louisville, Ky., president of the association, declared that at the national health conference no attempt was made to present alternative programs or to discuss in detail the government plan.

"The American Medical association," he said, "has constantly opposed any attempts on the part of local, county, state, or federal governments to make medical care a political issue. American medicine fears political burocracies. The medical profession does not conceive that any political agency can do the job with one-tenth the efficiency even at ten times the cost."

21 ELECTION WORKERS RELEASED ON BONDS IN INDIANA VOTE FRAUD

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Twenty-one of 24 precinct officials indicted here for fraud in the primary election May 3 surrendered late today. All were released under $1,000 bond each, fixed by Judge Frank P. Baker.

Two of the three who had not been taken into custody were reported to be out of the city. Fourteen Democrats and ten Republicans were named in four indictments.

The indictments charged fraud in certification of ballot totals in races for the Democratic and Republican sherif nominations and Republican prosecutor nomination.

SIX DROWN WHEN MANITOWOC AUTO PLUNGES IN RIVER

Manitowoc, Wis., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Six persons were drowned here tonight when their automobile crashed through the railing of an old wooden bridge and carried them into the Manitowoc river.

The dead were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Witzak, who were married a month ago; Louis Van De Castle, father of Mrs. Witzak, and Van De Castle's two small daughters and young son. Van De Castle and his three children were being taken home by Witzak after visiting the Witzaks.

The scene of the tragedy was the 21st street bridge. Built entirely of wood, it is barely wide enough for two cars to pass. Cars enter the bridge from the west on a sharp turn, guarded by railings. It was at the turn that the accident occurred.

The automobile, with its six passengers, approached the sharp turn at too high a speed apparently. It smashed through the wooden railing and fell into the water which is about twelve feet deep.

The first word police had of the accident was an anonymous telephone call. Police and fire squads sped to the bridge, found the torn gap in the bridge, and immediately lowered ladders to the river.

Fireman Maurice Gallagher and Harry Blumenstein descended the ladders, and located the submerged automobile with pole hooks. Then the two firemen lowered themselves into the water and recovered the bodies one by one.

Chief of Police William Blaylock of Waukegan warned pranksters yesterday that dangerous pre-Halloween antics will not be tolerated in the suburb. His warning came after fifteen stop signs were torn down early Thursday and left beneath porches in the north end of town.

PERSONAL

By CALEB

WE HAVE NEVER felt that mass production or mass distribution has much place in our business. It is true that the sums and the merchandise involved in it reach large totals. We employ many people—but in spite of that, we have never ceased to think of our business in terms of individual transactions.

Evidence of this attitude is on every hand. To begin with, it tinctures the activities and the plans of our buyers. Visiting far countries they buy quantities of the staple requirements common to most of our customers. But they never count their trip a success unless, in addition to those items, they bring back with them a number of pieces that are so fine and rare as to stand as individual creations—in a class by themselves.

The same attitude, the same habit of thinking in terms of individuals, evidences itself in the organization of our personnel within the store. The men and women who head the various store divisions are given a good deal of latitude in their methods of operation. Of course, they must adhere strictly to the basic policies of the store, but beyond that—and this includes a wide and important field—they enjoy marked freedom. There is no attempt to pour their merchandise or their staff into a preconceived mold of restrictive rules and regulations.

This method of operation does not preclude concerted action; rather, plans and purpose are engendered thereby. We find the habit of regarding our business as consisting of many individual transactions happily productive of unified effort. To look upon each customer as an individual makes it essential to consider her complete needs in a systematic fashion.

Particularly we strive to the best of our ability always to keep our stock in every department so complete and comprehensive that no individual can fail to find something pertinent to the need and the occasion. We would never pretend to offer individual service without a comprehensive showing of all that is fine in the field under observation.

So the mere matter of bigness has never changed our fundamental concept of service. The road we have chosen is a harder and a slower one—but the only one we feel any inclination to follow.

CLEAR OBSTACLE TO AIR BASE FOR NATIONAL GUARD

School Board Will Sell Site at Airport.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

The Illinois armory board, joining with Mayor Kelly and James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, yesterday swept aside a legal obstruction that threatened for a time to block construction of a $1,200,000 National Guard air base at Chicago airport.

At a meeting in Guard headquarters, 208 South La Salle street, the armory board agreed to purchase from the board of education six lots at the southwest corner of the mile square plot of ground that now is under lease to the city for airport uses. These lots will be the site for the new air base headquarters buildings and five modern hangars.

Price Fixed at $14,400.

The price of $14,400 for all the lots was approved by the armory board, and a tender of purchase for this amount was transmitted to the school board. President McCahey said this amount seemed reasonable and that he expects the school board to agree to the sale at a meeting on Monday.

The legal obstruction was raised by attorneys for the securities firm that is to underwrite an armory board bond issue on the hangars. The lawyers said the issue, which is to furnish the sponsor's share of $200,000 to meet a Public Works administration grant of almost as much, would not be sound unless the armory board owned the land.

Prior to that time Mayor Kelly and President McCahey had arranged a twenty-seven year lease at $1 a year for the lots. When the legal objection first was raised, however, it was thought that it would be impossible for the school board to sell any land to the armory board.

Find It Can Be Done.

An examination of the law by counsel for the Chicago Title and Trust company proved that it could be done. Yesterday's arrangements were the result.

After the board meeting, Maj. Gen. R. D. Keehn, chairman, announced that Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., brokers, had underwritten the hangar bond issue and also bond issues on two other Chicago armories, thus assuring the sponsor's share for each of these projects also.

One of them is the new Humboldt park armory that will be constructed on land donated by the Chicago park district at North and Kedzie avenues. The armory, costing $1,270,000, will house the 108th motor transport regiment, the 108th medical regiment, and other units.

The second project is the addition to the 122d Field Artillery armory to house the Black Horse troop at Chicago avenue and Pearson street. This addition will consist of four stories and a basement and cost $470,000.

WORK ON FINAL SNAG IN AIRPORT EXPANSION PLAN

City representatives and J. R. Barse, general counsel for the Chicago & Western Indiana railroad, will meet Monday to consider the last snag in connection with the Chicago airport enlargement program. This snag is the city's demand that both Long and Lockwood avenue crossings to be left open when the railroad's tracks are shifted from the airport to a new site. The demand is made for parishioners of St. Camillus church, 5430 South Lockwood avenue, who otherwise would have no street approach to the church.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman learned yesterday that the Illinois commerce commission cannot close streets in cities of over 500,000 inhabitants as the railroad had hoped. This, he said, virtually means that the railroad must agree if the crossings are to remain open. Grossman said he thinks this difficulty can be removed from the proposed ordinance for airport expansion. He believes the measure can be passed next Wednesday by the city council.

BANDIT PAIR STRIKES TWICE.

Two young bandits committed two holdups on the south side a few minutes apart yesterday. They robbed Nelson A. Mainor, 6014 Loomis boulevard, of $1.49 and his automobile at 57th and Rockwell streets. Then they stole $4 from Owen O'Neill 808 East 54th street, driver for the Chicago Motor Coach company at 55th street and Trumbull avenue.

Shamed by Teacher

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Paul Hartjen shows how he slept in parked auto rather than deliver note to parents.

After Paul Hartjen misbehaved in the Dever school he was ashamed to take home the note his teacher gave him. It was supposed to be signed by his mother and returned.

So Paul, who is 9 years old, stopped only briefly at his home at 3424 Overhill avenue Thursday. He kept the note and did not return at night. Frantically his parents searched the neighborhood and reported him missing to police.

Yesterday his mother visited the school at 3431 Olcott avenue to question his playmates. There she found Paul, in his usual seat in his classroom. He said he had spent the night in a parked car and then gone to school without any breakfast.

WRIT TO UPSET NOMINATION OF BARKLEY SOUGHT

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Attorney Charles E. Lester today filed a suit attacking the renomination of United States Senator Alben W. Barkley in the Aug. 6 primary.

The suit alleged that Barkley's renomination involved violations of the corrupt practice act. Barkley and Secretary of State Charles D. Arnett were named defendants.

The plaintifs seek to enjoin Arnett from certifying the nomination of Barkley and from printing his name on ballots for the November election.

HOLD AIR SHOW TOMORROW AT LANSING FIELD

The combined air circus and Chicago Girls' Flying club meet that was postponed last Sunday because of rain will be held tomorrow afternoon at Lansing airport, 190th street and Burnham avenue. The program will include races and stunts by a troupe of pilots headed by Art Davis. The girl pilots will hold bomb dropping and spot landing contests and compete in a pylon race. One of them will give a demonstration of crazy flying just off the ground and others will stunt small airplanes above 1,500 feet.

Davis and his pilots will demonstrate dog-fighting tactics, formation flying, and a hair-raising exhibition they call the "Kiss of Death." This requires removal of a handkerchief from the wing of one plane by a hook on the wing of another. Other acts will be parachute jumping, sky writing and balloon bursting.

WHEELER'S STAR RISES IN SPITE OF ROOSEVELT'S IRE

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Butte, Mont., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—From this mining town with its flavor of the old frontier hails the man unfavorably known to New Dealers as the nemesis of F. D. R.

A tall, loose jointed, ruddy man with bulging forehead, sparse blond hair, and blue eyes glowing and twinkling through spectacles, this 56 year old nemesis answers to the name of Burton K. Wheeler, senior United States senator from Montana.

A Democrat, a liberal as defined by F. D. R. himself, a politician regarded by conservatives for thirty years as a wild eyed radical, Wheeler led the fight in the senate against the President undertaking to pack the Supreme court. To his generalship is attributed the proportions of the victory over the most formidable political forces ever marshaled by a President.

Attempted Bribes Spurned.

Liberal that he is, radical that he was widely accounted, New Dealer that he was during the first Roosevelt administration, Wheeler balked at the scheme to subject the judiciary to the domination of the executive.

Other Democrats unable to stomach the court packing plan and Republicans chose Wheeler for their captain. The New Deal high command sought to win him over by promising him appointment to the Supreme court, or the naming of three of the prospective new members, or both.

Nemesis Wheeler spurned these bribes with raucous laughter and plunged into the battle from which he emerged the hero of the foes of the court packing bill and the man the New Dealers, from the President down, most cordially hated. He became at once the No. 1 Democrat on the roster of the Roosevelt purge.

Two More Years in Term.

Unfortunately Wheeler had two years more of his present term to serve and it would be 1940 before he could be purged. The White House did what it could, however, to punish him. He was deprived of all patronage and the jobs he ordinarily would control were given to his political enemies by way of building up the forces relied upon to finish him off in 1940.

The purgers also started the propaganda mill grinding against Wheeler back home. Efforts to get resolutions adopted by various groups condemning the senator were at first attended with some success. The New Dealers began claiming that Wheeler was down and out politically in Montana.

Wheeler only smiled that wry smile of his and bided his time. When the Democratic state convention met last week it was composed of Wheeler supporters by an overwhelming majority. The purgers didn't have a look in. Wheeler dominated the organization.

Jerry O'Connell, the ultraradical Democratic congressman from this district, entered the primary for renomination proclaiming that he had been assigned by Mr. Roosevelt to be Wheeler's nemesis. O'Connell, if reelected, would be the 1940 senate candidate of the White House to purge Wheeler. The senator held aloof from this fight. O'Connell won renomination and presumably will be reëlected in this overwhelmingly Democratic district, although his Democratic support is being tremendously reduced by reaction against his communist affiliation.

O'Connell, though a Roman Catholic, was one of the radicals who went to Spain last year to give moral aid and comfort to the communists of the Spanish government. For this encouragement of the Spanish régime that has suppressed the church, the Catholics in large numbers have turned against him.

Purgers Lose Heart.

Those who were loudest in threatening Wheeler with a purge are now singing low as the result chiefly of the 100 per cent failure of the President to purge his party of the nine Democratic senators opposed to the court packing bill who came up for renomination this year.

On the contrary, two years from now Wheeler, it is not doubted, will be numbered among those intent upon purging the Democratic party of Mr. Roosevelt. His present control of his party in this state indicates Senator Wheeler will go to the 1940 convention as Montana's favorite son.

As the returns from the purge have been wafted in, Wheeler's grin has been broadening into something exceedingly like the smile of the cat that swallowed the canary. Wheeler, by his fight on the court packing bill, has gained tremendous support from conservatives who once considered him anathema. The other day he received the plaudits of the Montana Bar association. At the same time he was the choice of labor unions to make the Labor day speech.

Democrats on Defensive.

Democratic candidates are assiduously cultivating in the electorate a proper sense of gratitude for the quarter of a billion dollars expended in Montana under the Roosevelt administration. At the same time they find themselves on the defensive with respect to New Deal tarif and agricultural policies.

The Democratic state platform praised fulsomely all the Roosevelt policies except the Hull reciprocal tarif treaties, which it did not mention at all. The reason is the increasing opposition of live stock raisers to the Canadian treaty, which exposes them to Canadian competition.

Of late there also has been a revolt of wheat growers against the action of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace in reducing the quotas of wheat.

Bride a Fourth Time

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Merry Fahrney, 24 years old, heiress to an Oak Park, Ill., patent medicine fortune, married her fourth husband for the second time tonight. She and Russian Count Oleg Cassini, 26 year old dress designer, who eloped to Elkton, Md., two weeks ago, went through the elaborate 40 minute ritual of the Russian Orthodox faith in the Tiny Church of the Holy Father—the second floor living room of a brownstone house in Harlem. The wedding was officially sanctioned by the remnants of the Russian czarist régime. A delegation of members of the young Russian party, which recognizes Grand Duke Cyril as the rightful ruler of Russia, attended in his name, clad in their official uniforms of dark suits, dark blue shirts, and black ties. The bridegroom's parents also were present.

500 POLICE GUARD STREETS IN N. Y. TRUCKING STRIKE

New York, Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Five hundred especially assigned police in radio cars and afoot patroled Manhattan from the Battery to 26th street today. They were determined to maintain order in an unauthorized strike by insurgent members of three local unions of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen, and Helpers, an American Federation of Labor affiliate. The strike curtailed operations of 300 to 400 trucking firms.

No violence occurred as the second day of the wildcat strike began, but labor leaders feared the strike might spread. Hoping to prevent this, they sent missionary squads among the strikers to dissuade them from interfering with the drivers still on the job.

MARTIN GIVES IN; C. I. O. TO DECIDE AUTO UNION WAR

Loses His Battle Against Arbitrating Ousters.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, lost his fight today against C. I. O. arbitration in the factional war in his organization.

A compromise peace pact was reached after nine days of negotiations. It provided that the expulsion of four U. A. W. officers be submitted to Philip Murray and Sidney Hillman, C. I. O. vice chairmen. They will give a decision about Oct. 1.

The C. I. O. group which Martin had assailed for interference in his union affairs also suffered a setback. Its members failed to gain approval of Chairman John L. Lewis' proposal for the immediate reinstatement of the expelled officers.

Joint Committee Provided.

In opposition to Lewis' suggestion of mediation by C. I. O. leaders of other J. A. W. disputes, the agreement effected today sets up a joint committee to act in that capacity. The committee will be comprised of Martin, Hillman, Murray, and R. J. Thomas, U. A. W. vice president.

The belief was expressed by observers close to union circles that the C. I. O. arbitrators would order reinstatement of the expelled officers. The men disciplined in a split that threatened dual unionism in the automobile industry are Vice Presidents Richard Frankensteen, Ed Hall, and Wyndham Mortimer, and Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes.

Follows Lewis' Points.

There have been reports that Martin, who charged that Lewis' peace plan would result in a union dictatorship, has lost control of the executive board of his union.

The agreement followed the principal points of Lewis' proposal except for failure to order the immediate reinstatement of the expelled officers. It was Lewis' suggestion that a joint C. I. O.-U. A. W. committee be set up to determine matters of policy relating to coöperation between the affiliate and parent organizations.

END OF A. F. L.-C. I. O. STRIFE IS URGED BY TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Delegates to the International Typographical union convention today called for peace between warring factions of organized labor. They adopted a resolution urging resumption of unity conferences between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization. The resolution, asserting labor's civil war created confusion and retarded the labor movement, urged the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. "to unite these two bodies into one united American labor organization."

LABOR OPPOSES MANAGER FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—The Illinois state Federation of Labor went on record today against the city manager form of municipal government. Delegates to the annual convention of the federation, representing more than 400,000 organized workers in Illinois, unanimously approved a report of the executive board condemning the manager plan as undemocratic.

The board's report described the labor leaders' recent fight against the city manager form of government. Proposed manager legislation, the board asserted, was dropped at a special session of the general assembly because of the vigorous objections of organized labor.

The advocates of the manager plan, the report said, are fearful of dangers to democratic procedure.

THE CONSTITUTION'S BIRTHDAY.

The final day's session of the constitutional convention in Philadelphia, 151 years ago, is celebrated today with appropriate ceremonies, reminding the people of the United States of a document which establishes their government and safeguards their liberties.

The constitution of the United States was devised and put in a written document because of conditions which required a governing statement of principles and practices. The men who undertook this work didn't know whether they had succeeded or not. They also didn't know what would happen to the constituent parts of the nation if they didn't succeed. They feared the worst and they had good cause to do so.

Government in the United States was falling apart. There were sitdown strikes, riots, wildcat currency, contempt of courts, insurrection against authority, disorganized industry, armed rebellions, disregard of property rights, share-the-wealth schemes, destitution, demagoguery, and incompetent government.

People had been taught to believe that the government should give them money and that the courts should not enforce laws, that people who had bank accounts were enemies, that the sheriffs had no right to enforce writs, that persons who didn't have property had a right to take it from some one who had, and if they were hard up it was somebody else's fault.

There are many excuses for the disorderly people of those days with their visionary ideas of what was due them. They had been through a long war to get their independence and it was easy for agitators to tell them that liberty meant a distribution of desirable things, relief from obligations and pressing debts along with the satisfaction of unsatisfied desires. A new order had been born and they intended to cash in on it.

The Utopia of their new freedom meant everything they wanted without much bother in getting it. Some of them were honestly perplexed to find that the long struggle and the sacred name of liberty had not given all of them land free from debt, a bank account, a substantial income, and the right to do about as they pleased.

In such circumstances it was necessary for the wisest men in the country, if they could be found, to use the best wisdom with which they were endowed in establishing a stable and permanent form of government which would give every man protection, assure him his essential rights forever, and permit liberty to be the ordered and guaranteed possession of the citizens.

These men did their work in trying times. They didn't produce a document out of the studied leisure of a cloister but in an arena which was echoing the furious shouts of people and about which was whirling the dust of their excited conflicts. So the constitution they had framed, not coming out of a vacuum, has been permanent. It hasn't been impaired by unexpected developments either in government or human nature, but has proved that some truths endure, no matter what physical changes come over the lives of the people.

The horse and buggy may give way to the high powered car and the candle to the electric light, but these changes do not change the principles by which men live in communities with each other. Their relationships do not vitally change simply because they now can listen to faraway voices over the radio, travel by air, conduct business by the telephone, get strawberries in January, and level cities with a twenty mile bombardment.

HITLER'S RADIO AND OURS.

The case for a free press and for free speech was never made in clearer fashion than in Germany today. There all the avenues of communication are in government control.

A TRIBUNE correspondent in Berlin reports that "gradually and systematically, Germany's propaganda organization is whipping the population into a war frenzy. . . . The masses are now beginning to believe that their German brothers in Czechoslovakia are being butchered systematically. . . . During scheduled broadcasts a dramatic voice interrupts about every twenty minutes to proclaim: 'The Fuehrer will not stand for another May 21.'"

There is much more to the same effect. It should serve as a warning to Americans that control by government of the avenues of communication is exceedingly dangerous. It is easy to place implicit confidence in the integrity and disinterestedness of one's government and difficult to believe that one's government is deliberately distorting the truth for its own purposes. Yet any one who has read history—and that goes for the history of any country—knows how often this confidence in the superior wisdom and goodness of politicians has been misplaced.

The radio in America today is not so directly subservient to the government as are the German radio and press, but no one who knows the facts can regard the position of our radio services as a sound one. Stations are licensed for only six months. Their licenses may be canceled "for cause" during the period and the right to obtain a renewal at the end of the term is more or less tenuous. Many persons deny that any such right exists or can be enforced. The consequence is that the owners of many radio stations move in terror of the government and jump to obey the slightest hint from Washington.

For the preservation of free speech in this country, and to prevent abuse by the government of its asserted power to regulate the radio, the law should be reëxamined and amended at the forthcoming session of congress. An aspect of the present control which is particularly dangerous is the organization of the communications commission itself. This political agency is at once prosecutor, judge, jury, and executioner. As long as such an arrangement is in existence, the radio in this country cannot be free because it cannot receive a fair trial when its rights are invaded.

LOOKING OVER THE TRULY GOOD.

New Deal moralities include many exhibits from which a few specimens may be taken for illustration. They will show how the truly good put up their defenses and how their justifications hide apology under hypocrisy.

Senator Berry of Tennessee was a good man merely trying to come to an equitable arrangement with TVA and get reimbursement of upward of 5 million dollars for marble properties which have been pronounced commercially worthless. Senator Berry, however, was not a true servant of the people when he, having been defeated in the Tennessee primaries for renomination, said that the great almoner, Harry Hopkins of the WPA, had allowed WPA workers to be assessed and coerced to defeat him.

When Senator Berry put that political stigma on the better life he left the light and wandered off into darkness. All told, at present Senator Berry is a bad man, not for what he tried to get out of the New Deal but for what he says he caught the New Dealers doing to him.

Dr. Arthur Morgan, former chairman of the TVA, was a pillar of righteousness until he said that the New Dealers and Senator Berry were undertaking to skin the government and accused his two associates in the authority of uncandid and underhand work. Then Dr. Morgan was fired as a traitor to the more abundant life. As a pillar of righteousness he was pushed over into the dust and the truly good began to cover up as fast as they could.

Hugo L. Black as a member of the Ku Klux Klan belonged to the bigoted, intolerant American predecessor of the German Nazi party. The creed of the Klan and the creed of the Nazis is about the same. The American Klan was earlier on the scene but, although its principles were mainly identical with those of Herr Hitler's disciples, it lacked the ability to impose itself on any except the most helpless members of a community.

Its members did not dare run about in the daylight undertaking to commit outrages against masses of the people. They sneaked around at night in overwhelming numbers to abuse a person or an isolated family and issued their doctrins of spitefulness from the darkness. The more abundant lifers professed to hate this, but when Hugo L. Black, who had been a Nazi in Alabama and behaved as a Nazi in the senate, was appointed to the Supreme court he became one of the great all time liberals.

The better people profess to hate the well-to-do, the wealthy, the managers of great industries, and all economic royalists, but it is all right to marry their daughters, accept jobs from them, and live their lives. No New Dealer was ever found where he couldn't make an advantageous connection with the people he has denounced and the practices he has excoriated. These better folk are also opposed to violence unless it is committed with a benediction from the higher life, whereupon even murder becomes liberal and the advocates of force and terrorism are recognized as among the better elements of the elect.

President Green of the American Federation of Labor was an able leader of organized labor until John Lewis grabbed a club in each hand and with a war chest filled by his miners jumped in to destroy everything he could reach. Thereupon Mr. Green became unintelligent, backward, and a betrayer of the cause of humanity. Homer Martin was a good man until he found he was going to lose the automobile union to the communists. When he put up a fight against that he became an absconder from the true life. David Dubinsky of the International Garment Workers' union was a power for good until he smelled subversive activities in the C. I. O. Since then the truly good do not recognize him.

Hugh Johnson was a force on the sunny side when he was storming around the country carrying the blue eagle of the NRA and trying to skin every Tory alive, but he is Lucifer now that he is taking the hide off the New Dealers who know that they are superior people because they are the only ones thoroughly enjoying themselves and getting the best of everything.

The United States senators who have been defeating and deflating the purge would have been the fair haired boys of the revolution if they had allowed Mr. Roosevelt to pack the Supreme court with judges to whom he could have given judicial opinions.

Ferdinand Pecora was a ball of fire when he was conducting a New Deal purge of Wall street, and in his instance it must be conceded that he has lost no luster in relieving Mr. Hines of Tammany by giving him a mistrial which may save the New York New Deal state ticket this fall from defeat.

The truly good are indeed very good.

Editorial of the Day

JOHN, A PRESIDENT'S SON.

[Bloomington Daily Pantagraph.]

No, gentle reader, this is not another piece about John, whose father is now in the White House [in case you are weary of reading such pieces].

It is another John, and another President.

This John also has a job, but perhaps he does not now work for $18 a week, seeing he has held down the job for some time.

He took the job when his father was President and, like the more recently publicized John, he "began at the bottom."

Now he is purchasing agent for a railroad which, he says, keeps him too busy to "dabble in politics."

That's why John was surprised when his district chose him as delegate-at-large to the state convention. He thought it must have been a "mistake," but it wasn't.

John is a member of the advisory board of his home town, a public service he is glad to give, he says. Not only for the sake of his town, but to "keep the party alive."

This John is also happily married; his wife a governor's daughter.

Maybe by this time, putting two and two together several times, you may have guessed that this John's last name is Coolidge, his father was "Silent Cal," and he exemplifies many of the same qualities which made his father in the White House one of the most admired of Presidents and exemplar of national thrift in the era known for "Coolidge prosperity."

CZECH AND DOUBLE CZECH.

Here's a notation from the city editor which says re recent article on the Couch tomb in Lincoln park: "The park board records are supposed to show that the Couch family fought and won their case in the Supreme court to keep the burial vault in the park." We wouldn't know, of course, without research; and our aim is to make this column painless to its editor and readers. But we know who would know, and we might ring him up some day. His name is Frederick H. Wood; his address is 1316 East 54th street, and he is the son of James Hilliard Wood, co-trustee of the Couch estate and its manager from 1860 to 1898. All bets in this matter may be referred to him, and we hope that he is not pestered to death.

Here's a letter from J. A. Golden of Elmhurst, re "How to the Line" research, citing "A Desk Book of Idioms" [Funk & Wagnalls, 1923], which has something inconclusive to say about the origin of this column's slogan. It quotes from a publication that is later than the Roscoe Conkling speech in 1880. Never mind; we are working on clews that carry the slogan back to Chaucer or Shakespeare or some other classic of English literature.

Here's a report from Fred V. Duncan of Chicago that the former Spanish gunboat Sandoval is rotting away in the mud of the Kinnickinnic river in Milwaukee. He proceeds to give her full history from Clydebank, Scotland, 1895, to Guantanamo, Cuba, in 1898 and afterwards. The Linemaster himself has been aboard this obsolete craft when she was laid up in the Kalamazoo river, near Saugatuck [summer of 1924]. Old boats, like old houses, stir him to the gills. He may write the full history of the Sandoval soon. In the meantime "Tear not her tattered ensign down."

SONNET TO HALSTED STREET.

Strange cemetery this, where dead men come
To ghost their lives with others of their kind
Till life in kindly mood downs a dark thumb
And they may leave the cares of earth behind.
Now sullenly in broken shoes they go
Across the bitter, unrelenting stone,
Requiring only food, a drink or so,
The privilege of being left alone.

What hopes or dreams they had in earlier years,
What love or pride, assurance against need,
All, all are gone, and past despair or tears
They linger on, devoid of law or creed.
And we who pass them catch the alley's breath;
The stench of drunkenness, and filth, and death.

Turn Backward, Time.

Saw the old orchard the other day. Thirty-five years since I last munched a Dutchess there. Glorious it was then—Dutchess, Winesaps, Greenings, Maiden Blush, and Blue Crabs. And now?

A few jagged trunks, grown high with weeds. How cruel and inexorable, time! On the edge a fast filling pit where stood the log house; near by, the remnant of a once handsome lilac bush, where Pa smoked his pipe. He's gone, too. A few straggling raspberry whips, where once grew a luscious row where Ma got her jam. I often wonder, Ma, why you left us so soon. We never got to know each other very well, did we? You'd feel pretty bad if you saw the orchard now. Pa kept it neat and clean and took care of it the way one should. But after we moved I guess the man who took the place didn't care much about apple trees. And I don't care much about a man who lets beautiful trees die. He made a lot of money, but he couldn't make a tree—he couldn't even take care of one.

OLD SHOES ARE BEST.

You look so old and shabby where you rest
There on my closet floor—and yet I like you best.
You've served me well in fair and foul weather,
And we have traveled many a mile together.
You've been my gypsy shoes—you took me places
Away from beaten paths, familiar faces:
One time it was a country lane all gay
With flowers—again, a field of new mown hay
That lured us on our way; and we have stood
On mossy banks of rivers, tramped a fragrant wood.
And once, at dawn, we climbed a green clad hill
Just as the sun came up—a wondrous thrill!
Old shoes, you bring me dreams—dreams that will last Long after summer days have passed.

COLIC IN INFANTS.

THE fond mother whose offspring is not bothered with colic is fortunate indeed, for during the early months of her baby's life about one out of five will be so afflicted. This is the "business" that qualifies many a young husband as an expert floorwalker.

The origin is thought to be due to gas in the alimentary tract, where even a small bubble may be responsible for marked pain. On the other hand some tots can harbor a relatively large volume and yet fail to manifest the slightest discomfort. The explanation appears to be that it is not the amount which brings on the complaint so much as the reaction of the bowel to where it is. This means that if some ballooning of the intestine occurs, trouble will come. The common habit of sucking the finger or the fist is nearly always accompanied by the ingestion of air.

From the nutritional point of view the digestibility of edibles is important. In other words, how much residue remains? Mother's milk possesses very little, but that from the cow leaves a substantial portion. If, for example, a baby develops abdominal cramps on breast milk alone, the addition of evaporated milk as a supplementary feeding may add to the bulk and hence hasten the passage of flatus.

As we can well imagine, constipation may be a factor and precautions should be exercised to the end that the stools shall not become hard and dry. Furthermore, they should be frequent enough so that profuse, bulky movements are not formed, as many little ones will cry because of the violent contractions necessary to promote evacuation.

The technique of feeding must be studied. An upright position is desirable so that swallowed air will be belched without effort. The reason for this is that this substance may be trapped when the child is lying down and a sizable quantity may be carried into the intestine whereupon uneasiness ensues. Many mothers have learned the trick of interrupting the meal, holding the baby over the shoulder, thus encouraging him to "burp." In fact, some young hopefuls will stop nursing until this procedure is complied with. Placing junior on his stomach for a half hour or so after each meal will allow wind to find its way backward via the mouth.

What are the signs of an attack? The first characteristic is screaming and usually the infant will clench the fists and draw up the knees, hips, and elbows. Nothing seems to appease him. Nourishment is refused and occasionally the episode will last for hours. The exact time of appearance of these paroxysms is difficult to explain as some children will be free except at a certain hour each day. Many will sleep well at night only to become colicky the next morning. Most mothers are able to make the diagnosis and any frantic youngster who refuses the bottle is a possible victim. There is no fever or vomiting, although crying is violent—not the fretful whine so typical of illness.

Treatment consists in removing the gas and filling the stomach with food. The first suggestion is to lay the little patient on his side and insert a glycerin suppository in the rectum. This may be held in place for ten minutes or longer. As a result, gas will be expelled via the bowel. Soon the nipple will be taken if enough has been expelled. It may be necessary to repeat the measure two or three times before complete relief is afforded. The relaxation of the anal opening increases the movements of the intestine and carries pockets from higher to lower levels. Even though a stool should follow hold the suppository in place.

Failure to alleviate the spasm by this means may be laid to the fact that its use is not persisted in long enough. Enemas are far less effective; in fact, they may prove irritating to the delicate lining of the rectum. Heat, gentle massage, and changing the position of the sufferer from time to time are all valuable.

AVOID MUSCLE FRICTION.

E. A. S. writes: What is bursitis? What are the symptoms? What is the cause? Can it be cured? What diet is usually prescribed?

REPLY.

The bursae are natural pads so placed as to prevent friction when muscles are contracted—for example, on the knee cap or the point of the elbow. Bursitis means inflammation within a bursa. Traumatic bursitis is caused usually by chronic and repeated irritation, but may be due to a blow. The most general symptom is pain. Treatment depends upon the type and the part involved. Sometimes rest and heat will be sufficient. Occasionally one of the structures will need to be removed surgically. Diet is not a factor.

BLAND DIET EXPLAINED.

O. M. writes? I have been advised to use a bland diet. Will you explain what this means?

REPLY.

A diet containing but little roughage [fiber]. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for our leaflet, the bland diet.

THAT'S POSSIBLE.

M. B. writes: Can lack of vitamin C cause rheumatism?

REPLY.

While infection is probably the most important factor, there are other causes. It is just possible that a deficiency of vitamin C may play a part.

MORTGAGE RENEWAL.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I hold a mortgage on a certain property and this mortgage was due in January, 1938.

1. The property owner does not want to renew this mortgage until January, 1939.

2. Will this in any way affect the mortgage and [3] is it possible that I will lose out in any way in the future?

S. P.

1. In general, we regard the renewal as operating more to the advantage of the debtor in preventing foreclosure than to the advantage of the creditor. Even without renewal, the original notes would continue enforcible in favor of the creditor for the full period of the statute of limitations, which is ten years from the maturity date.

2. No.

3. We see no danger in the bare facts that you state.

WPA WORK AND WORKERS.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 15.—As a constant reader of THE TRIBUNE and a believer in your policies, I feel justified in making what I believe is a constructive criticism. I have noted your campaign of criticism against the apparent laziness of the WPA. I think most people have noted this condition and feel the same as you do concerning it.

However, I am inclined to believe there are still a large number of WPA men who do not like this simple dole and who would much rather have an honest to goodness job. I think much of this trouble is caused not by the laborers, but by gross mismanagement and the undertaking of well nigh ridiculous jobs. I believe we all owe an apology to these so-called shovel leaners. Why not attack this ulcer from the angle of the cause rather than by swearing at the symptom?

P. A. J.

IT WAS ORIGINALLY POLAND'S.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—J. B. Moos in his letter of Sept. 12 says, "It is true that the Polish corridor was taken from Germany." I wish to advise him to look into any encyclopedia or reliable history book, where he will find the information that "The Free City of Danzig and the Polish corridor, on the partition of Poland, fell to the lot of Prussia in 1793."

Therefore, tell me how the Polish corridor could have been taken from Germany if at one time it originally belonged to Poland?

The truth is that Germany was forced to return to Poland something which she held illegally for 125 years.

BOLESLAW S. PAWLICKI.

REMEMBER THE ALAMO!

Chicago, Sept. 15.—At this time, when everything is so momentous in Europe [especially as regards your great mother country, England], "Remember the Alamo." Do you remember how for the meager pottage of $14,000,000 Mexico was despoiled, grabbed, robbed of more than half of her territory? What do you think about it? You might say that "it was paid for," but what a price! It was your own price, the price of robbery. However, you now want $400,000,000 for the junk that is actually located in a few square miles around Tampico. Shame on you!

F. PEREZ.

THE STATE LAW APPLIES.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—The item regarding the enforcement of the women's eight hour law which appeared in the Voice of the People recently, signed F. M., is worthy of a reply.

Yes, this law does apply to grocery chain stores and all other stores. If the girls are working from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m., it is a drastic violation of the law and should be reported without delay to this division, which has charge of the enforcement of the law.

Superintendent, Women's and Children's Employment, Illinois Department of Labor.

"NOW OR NEVER FOR A PARK."

Chicago, Sept. 13.—A suggestion to H. K. Seltzer: Each trip along Doty highway convinces me that the reedy area between the highway and Lake Calumet should be converted into a park. It is now or never. Why stand idle with such a prospect; not a house to remove; just to fill in and build. The fine highway you put through for motorists would be the western boundary.

S. S. HENDERSON.

FOR THE EMBALMERS.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—I concur heartily with the recent letter in your columns on the "Plight of the Embalmer," with comments on the picketing of undertakers in Chicago.

It was my unfortunate experience to have this situation forcibly brought home to me through the death of a close friend. When I objected to the undertaker about the presence of the pickets and received no adequate explanation, I inquired of the men employed and discovered that the funeral director received $22 a week; still my friend's funeral came to $645.

It is unfortunate that the undertakers as a whole should be put in a bad light because many refuse to pay a living wage.

WM. E. SHARP.

FOR THE UNDERTAKERS.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—My experience as a friend of one of the leading undertakers on the west side proves to me that the embalmers are at fault in picketing or even unionizing for that matter.

My friend pays his embalmer $20 a week, gives him a nice place to sleep, treats him as one of the family, and furthermore gives him a week's vacation each year.

Considering the drastic reduction in the price of funerals in the last few years, the comparatively short time required to become an embalmer, I think the embalmers are unjustified in picketing such a fine body of men.

CHARLES JOSEPH O'RIORDAN.

THE BOOKIES AND ONE FAMILY.

Morganfield, Ky., Sept. 15.—I notice comments in your columns about the bookies. Here's what has happened in my life. Ten years ago we located here in this small community. We had a fine business. Everything was going smooth until my husband became interested in the town's favored sport—horse races. Little by little the business was dumped in my care. My husband was too busy with the ponies. Then I found to my sorrow that he lost everything. Now we're living from hand to mouth. The people here have lost their respect for him. The bookie in the meantime is still having a good business and lives a life of luxury. But our family is deprived of everyday necessities.

I hope this letter will give some of your people in Chicago a little broader knowledge of the bookies. If my husband had become the greatest drunkard the damage wouldn't have been so great.

THE SPENDTHRIFT REGIME.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 15.—Can't something be done to stop the White House from spending the taxpayers' money for political purposes?

An instance I know of is a community building being constructed in a town of 500 in this state. The WPA is putting up $35,000 and the town $15,000. When they get it completed there will be no use for it. They won't know what to do with it.

I think the President is scheming to make himself a dictator. The whole darn bunch around him are incompetents; Hopkins spending billions; the country is rotten with communism. Roosevelt has never opened his mouth about this. Keep hammering at the New Deal.

C. MCARTHUR.

THE TRACK AND THE SMOKE SHOP.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Any one can go to the race track and bet all the money he or she can get and it's all on the up-and-up. You're a society celebrity if you appear there and your picture will be in THE TRIBUNE'S society column.

But just go to your corner smoke shop and bet 50 cents, and boy, what a crook you turned out to be!

The state controls all the Illinois race tracks and takes their money and it's all O. K. But how loud they yelled including all the 100 per cent [?] perfect newspapers when Mayor Kelly had an ordinance passed whereby the city would get its rightful share of the money bet away from the tracks.

ALBERT RAWSON.

CRIMPING OUR LIBERTIES.

Niles Center, Ill., Sept. 12.—So! Secretary of State Hughes wants us to have our photographs on our driver's license cards! Just another scheme tending toward establishing the continental police card that every one in Europe must carry. Something more to crimp the liberty of the American citizen! It is just another avenue of taxation. Cheap today, but, once established, it can be raised as high as the politicians want it.

PUSH NORTHWEST SIDE 'L' HIGHWAY WITH PETITIONS

Action Asked on Nine Mile Safety Route.

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago, Cook county, and Illinois administrations were petitioned last night to prepare working specifications for the construction of an elevated highway in Avondale avenue and Kingsbury street from the loop paralleling the North Western railroad to Milwaukee and Foster avenues. The petitions were by resolution at a meeting of the northwest area council of the Chicago Motor club.

Bernard S. Molay.

This council is an affiliation of seventy-eight local improvement clubs with a total of 150,000 members in the northwestern section of Chicago. Bernard S. Molay of the Portage Park chamber of commerce presided at a meeting in the Irving Park Y. M. C. A. which culminated in this advocacy.

Would Slash Driving Time.

"Residents of this area," said Molay, "now have an alternative, in driving to the loop, of detouring three miles by way of the lake front boulevard or taking a crowded and dangerous diagonal such as Milwaukee avenue. In rush hours it's a 32 minute trip of 12 miles by way of the lake front or a 46 minute trip of nine miles by way of Milwaukee avenue. Over an elevated highway, it would be a safe drive of nine miles that could be made in 14 minutes."

George Barton, engineer for the motor club, estimated that the nine miles of elevated highway could be built to accommodate three lanes of trafic in each direction for approximately $9,000,000. He pointed out that existing revenue of the city, county, and state from the gasoline tax is ample for construction, regardless of whether any federal grant might become available.

Ald. William J. Cowhey [41st] mentioned that this $9,000,000 is only a third as much as the estimated cost of a parkway that is being urged for the west side. Barton added that it was no more than is being spent on the lake shore to accommodate northwest side trafic forced to use this indirect route because of the inadequacy of direct pavements.

Emphasize Safety Factor.

George J. Eckhoff of the Norwood Park chamber of commerce, Edward Boyle of the Northwest Federation of Improvement clubs, and Vincent C. Rozycki of the Northwest Civic association emphasized the benefits of elevated highway construction in reducing accidents. They pointed out that the outer drives have demonstrated the safety value of a pavement free of cross trafic of pedestrians and of parking—characteristics shared by the elevated design.

James E. Bulger, a director of the motor club, said that the outer drive has only one accident involving a personal injury or a death for every 1,250,000 miles of travel. This he contrasted with the one accident for every 55,000 miles of travel on the broad pavements at grade of South Parkway between 51st and 35th streets.

"Motorists are not the only ones concerned with this safety factor," said Otto B. Stunkel, president of the Austin-Higgins Improvement association. "Women and children pedestrians form a large percentage of those injured on grade streets. Furthermore, the street cars could give better service if the streets were relieved of their automobile congestion."

Stresses Need of Organization.

Frank J. Tomczak of the Northwest Manufacturers' association, a former alderman, cited his own experiences in public office to illustrate his statement that this section of Chicago must organize if it hopes to obtain an elevated highway.

F. T. Rounds of the North Mayfair Improvement association, declared that Chicago is a generation behind New York in automobile transportation. He described New York's progress in building elevated highways.

Speeder Ordered to Pay $25, but He Must Earn It

Vernon Elliott, 19 years old, was ordered yesterday by Judge John Gutknecht in Trafic court to contribute $7 to the fund for automobile accident victims as a punishment for speeding. "But," said the judge, "you are to earn this money from your parents by washing dishes and beating rugs at 25 cents an hour." Elliott lives at 5107 Blackstone avenue.

Minor Trafic Violators to Go to School, Not Court

Melrose Park has established a trafic school for motorists who violate the lesser trafic laws in the suburb. The school will start on Sept. 29. The instructor will be Police Chief Robert Wigglesworth. Instead of facing fines, offenders will attend lectures on safe driving and obedience to trafic laws. Those who ignore summons to the school will be taken to court.

TEACHER, VICTIM OF AUTO CRASH, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Miss Alice Kraeger, 32 years old, 5220 Kenwood avenue, a teacher at Wells High school, died yesterday in the Illinois Central hospital. She was injured Tuesday when she was struck by an automobile at the south drive of the Midway and Dorchester avenue. Matthew King, 15 years old, 6230 Blackstone avenue, driver, was ordered to attend the inquest today.

Joseph Grailikowski, 54 years old, 8736 Mackinaw avenue, a lakes sailor, was killed early today when he was struck by an automobile as he was walking across Indianapolis avenue at 103d street. Joseph Fertel, 23, of 6733 Ridgeland avenue, the driver, told East Side police he could not avoid the accident.

An unidentified man, poorly dressed, was killed as he stepped under the viaduct at Roosevelt road and State street last night. He was about 55 years old. The north bound auto that struck him was driven by Thomas Hoey, 8218 Indiana avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 569 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 436 were killed in Chicago. In the same period 13,786 were injured in trafic accidents within the city.

MOTORIST FINED $100 IN SPITE OF GOTTA DRAG STAR

Gus Lindbeck just pointed to the official emblem of a state legislator on his car when the policeman motioned him to stop on the outer drive. But the policeman wasn't impressed and ordered him to pull over to the curb. Then Lindbeck admitted he had no right to the emblem.

Gus Lindbeck.

When this was explained in Safety court yesterday Judge Stephen Adamowski fined Lindbeck $100. Then the judge issued a warant for the arrest of Lindbeck's brother, Carl, when told that the car belonged to him. Carl, Gus said, found the emblem three years ago and put it on the car. Judge Adamowski set Dec. 15 for hearing on a motion to vacate the fine against Gus Lindbeck, who lives at 8551 Cregier avenue.

In another case, Stanley Novak of 8723 Saginaw avenue, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail for drunken driving.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

EdithWharton's Art Revealed in Unfinished Tale

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Buccaneers," by Edith Wharton. [Appleton-Century, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

Before her death last August Edith Wharton was working on a novel which promised to be one of her best—a story of the social conquest of London by "the Americans" in the 1870s. Its theme offered Mrs. Wharton an unrivaled opportunity to wield her skilled and trenchant pen as the swift social rapier it could be when she so wished.

The work she had done is published as "The Buccaneers" exactly as she left it, together with the brief scenario she wrote of the story and which outlines it to the ending. The resultant volume is of unusual interest to all Mrs. Wharton's devoted readers and of intense interest to other writers and to students of the novel. Not only is this unfinished draft an excellent tale in itself, but it shows how one of the greatest novelists of her day did her work.

Obviously—as she said they did in her autobiography—her characters took matters into their own hands. This "work in progress" shows that hers were "characters in search of an author" and she was not an author in search of characters. They change as the pages develop, not according to her preconceived plan but in accord with inevitabilities in themselves.

These pages also show that even in early drafts of a novel Mrs. Wharton rounded out her descriptions with the same nicety, the same perfection of chosen words that made her novels really finished products. They also show a slightly more satiric incision than she usually permitted herself in her finished work. But they are not overwritten either in style or in amount—which tells us that Edith Wharton wrote with precision and with restraint even for her own private critical eye. "The Buccaneers," unfinished, is a better novel than most.

Jack London Biography Is a Readable Offering.

"Sailor on Horseback," by Irving Stone. [Houghton-Mifflin, $3.] Published Tuesday.

Among the famous novelists of their day, Edith Wharton and Jack London were probably farthest removed from one another in background, in foreground, in personal and social philosophy, in psychology, in literary method. As the one wrote slowly and with infinite effort to produce the exact delicate shading of her intent, the other's words rushed like a mountain stream and became a torrent of power which made him the best known author in the world. [That is no exaggeration. In countries where no other American author's name was ever spoken "Jaklunnon" was a household word.]

Irving Stone now tells the powerful life story of Jack London in "Sailor on Horseback"—the title which Jack himself chose for the autobiography he intended to write. Many readers know much of that story already through Jack London's novels [such as "Martin Eden," which was plainly autobiographical] and through the frankly autobiographical "John Barleycorn."

A popular magazine has pointed out that Mr. Stone has lifted paragraphs bodily from "John Barleycorn," merely changing the "I" to "he." Mr. Stone, in "Lust for Life," used much of the Van Gogh journals in the same way. But, whether the words are his or his hero's, Irving Stone's biography might be accorded the same praise that he gives to "John Barleycorn," which, he says "reads like a novel, is fresh, beautifully honest, simple, and moving."

From the first pages, when Jack London's illegitimate birth is made plain, through all the phases of a life which included marital infidelities, drunkenness, and a Gargantuan stubbornness in his battle with life and with his writing, Jack London emerges a superman as well as a superwriter. "Sailor on Horseback" is biography of the popular rather than of the definitive type, but for that very reason perhaps it will be one of the year's most read books.

James Farrell's Novel Continues Epic Work.

"No Star Is Lost," by James T. Farrell. [Vanguard, $3.] Published Thursday.

If Jack London were alive today, his favorite young author might well be James T. Farrell. He might wish that Mr. Farrell cared to travel more in his work, but the intense and brutal reality with which Mr. Farrell's pages are filled would unquestionably seem to a man of Jack London's creative creed superb art.

"No Star Is Lost," like "A World I Never Made" [which has the same characters], is the infinitly detailed day by day life story of the children in an Irish family on Chicago's south side. If, too, is terrible and moving and bitter and strangely underlaid by tenderness and by the implicit tragedy of childhood. The grownups in it brawl and backbite, use language which is rasping to sensitive ears. The children, who are frightened and ashamed of their drunken relatives, alternately steal and share openhandedly. As the reader's eyes are glued to the 637 pages he says to himself [the title of a long forgotten play] "The Terrible Truth."

"No Star Is Lost" is written almost wholly in dialog. It "marches" so skilfully through that dialog that the reader is scarcely conscious of the fact that the characters' words have been the lens, photographically recording, and not the author's sharp observation.

Slowly the design of Mr. Farrell's creative dream is taking shape. He will do for the little part of Chicago which he knows what Jules Romains is doing for the wider canvas of Paris, what Proust did for Faubourg Parisian society. He will write the epic of a group. Almost as slowly as his design is emerging is critical judgment giving him his place in American letters.

You Can't Sleep? These Two Books Should Be Helpful

"You Can Sleep Well," by Edmund Jacobson, M. D. [Whittlesey House, $2.]

"Sleep!" by Ray Giles. [Bobbs-Merrill, $1.75.] Both books published Monday.

Two volumes offering boon to the victim of sleepless nights were published this week. One is by a doctor, who has spent much of his life in scientific research concerning relaxation, the other by a journalist who asked some 1,500 prominent and typical persons why and how they did or did not sleep well, and has compiled their answers into a helpful manual.

Dr. Edmund Jacobson believes that sleeplessness or nonrefreshing sleep is caused by tension and that only when one is truly relaxed does sleep become "chief nourisher in life's feast." He tells how to achieve relaxation. It is as simple as just not being tense. . . . IF you know how.

The two books were so fascinating to this nonsleeper that they kept her awake most of the night! F. B.

British Policy—Where Does It Go from Here?

BY CARL WIEGMAN.

"Peace with the Dictators?" by Norman Angell. [Harper, $3.]

"Britain and the Dictators," by R. W. Seton-Watson. [Macmillan, $3.50.]

"Unto Cæsar," by F. A. Voigt. [Putnam, $3.]

Recent statements of President Roosevelt have been interpreted as pledges to support Great Britain against dictatorships. This raises the question: What is British foreign policy, and what is it likely to be? Here are three books that give a large part of the answer.

Sir Norman Angell states it most plainly by the honest method of doffing his British monocle. He first recites the case for Germany and Italy, better than any of their official spokesmen ever has done. Then he gives the conflicting points of view of the British press and public. Finally he delivers his own views, which include an ambitious formula for preventing war.

He suggests that Britain abandon its ancient policies of divide and rule and of keeping its powder dry without telling anybody when it's going to shoot. This done, he urges that Britain and the other democracies should tell Hitler and Mussolini boldly and explicitly what they will stand for and what they won't stand for. Then he would try to give Germany and Italy something of what they need. Sir Norman says hopefully: "Britain, as 'owner' of a quarter of the world, alone can make the offers which would show that the purpose of her power is not monopolization, but a widening of economic opportunity."

American readers will suspect that this is easier said than done, especially if they read "Britain and the Dictators," by R. W. Seton-Watson, professor of history at the University of London. This careful study of British foreign policy from Versailles to Germany's seizure of Austria makes it abundantly clear that if Britain is looking out for anybody except Britain, the change of heart is very recent indeed. Her scuttling of the league to let Italy grab Ethiopia [described by Prof. Seton-Watson in more academic language] makes British pleas for international law and order sound belatedly sanctimonious.

Prof. Seton-Watson also has a formula for peace—an Anglo-German accord. He, too, calls for Britain to be generous, but his realistic historian's mind won't let him be too specific or optimistic.

A third view of Britain and what can be expected of her is given by F. A. Voigt, foreign affairs editor of the Manchester Guardian. "Unto Cæsar" is almost a religious tract, brilliantly done, but sometimes as dogmatic as a speech by Adolf Hitler.

Mr. Voigt defines Marxian socialism and national socialism as secular religions, which "have enthroned the modern Cæsar, collective man, implacable enemy of the individual soul." He rejects the view that Germany might be appeased by concessions, and pleads for British rearmament. Unless Britain is strong, he says, "Germany will be to her as Sparta was to Athens." In other words, rearm and wait for the explosion. It sounds like 1914 to us.

2 Recent Volumes Cover Entire History of Building

Two recent books cover the entire history of building. "Changing the Skyline," by Paul Starrett [Whittlesey House, $3], is the autobiography of one of America's master builders, who built the most famous early New York skyscraper, the Flatiron building, and the Empire State building. "Master Builders of Sixty Centuries," by John Anderson Miller [Appleton-Century, $3], tells the story of the great engineering triumphs of the ages.

Looking Over Latest Books

An American Family's Thirty Years in Mexico.

"The Silver Magnet," by Grant Shepherd. [Dutton, $3.]

This is the story of the thirty years an American family spent in Mexico mining silver in the state of Chihuahua—from 1880 to 1911. A great deal of history was being made in Mexico during those decades, but of a different nature than current happenings, for it was a fairly calm and orderly period. Grant Shepherd credits this to President Porfirio Diaz, the man who defied Napoleon III. As head of his country Diaz was a somewhat ruthless disciplinarian, but Mr. Shepherd believes this was all in the public good.

Yet "The Silver Magnet" is not so much history as it is the sort of story an American would be expected to write of long occupation on foreign soil—if he managed to retain his American characteristics, which this author did. He went there at the age of 5 and his life during the next fifteen years develops the best writing in the book.

Long before the average lad in Illinois or Iowa is out of the cap pistol stage Shepherd was carrying a real .45 and helping guard the mine pay roll. He grew up on a burro's back in an atmosphere of cock fights, hard drinking, long hunting expeditions in the mountains, and bull fights. It proved good background for his later years, which have been equally adventurous. P. W.

A Wistful Story with a Gemlike Sparkle.

"Fruit in Season," by Anthony Thorne. [Random, $2.50.]

Here is a jewel of a story, its many sides gleaming and sparkling in the sun of a brilliant wit. It's as light and debonair as a diamond and its setting is one of ultra-sophistication and charm. It is the tale of four little English children, William, Catherine, Glen, and Douce, and the effect upon their entire lives of an enormous, romantic, and superb old country mansion, Runeham hall.

The first part of the book reveals their childhood there—a brief interlude cruelly interrupted by the death of their mother. Seventeen years elapse before they all meet again, brought together by Catherine, the eldest, who loves Runeham hall more deeply, perhaps, than the others.

The four children, now grown up, return to the idyllic scene that had lived always in their memories. And the house takes them in, gives them strength, makes them whole. "Fruit in Season" is a strange, wistful tale that would be completely in the minor key were it not for passages of irresistible humor and delicate mirth. E. W.

An Engrossing Novel with Well-Knit Plot.

"Seek-No-Further," by Constance Robertson. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.]

Constance Robertson has subtitled her engrossing book, "Period Piece," for in it she has mingled the life of an entire period, the sect-mad era of the '70s, when communal colonies crept up like mushrooms in the United States. Some were religious, some spiritualistic, some fanatically humble.

"Seek-No-Further" was a combination of all three. It was a lusty, happy, industrious group, believers in simple things, led by the aged and devout Father Swann. Like the apple from which they took their name, their commune, they believed, was full flavored, the end of heart's desire.

Into this quiet, simple circle came turmoil with the return of young Isaiah Swann from Yale. Isaiah wanted to believe but couldn't. He loved Dinah, whose faith was the deepest of them all. When Isaiah protested the admission into the circle of James Prince, a handsome, rich medium and hypnotist, and his troop of quacks, he was banned.

How Isaiah, borne on by his love for Dinah, struggles against Prince and his attempted destruction of the colony makes an entrancing story. The plot is ingenious and well knit, with some nice, bold melodrama—just right for a period piece. M. W.

Versatile Adventurer Pens Autobiography.

"The Rolling World," by Richard Hallet. [Houghton Mifflin, $3.]

Sailor, hobo, miner, policeman, stoker, naval officer, trapper—these were a few of the colorful rôles played by Richard Hallet in his dramatic career on sea and land and told about in his adventurous autobiography, "The Rolling World." And during all these lively years he combined his sailing, his gold seeking, his coal heaving, his tramping, and his other vocations with fiction writing. Occasionally he got enough from his literary work to enable him to jog on to new scenes and jobs.

Just out of Harvard, he sailed in a windjammer to Australia, where he jumped ship and traveled hundreds of miles with a sailor pal down a dangerous river. That venture ended in a wreck of their homemade craft. He shoveled coal with the temperature 140 degrees in the stokehold of a steamer to London. He was a naval officer during the world war. Then he hoboed it to the far west, where he worked 2,000 feet underground in a copper mine to get cash and literary material.

He fired in a Great Lakes freighter and sailed as correspondent in a naval war game in the Pacific. In between these farflung jobs he returned to his native Maine and wrote fiction. The story of his life is a vigorous, well written, and entertaining autobiography. A. C.

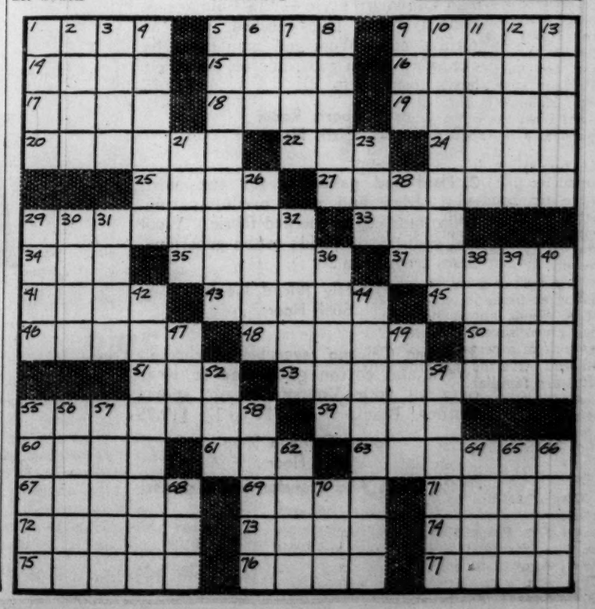
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

In Old Chicago.

[Written in Chicago.]

The rain was beating down and he had taken shelter in the archway of Tribune Tower, where he wiped the moisture carefully from his specs. . . . He looked like Jock Whitney. . . . Actually he was Benny Goodman, who rules the empire of jitterbugs.

"It's funny to be so successful today," he grinned. "Remember when they fired me and my band from Billy Rose's music hall? That was my first Broadway engagement and I couldn't make the grade. I never felt so discouraged. That job meant so much to me, and the band was just beginning to get good. Well, as you say in those 'Listen, Kids' columns, you got to get up off the canvas, Ed, and come back punching. That was only three years ago.

"Sure, I was born here. I had seven brothers, three sisters. One of them is with Bunny Berrigan's band. Fred has his own band. Harry plays bass in our outfit. I started playing a clarinet when I was ten years old. I'm 29 now. From the Kehelah synagogue, here in Chicago, I went to the Green Mill gardens with Arnold Johnson. Helen Morgan and Ruth Etting were there then, too. Then I got my first break with Benny Pollack."

I asked Goodman, emperor of the jitterbug kingdom, to tell me the greatest band he'd ever heard play: "That's easy. Fletcher Henderson's old combination." I asked him the secret of a band's success: "You have to be interesting to the audience, and you have to make it interesting for the musicians all the time. You've got to keep the band hopped up with new arrangements, improvisations. If you keep the band interested, it's a cinch to keep the customers on edge."

"Boys' Town," previewed at the Chicago theater, getting raves. . . . Bing Crosby passing through. . . . William S. Hart passing through. . . . Ellen Drew, Paramount starlet, a Chicagoan, due here for a visit to see her old friends. . . . She's the youngster of whom I wrote in Hollywood playing the lead opposite Ronald Colman in "If I Were King," plus a fat part in "Sing, You Sinners." . . . Weather forecast here: Crisp autumnal weather on the morrow. . . . Next thing you know you'll be reading "Chicago Fears Purdue." . . . Benny Rubin, Abe Lyman, Harry Richman, Frances Farmer, Veloz and Yolanda some of the theatrical biggies in this town at the moment. . . . But everybody fearing and discussing the Sudeten powder keg.

Last impressions of New York: Acting as master of ceremonies at the Astor roof party of the legitimate theater council. . . . Brock Pemberton, Gilbert Miller, Morris Gest, William A. Brady, John Krimsky, Frank Gillmore at ringside tables. . . . Sir Cedric Hardwicke strikes a somber note, an allusion to the war scare that grips England. . . . He repeats a line from "Shadow and Substance" that is apropos: "There is strength in laughter." . . . Zorina, York and King, Robert Chisholm, Vivienne Segal, Audrey Christie, Marjorie Gainsworth, Harrison and Fisher entertain. . . . Fisher dances superbly, but his feet rather than his heart are in it. . . . He is Czech, and his mother and all of his relatives are on the fringe of Sudeten.

The trip from New York by air is bumpy almost all the way. . . . I blame it on the hostess. . . . Her name is Miss Gale. . . . There is a fifteen minute delay in the takeoff from Newark, because the air is full of transport planes seeking to land. . . . Six ships are circling over the field waiting for the runways to clear so that they can glide in.

An official of American Airlines tells me that not long ago an unusual thing happened. . . . With six transports circling above Newark in the fog one of their pilots suddenly spotted a little private plane darting through the murk. . . . The transport pilot notified the field, but they couldn't contact the private plane, as it had no radio equipment.

So the six transport planes were shunted hurriedly to other airports for fear that the private plane might zoom through the fog into one of them. . . . With air trafic multiplying, the problem of more landing fields is becoming a major aviation problem.

Nice to be in Chicago again . . . Memories of Chicago: the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Soldiers' field, Mickey Walker's fights against Ace Hudkins and Tiger Flowers, the Army-Navy football game, the Jackie Fields-Black Jack Thompson panic.

But I remember best the time I ran away to Chicago to join the U. S. marines. . . . The navy doctor nixed me because I didn't have a birth certificate, and when my money ran out I worked in Thompson's restaurants in the daytime and at the Illinois Central freight yards at night. . . . How I used to envy the sailors from the Great Lakes station, snug in their short blue jackets and white knitted hats. . . . Time marches on, yes indeed.

Good Morning!

"Slander House?" Yes, that title's all right. Pat also would be "Monkey House" or "The Cattery"—as you will see for yourselves.

The scenes of this photoplay, adapted from a novel by Madeline Woods, a well known Chicago publicity woman, are laid in a de luxe beauty emporium, principally patronized by fat and lazy married women who have suddenly realized the menace to their soft existences in women who have kept themselves looking tops.

As massage relaxes unused muscles and rubs away indolence acquired avoirdupois, tongues also relax and the miaowing congresses held daily result in various crises which I shall let the picture reveal unto you.

The shop is run by a young and beautiful "Madame Helene"—once plain Helen Smith of Tenth avenue. "Madame" when the story opens is engaged to a nice, dull and wealthy young surgeon of the upper class, who, I may as well tell you, loses her eventually to a determined race horse man who has loved and pursued the fair lady ever since he laid eyes on her. Helene's right hand woman is a girl from the old neighborhood, engaged to a newspaper columnist. . . .

[This layout, as you will surmise, is conducive to DOIN'S!] And doin's there are, comical, sad, exciting. A pet monkey, brought to the shop by one of the customers, provides several really hearty laughs for the observer.

This isn't a great picture, and the dialog at times is only average. But Miss Woods knows her women and has given several shrewd characterizations of a certain type with which all who serve the feminine body beautiful are familiar.

Acting is satisfactory, as are staging and direction.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

More about the high hairdress:

Remember when short hair came in? A lot of people said then that we women would rue the day we tinkered with the natural hairline in back. Well, those prophets really had something there. Years of trimming and snipping and sometimes even using clippers on the backs of feminine necks haven't produced hairlines that are as good as the illustrations.

Half the charm of the high hairdress is that clean, small girl line whooshing up the back of the neck. The only trouble with the pretty idea is that for most of us that nice clean line is hard to attain and maintain. The neckline is more important than it ever was before. Keep it clean, girls—if you have straggly, heavy hair drooping every which way be sure you don't let the world know about it.

One of the smartest salons, where they've been doing these hair styles longer than most places, has the solution in wax treatments that remove all the fuzz and leave the neck immaculate. It's an excellent idea.

The treatment is expertly administered so there isn't any discomfort. Waxes, as you probably know, are splendid for removing superfluous hair. But when you attempt to use them yourself and your timing is wrong you can do yourself some damage and cause yourself some pain.

One treatment will keep your neck free of fuzz for several weeks. And for the longer little hairs that tumble down it's suggested that you use wave setting lotion or lacker. It keeps the coiffure looking trim in the back.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

MOVIE CLOSEUP

He's master of ceremonies there this week, you know, and he has with him the Harvest Moon dancers, winners of the late Harvest Moon contest sponsored by the New York Daily News. . . . Also Mr. Sullivan shows scenes from pictures of long ago, featuring then popular actors. This series of reels is called "Great Firsts of Hollywood," and the silent stars who reappear before you are William S. Hart, Theda Bara, Mary Pickford, Milton Sills, Wallace Beery, Charlie Chaplin, Ben Turpin, and Al Jolson.

The stage show includes acts with Benny Ruben, the Lathrop Brothers and Virginia Lee, Jerry Adler, famous for his harmonica wizardry, and Ginger Harmon, a "hot" singer.

Ice in the feature movie [reviewed in tomorrow's paper], paprika in the stage show. Is everybody happy? B&K hopetheyhopetheyhope!

Stores Feature Swedish Trend in Furnishings

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

During Home Furnishings week, which opens in all Chicago stores today, the trend toward Swedish design will be in the limelight. You'll see much furniture of simplified classic lines, graceful and livable, that goes under the name of Swedish modern. And the natural wood finishes, used so much in Scandinavia, are high style notes this fall. We call them "wheat," "harvest," "amber," "honey," and a number of other names.

More than one store has done an entire model house in this new furniture. The Swedish influence is seen not only in the chairs, tables, couches, and beds but in the wall colors, the textured rugs, the draperies and upholsteries that have that hand-crafted look and that wear so well.

And Swedish modern need not be expensive. A genuine mahogany bookcase in a blond tone is priced under $20, a telephone table under $15, and a three piece bedroom grouping is available for less than $100. In the bedroom pieces dresser, chest, and bed are of a mahogany which has been given a darker-than-blond finish—one that is more mellow, a warm taffy color. Interiors are of birch and other hard woods, expertly finished. The dresser has a large wood framed oval mirror that is most attractive.

A living room display features a custom built sofa made for family comfort. Its frame is of sturdy hard wood in a natural finish. Spring filled cushions rest on a spring base and they're covered in a new mohair frieze that's said to keep its color better than any other fabric.

The cool Swedish tones of this fabric will make an interesting background for the vivid accents you'll use to finish the color scheme. Sofa and chair in burgundy, or in blue, or cherry red, or turquoise, or yellow-green, or Swedish coral, or cedar or beige are reasonably priced and come with a five year moth insurance.

These Gadgets Keep Hair Up, Your Hats On

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Even the carefree millinery makers have realized how complicated life can be made by skittery little hats to be anchored to a fluff of hair. After rising at dawn to struggle with a new hair do, a goodly supply of hair pins and combs and the unusual weariness in the arms from a practically unknown exercise, tempers fray if another struggle seems inevitable. So here are the latest aids for keeping the hat on the head.

One milliner has invented the elastic hair band, an almost invisible braid of human hair that is easy to attach to any sort of a hat. You can take it from hat to hat as you will. It's not high priced, but you will consider it worth a small fortune after you've discovered what a slick anchor it is. It is grand for exacting shoppers who have protested against the unsightly showing of an elastic. This fine braid of hair comes in shades to match your own crop of curls.

Another anchor stunt is the hat sold with side combs already attached. These helpful twins also vanish from view after the hat is on. And they hold the hat on and curls up and are guaranteed against disaster. Another hat designer attaches one of the old fashoned little girl pompadour combs at the back, this a bandeaux comb in reverse. This too, keeps the straggling locks off the neck while it vanishes.

Snoods are better than ever. Besides being decorative they also keep your hat on, the curls off the neck, and relieve any uneasiness about a smooth backline. Side combs that glitter, little slivers of combs in plain tortoise shell and covered bobby pins are other small but necessary additions to your dressing table these days.

When all else fails, you can be high fashion and exquisitely well groomed by tying up hat and new hairdress with veils.

Back of the Yards Lads Meet to Talk of History They Made

Old-timers whose memories go back to the days when Ashland avenue [then Reuben street] was bordered by twin canals met last night in the Davis Square fieldhouse. The occasion was the first meeting of the Back of the Yards Historical society.

Among the early settlers present was James J. O'Toole, a former municipal judge and state representative. Mr. O'Toole, who lives at 9406 Pleasant avenue, can remember the back of the yards area as it was more than sixty-five years ago.

His first recollection of transportation concerns a bobtail street car on Archer avenue, and, somewhat later, a horse drawn bus which ran north on Halsted street from O'Neil street. The back of the yards area was taken into the city in 1889, when the State street horse cars first ran south of the city limits at 39th street.

Last night's meeting was sponsored by Joseph Meegan, director of Davis park, and Miss Blanche Beasant, librarian. The fieldhouse is at 45th street and Marshfield avenue, in the heart of the old back of the yards area.

A SALESWOMAN approached a man engrossed in a book in Field's book department to inquire: "Can I be of service?" "Not unless you'll run out and get me a chocolate ice cream bar," retorted the reader without looking up.

YOU'VE read about Raymond Scott, the composer who calls his six piece musical unit a quintet because he dislikes the word "sextet." You'll recall, too, his liking for screwy titles—Dinner Music for a Pack of Hungry Cannibals, Egyptian Barn Dance, Reckless Night on Board an Ocean Liner. Our friend, Jack Flynn, glancing through Oscar Thompson's Debussy finds reference to Erik Satie's similar use of absurd titles and equally absurd instructions to players. Satie, a close friend of Debussy's, is supposed to have influenced him during his formative years. Some of the "absurd" titles given by Satie to his piano compositions: Three Pieces in the Form of a Pear, The Dreamy Fish, and Airs to Make You Run.

Some of his instructions to pianists: "Play on yellow velvet, dry as a cuckoo, light as a fish"; "play in the most profound silence"; "play with hands in the pockets"; "play like a nightingale with a toothache."

Raymond Scott and his quintet have returned to New York and CBS from Hollywood. His latest unfinished piece is called Siberian Sleighride. The composer is creating a jaz laboratory, he writes Carl Cons in Chicago, editor of Downbeat. Before radio, a composer wrote music to be played to people present in a concert hall, he said. Today the composer must bear in mind that the radio listener hears it through a mike, amplifiers, transmitters, receiving set, and loud speaker apparatus. These mechanics impose limitations on the composer, but offer, Scott says, amazing possibilities for fresh musical sounds. God forbid!

A FRENCH Charlie McCarthy has been introduced to the infants of a south side nursery school. His name is Jacques, he wears a beret and, with the help of the school director Miss Bobbie Pflaum, he greets each tot with "Bon Jour," to which they answer, "Bon Jour, Jacques!" Thus French is brought to the small fry.

Tenderfoot's Inheritance

By Marie De Nervaud

SYNOPSIS.

Anne Claxton arrives from New York at the Wyoming ranch she has inherited, after refusing the last minute proposal of her city beau, Gerald. Steve Hayward, neighbor ranch owner, tells her that Jake Collins, who owns the adjoining ranch, expects to buy her heavily mortgaged ranch, but her uncle never would sell to him. Anne determines to stay and fight. She is immediately attracted to Steve, but Gwen Collins, Jake's daughter, shows a proprietary attitude toward him. She wins over old Tim Salter, her uncle's foreman, and Whitey, a handsome ranch hand. She finds the house in disorder and a gun missing from the rack. Tim thinks Collins had been there and threatened her uncle with the gun and that her uncle died from a heart attack. Collins turns ugly when she refuses to sell. When Steve advises her to sell she is cool to him. He is offended and jealous of Whitey. Anne expects her former boss, Mr. Trainor, and his family as paying guests at the ranch. Collins serves notice that he is going to fence in the water holes, which he claims are on his property. Whitey takes Anne to a local dance. Jake Collins, drunk, insults Anne. Steve fights him. Anne runs off without thanking him. She writes him a note but receives no answer. Gerald arrives unexpectedly to visit Anne. She makes him stay at the hotel in town. Steve obtains from Gwen a rusty gun she'd found in cleaning a well. It is the gun that was missing after old man Claxton's death. The Trainors arrive. Collins raids Anne's cattle. Mr. Trainor offers to get Anne's property surveyed and help her fight Collins.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

"THE GAME'S UP!"

Anne set Rocket to a fast trot and a moment later Steve was racing beside her. He reached over for Rocket's bridle and pulled him down to a walk.

"Anne, are you engaged to Whitey?" he demanded.

"Engaged to Whitey?" Anne stammered. "Why—why, of course not. What made you think——" she couldn't go on above the wild beating of her heart at the flame that sprang to Steve's eyes before he looked away.

"Word has kind of got round the range that you were," Steve said at last. "I hadn't any business to ask you that, but I'm glad I did. It kind of straightens things in my mind."

Confused happiness surged through Anne. If Steve had thought her engaged to Whitey that explained everything!

Jake Collins looked with hard interrogation from Anne and Steve to the steaming horses. He came down the steps of the Triangle 3 ranch house with a sarcastic, "What's all the rush about?"

The incriminating gun was slung on the offside of Steve's saddle. He unhooked it, pulled it up in front of him and laid it across the bucking rolls on either side of the horn.

"Ever see this gun before?" he asked.

"Not that I know of. What business is it of yours if I had?"

"None," Steve admitted. "But it's Anne Claxton's business. That's her uncle's missing gun. It disappeared from the X Bar 9 the night he died. You swore at the inquest that you hadn't been there that night. The gun was found in your well."

Collins squared his huge shoulders and thrust his head forward, his eyes passing aggressively from Steve to Anne and back to Steve again.

"So you've been trespassing on my place, eh? Since when did you have permission to go digging in my well? Strikes me that's my business."

"Gwen gave me the gun," Steve refused to let himself be goaded into anger. "She had the well cleaned out while you were sick. That came out of it. I happened over and she showed it to me and let me take it. I reckoned it would be a good thing to keep in case you stuck your neck out too far on this range. You've done just that."

"So what?"

Fear caught in Anne's throat.

"So this," Steve said. "Unless you call off the fight that you know is brewing at the water holes and let the X Bar 9 cattle have free access to them, Anne Claxton is going to take up this matter of the gun. She'll challenge your testimony at the inquest. She'll prove by this gun that you were the indirect if not the direct cause of her uncle's death. You threatened him that night. And you ransacked the house after he died."

"I figure you won't care to have all that come out. It's a pretty ugly business and you've plenty of enemies to take it up. You're playing a losing game at the north range, anyway. For all you've got Hank Cheeney in the hollow of your hand he'll have to carry out the injunction when Mr. Trainor gets it."

"He won't get it, the damn interfering dude!" Jake Collins flattened out each word with calculated insolence. "As to your cock and bull story about the gun, go ahead and tell it. I'll deny it and Gwen'll deny it." He made a move as though to go back up the steps, then whirled, flashed out his long arm and grabbed the gun.

Caught off guard Steve tried to pull it away. With a vicious twist, Collins wrested it from him. He flung it clattering on the porch behind and sprang out of reach.

"Now clear out, both of you," he ordered, "and be quick about it."

Anne was quivering with fright, but she dared not make a sound.

"You've won this move," Steve said at last. "I was a fool to bring the gun with me. I didn't think you'd pull quite such a raw play. But it won't help you. My word's still good for something on this range."

"Get out!" Jake Collins' eyes had a frightened glitter over the gleaming barrel of his gun.

Steve nodded to Anne. "We'll get going." Even as she followed his lead in turning her horse about she caught the distant beat of hoofs.

So did Jake Collins. With a movement that was almost as quick as his lightning draw had been, he dropped his gun back in the holster.

All three stared at the group that topped the coulee beyond the ranch gates.

With pulsing inner excitement Anne recognized Mr. Trainor riding with a stocky, thick set man, and four others.

"What's Hank Cheeney up to?" There was tight apprehension in Collins' harsh question as the pair pulled to a halt in a choking cloud of dust.

He turned furiously on the sherif. "You're a hell of a——"

"Pipe down, Jake!" Hank Cheeney's voice was an embarrassed mixture of warning and apology. "This here Mr. Trainor turns out to be a friend of the attorney general. 'Pears I was mistaken about that injunction. It's come through. I reckon there's nothin' for yuh to do but pull down those fences. Hold on!"

He dismounted and took Collins' arm, breaking off his explosive refusal as he steered him for the house. "You and me had better have a private confab about this. I told Mr. Trainor you'd pull yore outfit off when I served the injunction, but he insisted on my bringin' a posse."

The two went up the steps. Anne, who was nearest to them, distinctly heard the sherif whisper, "The game's up, Jake!"

Dizzy relief swept her. "It came in time!" she reached a grateful hand out to Mr. Trainor. "He will call his men off now, won't he?"

"He'll have to, the sherif won't dare let him do anything else," Mr. Trainor said. "What under the sun brought you over here?"

A flush burned in Anne's cheeks at the quick interest in Mr. Trainor's eyes when she introduced Steve. She dropped her voice so that the men in the posse couldn't hear as she told about the gun. "If I'd known the injunction was coming through——"

"It was there when I got in," Mr. Trainor explained, "and a letter from the attorney general with some remarks that made our friend, Hank Cheeney, hustle when I showed it to him."

He glanced up at the gun on the porch. "I'd forget about that gun, Anne," he advised. "Raking that up isn't going to help your uncle or any one else, now. It's just as well for Collins to know you have that information, but this is no time to use it. He has another blow coming on top of losing this water hole fight. His daughter eloped yesterday."

"Gwen! Eloped!"

She looked quickly at him. Her heart caught up the lost beat and raced into a very vertigo of joy at his expression. It was relief not consternation that overflowed his surprise!

GASOLINE ALLEY—I HEARD YOU THE FIRST TIME

Two Exhibits Launch a New Season of Art

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Two exhibitions in north side galleries start the new art season. At the Palette and Chisel Academy of the Fine Arts, 1012 North Dearborn street, paintings by Karl Ouren make a fine splash on the walls and against their colorful setting stand various pieces of impressive sculpture by Trygve Rovelstad, a pupil of the late Lorado Taft.

Karl Ouren is recently back from a long stay in Norway. These pictures were made there and are filled with the austere beauty that we associate with the Land of the Midnight Sun. One characteristic landscape gives us a wild cherry tree in bloom, as clearly seen as though it were noon instead of night when the canvas was painted.

Trygve Rovelstad is the young sculptor to whom has been intrusted the Elgin memorial. The several sections from that impressive group make an interesting effect here. The heads are several times life size and beautifully modelled. The scout's profile, a tiny bit of carving in bas-relief on a silver dollar, is well done. The two exhibits balance each other nicely.

An exhibit of satirical designs by Fredrik Deuker is on view at the Parnassus gallery, 817 Rush street. The drawings are chiefly in black and white and are extremely clever. They are skeletonized caricatures, like iron scroll work done on paper. Among the most amusing are "Nude with Cat," "Lady Godiva," "Joy Ride," "Riding" and "Piano Virtuoso."

Kinks Develop if First Child Is Dethroned

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Has your second baby already arrived, creating all the joy that goes with such a blessed event—with probably on your part a more relaxed, an easier enjoyment than attended the arrival of your first-born?

The wise mother will watch herself closely to see that she does not become so swamped by excitement, interest, details, and fatigue, perhaps, too, that the first child feels set aside.

The practical point is that she actually hasn't as many hours to devote to her older child as she had before. This is quite normal and as it should be. The fact remains, however, that a new second baby means new adjustments for the first child, and it is the business of both mother and father to keep this in mind in their relation to the older youngster.

Definite kinds of behavior have been noticed to appear when, in some families, the second baby comes along. Two marked ones are a reversal in toilet habits, and mealtime difficulties. What these two changes in his actions obtain for a first child are attention, the center of the stage which he held undisputed for so long.

No one likes to be dethroned—to lose his "place in the sun."

Film Expert Tells Interesting Data About Makeup

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Although American women make use of more than a thousand kinds of cosmetics today, the women of Egypt in 3500 B. C. employed more beauty formulas than are registered in the trademark archives of Washington.

This information is revealed by Jack Dawn, Hollywood makeup authority, who adds further to his comparisons by stating that when a film star goes out in public she wears far less makeup than the average debutante.

Dawn, in tracing beauty methods through the centuries for use in his screen work, has unearthed hundreds of odd facts about cosmetics.

"Cleopatra rated the eyes as beauty's greatest asset," Dawn reports, "and evolved the practice of painting her lower eyelids green and upper ones red and using heavy black for the brows. Only rarely do we go to such artificial extremes today. Women of today, and especially screen stars, prefer to remain as close to the natural as possible. Joan Crawford's eyes, for example, are among the most beautiful in the world, yet she uses very little makeup on them."

Film actresses, he states, employ a surprising minimum of makeup for street wear. This is because they frequently use makeup all day long for the screen, and wish to give their complexions a rest when not working.

Miss Adelaide Taylor Bows at Dance Tonight

When petite and blonde Adelaide Chatfield Taylor makes her formal bow to Chicago society tonight she will wear a gown designed for her by her uncle's wife, Mrs. Otis Chatfield-Taylor. Mrs. Taylor, the former Marochka Anisfeld, is an artist and has designed her own clothes for years, but this is the first time she has done so for any one else.

The gown is a lovely one, of ice blue tulle over a silver lamé slip. There are yards and yards of the tulle, and scattered over it are myriad diamentes shining like tiny stars. Unlike so many of the new evening gowns, it is not strapless, for it is held up by wide straps of the tulle. Miss Taylor will carry white camellias.

The debut, a dance, is being given by the bud's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor, at their home in Lake Forest. The invitation list was limited to young people, for Mr. and Mrs. Taylor plan to give a tea to introduce their elder daughter to their own friends and older ones in about two weeks. The date is not definite.

Preceding the dance, Mr. Taylor's cousin, Farwell Winston, and Mrs. Winston will give a dinner for the debutante at the home of Mr. Winston's mother, Mrs. Robert G. McGann, in Lake Forest. They also have invited only young people. There will be about forty guests, including four young easterners who are visiting Miss Taylor. They are Miss Joan Sharpless of Philadelphia, Miss Nancy Iselin of Middleburg, Va.; Miss Josephine Winmill of Warrenton, Va., and Miss Virginia Nicholls of New York.

The Winstons' post-debutante daughter, Anne, is taking a business course at home this year, and the subdeb of the family, Dudley, is leaving Monday for Miss Hall's school in Pittsfield, Mass.

Tomorrow the Edward A. Cudahys and their daughter, Sheila, are entertaining at luncheon at their Lake Forest home for Miss Taylor. Miss Cudahy, who returned recently from abroad, has decided not to make her formal bow until next year. She will enter Bryn Mawr college this fall, as will Miss Taylor.

Two teas in Winnetka this afternoon will keep that village buzzing. Mrs. George Knox Owsley, Mr. and Mrs. Lon C. Hill Jr., and Miss Georgette Owsley Hill will receive from 4 until 7 o'clock at the Hill home, which formerly belonged to Mrs. Hill's mother, Mrs. Owsley, and in which Mrs. Hill grew up.

The second tea is being given by Mr. and Mrs. C. Durand Allen for their daughter, Miss Jane Durand Allen, at the Winnetka Woman's club.

The Hill home was remodeled during the summer, so the tea will be a sort of housewarming. Mrs. Owsley, who lives in California, has come east to receive at her granddaughter's debut. Also here for the party is the bud's aunt, Mrs. Frederick D. Owsley of Greenwood, Va.

Assisting Miss Hill, who is a student at Sarah Lawrence, will be Miss Alice Graff, Miss Tita Johnson, Miss Jane Cheney, Miss Jane Zimmerman, Miss Peggy Burrows, Miss Mary Hale, Miss Marie Louise Richards, Miss Nancy Dammann, Miss Priscilla Payne, Miss Natalie De Clerque, Miss Virginia Ballard, Miss Miriam Bartlett, Miss Jane Bulger, Miss Windsor Dole, Miss Olivia Little, Miss Jane Harper, Miss Edith Farwell, Miss Marjorie Rile, and Miss Maryphyllis Barber. Miss Rile lives in Montclair, N. J., and is Miss Hill's roommate at college.

Receiving with their daughter this afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock will be Mr. and Mrs. Allen. Miss Allen will have twenty-eight assistants, one of the largest number that any debutante has had up to now. Miss Allen expects to enter the National College of Education in February.

Jews to Fast and Pray for Persecuted Tomorrow

Rabbi Julius D. Goldman, secretary of the Orthodox Rabbinate of Chicago, has announced that in conjunction with the World Rabbinate, tomorrow has been proclaimed a fast day for all Jews in the Chicago area. Rabbi Goldman said all Jews are asked to abstain from eating and to pray to God to aid the Jewish people who are being persecuted in dictator countries.

WINNIE! WHAT ON EARTH ARE YOU DOING HERE?
WELL, WHEN YOU WALKED OUT ON ME, I GAVE UP THE APARTMENT!
BUT WHY?
WELL, THERE WAS A VERY HANDSOME MAN I SIMPLY HAD TO SEE!

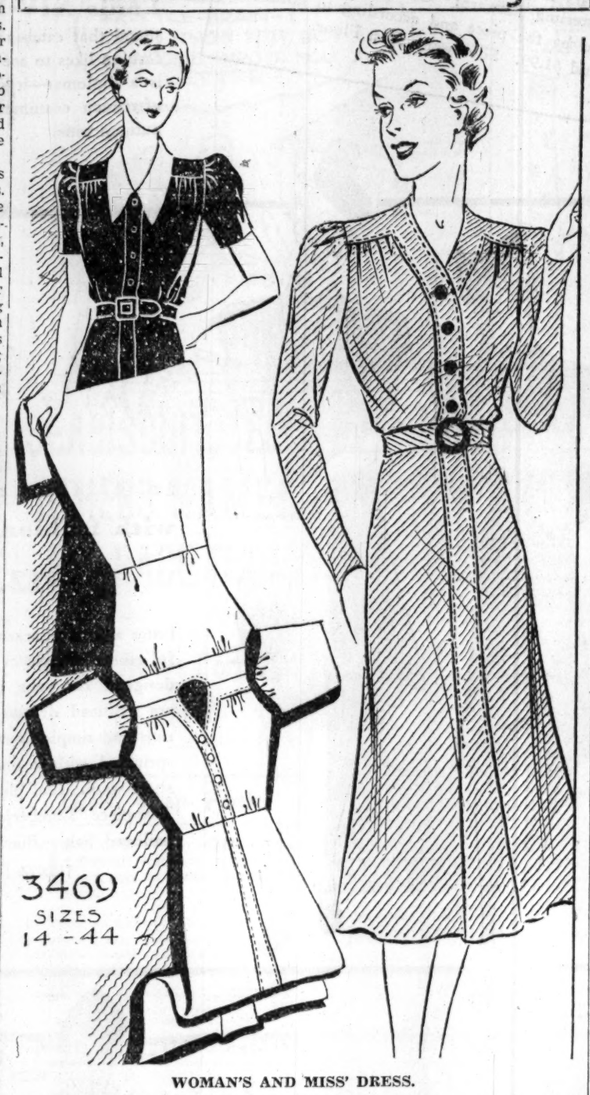
Favorite All Year Long



WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

A frock of this type is a year around favorite in every wardrobe, since it can be worn all day long, to all types of informal affairs, and is ideal for the business girl and woman. It makes up equally well in silks and woolens, and its lines are so simple that one may use either figured, plaid or plain materials.

The sketch suggests two equally flattering versions. The V neckline may have a collar or dispense with it, as you choose. The sleeves, which are puffed squarely at the shoulders, may be long or short. There is a long, narrow panel from shoulder to skirt plaid in front, and it's tremendously slenderizing.

The college girl may like this dress in a gay clan plaid woolen, whereas the business girl undoubtedly will adhere to plain shades. Mature women will like figured silks in conservative patterns, and the lovely new plain colors being featured for autumn.

Style No. 3469 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Chili Sauces Popular This Time of Year

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Almost every third telephone call to the cooking department these days is a request for a chili sauce recipe. As a check for those who have written down such recipes from our telephone dictation, and for the benefit of others who plan to make chili sauce, I'm printing these two recipes, one for an uncooked sauce, the other for the cooked type.

Uncooked Chili Sauce.

1 peck ripe tomatoes, chopped
1 cup salt
4 large onions, chopped
4 green peppers, chopped
3 bunches celery, chopped
2½ pounds sugar [5 cups]
1 cup grated horseradish
1 quart vinegar
2 tablespoons mustard seed

Add salt to finely chopped tomatoes and let stand overnight. Drain and add other ingredients. Mix well, pour into clean jars and seal.

Cooked Chili Sauce.

4 quarts tomatoes, peeled and chopped
2 cups chopped onions
1 cup chopped sweet red pepper
1 cup chopped green pepper
1 small, hot red pepper
3 tablespoons salt
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon white mustard seed
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon allspice
2½ cups vinegar

Combine vegetables, salt, and sugar and cook until the mixture begins to thicken. Add vinegar and whole spices, tied in a bag. Cook to the consistency of a thick sauce. Pour into clean, hot jars, and seal. If juice is drained from vegetables before adding vinegar, the cooking period will be shortened.

"Will you please print a recipe for chicken gumbo now that okra is plentiful?" writes a man reader of this column. Here it is, true southern style.

Chicken Gumbo.

1 small stewing hen
4 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons butter, melted
1 onion, finely chopped
4 cups sliced and chopped okra
2 cups canned tomatoes
4 cups water
Salt, pepper
2 tablespoons minced parsley

Cut cleaned chicken into serving pieces, dredge lightly in the flour, and sauté in butter with the onion. When the chicken has browned, add okra, tomatoes, water, seasonings, and parsley. Simmer very slowly until chicken is tender and okra is well cooked, about 2½ hours. Add water at intervals during the cooking. If a thin rather than a thick soup is wanted, add water in larger amounts.

The following recipe, printed in this column several years ago, answers another request.

Apple and Tomato Conserve.

2 cups raw tart apples, peeled and diced
2 cups tomatoes, peeled and cut in pieces
1 lemon, grated rind and juice
2½ cups sugar

Cook apples and tomatoes together without water, until tender, stirring frequently. Add sugar and lemon rind and juice, and continue cooking until the mixture is thick and clear. Turn into jelly glasses and seal with paraffin.

There are other recipes for tomato preserves in our booklet on jams and jellies. It's called "Mary Meade's Best Jams and Jellies," and is available for 23 cents by mail. Of course, it contains dozens of other recipes for fruit preserves, too. There are ninety-nine recipes in all, I believe. Other canning booklets include the brand new "Homemaker's Guide to Canning," 7 cents by mail, and "The Pickle Parade," 3 cents by mail.

Knitted Blouse with Stripes Is Easy to Create

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

Stripes are running wild and wide this season in the hand knitted garments, and the new shades of red are ranking favorites. The utterly smart and extremely simple blouse knitted in the stockinette stitch, with ribbing at the waistband, is a leading example. The kimono fitted sleeves and high neck have a light, flattering shade off the face, graduating in four inch bands to the dregs of wine or dubonnet shade which is currently popular. Instructions for this sweater are available in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42.

For instructions for knitting the striped sweater, No. X-73, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

Problems arise at duplicate which never are encountered in rubber bridge. At the latter game no defender, unless he is a miser, wastes time or gray matter over the possibility that a certain play may give declarer an extra trick. The object at rubber bridge is to "beat that contract," and if 30 or 60 points are lost in a desperate effort, who cares? At duplicate, it is a vastly different matter. Now, giving declarer an extra trick may mean that the altruistic party will come out with a very bad match point score on the board. Note West's dilemma in the following deal, played a duplicate:

Match point duplicate.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened his fourth highest spade and East's queen was taken by the ace. Declarer immediately attacked the heart suit, carefully attempting to conceal the jack by playing the seven spot to the queen. East, seeing no good reason for holding off, accepted his king, and returned the seven of spades, declarer following with the four. At this point West found himself with a difficult decision. He could not tell whether or not East had another heart stopper. The concealed jack might be in his hand instead of the declarer's. Nor could West know about the club situation; it was possible that East had that suit stopped also. West, himself, had a diamond stopper and hence had some slight ground for hoping that the contract could be defeated. Obviously, if this were so, the best play was to duck the second spade and wait for another lead from East to trap declarer's marked jack and run the suit. This, of course, would have been the correct policy at rubber bridge—the fact that West's spade king might "go to sleep" would not be a pertinent factor. At duplicate, however, West realized that he might be making a fatal error by passing this present spade trick. The bidding indicated that South had a strong club holding. If he also had the heart jack, he probably would be able to run off the rest of the tricks.

After careful consideration of South's strong bidding and the cards in sight in dummy, West concluded that any hope of defeating the contract would be slightly too far fetched at duplicate. He, therefore, took his spade king and returned a spade. Obviously, declarer had the rest of the tricks and, indeed, would have been able to shut out the spade king if West had held it up.

At duplicate, West's decision was shrewd and sound.

The Men's Store
Monroe at Wabash

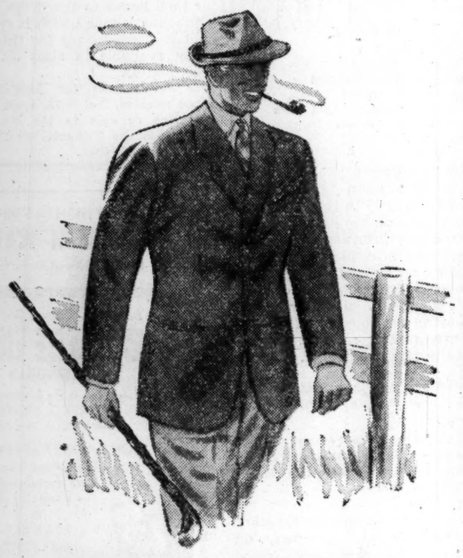
$5

The hand felted welt edge holds the original block of any hat in shape for much longer. And with the new trend toward the wider brims (note this brim), this process has become increasingly important. You'll seldom find it in hats at a very much higher price, which together with the hand workmanship and our exclusive styling, makes this hat notable at $5.

Hats, First Floor



Imported harris tweed suits and covert slacks

$47.50

An English gentleman bound for a country week-end would be likely to have an outfit such as this packed in his Gladstone bag. That's where we received the inspiration to bring together these two fabrics long respected by the Englishman and treat them to the same brand of tailoring he'd expect from his Bond St. Tailor. The British Blade Drape tailoring and the three button jacket answer the demands of an outdoor week-end or business in town here, and you'll find it an outfit that you'll use constantly through the next fall and spring.

Despite their rugged two layer sole, these semi-custom oxfords from our C. P. S. special collection are equipped for wear with a strictly town outfit. The heavy double thickness sole not only answers the needs of a rainy fall, but gives to a man's turnout the masculinity that he always associates with fine cobbling and rich leathers.

TURNESA, ABBOTT REACH U. S. AMATEUR FINAL

TAKE FIRST, 7-6, IN 11 INNINGS; THEN LOSE, 5-4

Boston Makes Three in Ninth to Win.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's jittery Pirates marked time in their drive for the National league pennant today by splitting a double-header with the Boston Bees. Johnny Rizzo's twentieth homer of the season enabled the Pirates to win the opening game, 7 to 6, in eleven innings, but a three run rally in the ninth earned the Bees a 5 to 4 victory in the second game.

The Pirates maintained their three game lead over the second place Chicago Cubs, whose game with the fourth place Giants was postponed. The third place Reds remained stationary by dividing a double-header with the Phillies.

Rizzo hit the first ball pitched to him in the eleventh by Danny MacFayden over the left field wall to decide the opener, during which the Bees came from behind with two consecutive three run rallies to gain a 6 to 4 lead in the seventh.

Pirates Tie Score.

The Pirates tied the score in the eighth, when Pinch Hitter Heinie Manush tripled between singles by Pep Young and Paul Waner.

Mace Brown, veteran relief pitcher who has participated in forty-five games, made his second start of the season in the second game and he had the Bees locked in a 2 to 2 tie when he retired for a pinch hitter in the ninth. The Pirates scored twice to pull into a 4 to 2 lead in that inning, but, with one out, the Bees won by scoring three runs.

Lopez Starts Rally.

Al Lopez started the winning rally by bunting safely and he went to third when Max West, batting for Rabbit Warstler, singled and gave way to Bobby Reis, who ran for him. Harl Maggert fanned while pinch batting for Pitcher Dick Errickson, who had yielded nine hits to the Pirates. Lopez scored on Vince Di Maggio's double and Johnny Cooney's single accounted for the tying and winning runs.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Seabiscuit and ten other horses were named yesterday for the $15,000 Hawthorne Gold Cup race to be run today. But whether he starts on a heavy track is another matter.

Seabiscuit is in splendid condition, he revealed in a workout over a heavy racing strip earlier in the week. Nearly everybody believes he can win, although the field includes William Zeigler's great mare, Esposa, one of the few horses that have been able to beat him within the last year. This beating came last fall in Maryland in a mile and five sixteenths race, a sixteenth of a mile more than the Gold Cup field will run this afternoon.

Await Owner's Decision.

Whether Seabiscuit will run will not be known until today when Owner Charles S. Howard arrives from the west. One of the rules of racing gives an owner the right to withdraw his horse any time up to within forty-five minutes before the race is to be run.

Owner Howard made an agreement on his last visit to Chicago, when Seabiscuit ran in the Stars and Stripes handicap at Arlington Park, that if he was going to withdraw the horse he would declare him out of the race 24 hours before its running. That was simply a sporting gesture, however.

At times late withdrawals from races have cost Seabiscuit much of his popularity. But after all Seabiscuit is Mr. Howard's horse.

Will Be Favorite.

The big flyer from the western coast will be the even money or 6 to 5 favorite if he goes to the post, with Esposa the second choice and Idle Miss, the Arlington Matron stakes winner, and Mucho Gusto next in line. Mrs. Emil Denemark's entry of Chasar and Uneasy will attract some attention, and so will Grey Gold, noted mud runner owned by Edward W. Duffy of Detroit.

The eleven overnight entries represent eight owners. Paul Kelley, whose horses have been in the midst of a winning streak at Hawthorne, may send three horses to the post, Count Valiant, She's Right, and Cardinalis.

Under continuous working the track improved yesterday, but the opinion prevailed that unless there is a long stretch of sunshine today it can hardly be better than slow when the cup race is run. The Denemark entry drew No. 1 post position, Esposa No. 4, and Seabiscuit the extreme outside.

The Gold Cup is one of Chicago's most famous turf fixtures. Its winners have included the great horses Display, Sun Beau, Plucky Play, Equipoise, and Discovery.

Working on Michigan Renaissance

Michigan Has Weakness, but Has Spirit Too

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 16.—Michigan's football failures in the four years the Wolverines foundered in Western conference competition probably can be attributed to the incapacity of its back field material rather than to inefficiency in the line. In this quadrennium, Michigan won five Big Ten games and lost seventeen.

Although three of these victories, each by one point, were recorded last year and brought Michigan its highest rating since the championship eleven of 1933, this incipient revival was insufficient to prolong Harry Kipke's coaching tenure at his alma mater. Now Fritz Crisler, former University of Chicago star, has come from Princeton, where he successfully directed the Tigers' renaissance.

A Sophomore Back Field.

In Michigan's last seventeen conference games the Wolverines scored only twelve touchdowns. It is important to note, then, that Michigan's current varsity back field is composed of four sophomores, and while it does not follow that these boys will immediately lead Michigan out of the wilderness, it is true that they must be superior to last year's backs, all of whom now are relegated to the second or third teams.

It is fair to mention also that these sophomores matriculated before Kipke's departure and their presence was alleged to have been a factor in his dismissal. In the indefinite indictment of Kipke's régime, no count was more decisive than that the euphonious punt, pass, and prayers offense had failed and by its collapse boomeranged to the discomfiture of ardent alumni who resented insinuations that Michigan knew no attack except to punt and pass.

Specifically Michigan, which once ruled the west, is determined to end the era of humiliation by Minnesota, Ohio State, and Michigan State. The Spartans from East Lansing have opened the last four seasons with victories over the Wolverines.

A Difficult Job.

Crisler declines, quite naturally, to comment on the possibility of Michigan winning from any one of these teams. Considering that State won, 19 to 14; Minnesota, 39 to 6, and Ohio State, 21 to 0, the task appears difficult.

Crisler rates Michigan's weaknesses [1] lack of team speed; [2] lack of offensive poise, and [3] inexperience in the backfield.

However, the Michigan squad we saw in yesterday's two hour scrimmage on Ferry field seems certain to cause trouble to any opponent. The spirit of the entire group transcended such factors as the excellent play of Paul Kromer, a sophomore from Lorain, O., who appears to be the best passer, and the sharp offensive work of Forest Evashevski,

PLAYER'S DEATH HALTS PRINCETON FOOTBALL DRILLS

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Football practice at Princeton university has been called off until next Monday morning out of respect to the memory of William B. Lynch, 22, 200 pound varsity full back and track and swimming star, who collapsed and died of a heart attack late yesterday after football practice.

William B. Lynch.

Coach Elton C. Wieman made the following statement:

"The squad was assembled early this morning. The matter of practice procedure was left in the hands of the squad. The group felt that it would be Bill's desire that they carry on. However, out of deference to him and to his family they felt that practice should be suspended for the remainder of the week. Naturally the coach concurred in this decision."

Lynch, a resident of Birmingham, Mich., accompanied an American track squad on a tour of Europe this summer as a hammer thrower.

The funeral will be held at Birmingham on Monday. Coach Wieman will attend.

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Capt. George E. T. Eyston erased John Cobb's 24 hour old world land speed record today with a new mark of 357.5 miles per hour, whereupon Cobb announced their duel was ended.

But Eyston is not satisfied at driving an automobile nearly six miles a minute. He said he may try again next week, presumably in an effort to boost the clip above 360.

Two flashing runs by Eyston's Thunderbolt on the glaring salt course regained for him the speed crown Cobb wrested away yesterday with an average of 350.2.

Cobb Gives Up.

On Aug. 27 Eyston had raised his last year's record of 311.42 to 345.49 and there were indications that the two Englishmen might continue their hazardous contest as long as their cars, with weather and finances held out.

Cobb, sound asleep while Eyston took to the flats in the early dawn, announced after hearing what his rival did that "after due deliberation we have decided to abandon further quest for the world land speed record so far as this visit is concerned."

He paid his compliments to the tall, tense, retired British army officer and declared his Railton had been built with a definite objective, presumably 350 miles per hour, and had attained it.

Eyston's seven ton Thunderbolt was extensively remodeled for today's run, the big tail fin removed, and the hitherto square nose given a teardrop streamlining.

Hits 358.57 M. P. H.

"She's got more speed left," he said proudly afterward. "But we're getting the speed so fast now that we're treading on very dangerous ground each time we try to jack it up a bit."

Eyston made the north run at 356.44 miles per hour and returned at 358.57, requiring but 10.04 seconds for the measured mile in the center of the thirteen mile course and reaching a velocity of 525 feet per second, comparable to the 700 feet per second muzzle velocity of an ordinary .45 caliber revolver bullet.

EAGLES DEFEAT PIRATES, 27 TO 7; WHITE SCORES

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 16.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles kept Byron [Whizzer] White bottled up and defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 27 to 7, in a National league football game tonight. Jay Arnold, a 200 pound back from the University of Texas, and Dick Riffle, a slender speedster from Albright, starred for the Eagles.

Arnold scored three touchdowns in the first half. White contributed to the Pirates' downfall when he fumbled a punt on his own 20 yard line which Arnold scooped up and converted into a touchdown. In the second quarter Riffle threw a thirty-four yard pass to Arnold over the goal line for the second score and a few minutes later the husky Texas back picked a Pirate pass out of the air and dashed twenty yards to his third touchdown.

CHAPMAN AND KINGSLEY LOSE 36 HOLE DUELS

Title at Stake at Oakmont Today.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oakmont, Pa., Sept. 16.—Pat Abbott, an actor in a new rôle, and Willie Turnesa, bambino of a family wherein spade mashies rate above spaghetti, will play thirty-six holes tomorrow for the forty-second national amateur golf championship at the Oakmont Country club.

Abbott, playing in his first national amateur, spoke his lines so well today that he won his thirty-six hole semi-final match from Richard D. Chapman of Greenwich, Conn., 5 and 4. Turnesa, whose six big brothers are professionals, reached his first major final with a 4 and 3 victory over the tournament's stubbornest fighter, Edwin Kingsley of Magna, Utah.

The 25 year old Abbott is the No. 1 surprise of the most surprising week the amateur tournament has seen since John Goodman put out Bobby Jones at Pebble Beach, Cal., in 1929. However, Pat is no stranger to national finals. Two years ago he came out of the little theaters of Pasadena, Cal., where he had played a variety of rôles, and won the American public links title. He returned to the Pacific coast and sought work in the movies, but had little success.

Turnesa's Sixth Amateur.

Turnesa is not reckoned quite the dark horse his opponent of tomorrow is. In fact, as far back as last Sunday Willie was being touted as the boy to watch. Last year he won the national intercollegiate qualifying medal at Oakmont and finished only two shots back of Medalist Gus Moreland in this show. And he is no novice. This is his sixth amateur, his best performance before today being a quarter-final job against Lawson Little at Brookline, Mass., in 1934.

The golf of the semi-finals, played on the second day of the week in which the weather was respectable, was undistinguished. Turnesa and Abbott were eight over par for the 33 and 32 holes, respectively, that they worked. Chapman, conqueror of Defending Champion Goodman yesterday, was thirteen over fours and Kingsley fourteen.

Those Sunday duffers who regard scrambling as routine might have done well to witness Abbott in the morning round. The Californian made scrambling a fine art. He was in all manner of hot water through that eighteen, but escaped with some of the finest putting under pressure ever seen in the tournament. He required only twenty-seven putts on that first round, nine of them for one putt greens, and four of those after evacuating bunkers.

Ends Match with Birdie.

Abbott went in to luncheon three up on Chapman and increased that to six up at the twenty-seventh. He then proceeded to yield the next three holes to the Connecticut golfer, but promptly took the next two and the match, the latter with a perfect pitch shot for a birdie.

Turnesa held a comfortable three hole edge on Kingsley through the morning round, but the Utah boy's tenacious play, evident throughout a twenty-one hole first round victory and a second round decision over Charley Yates, British amateur champion, showed itself in the afternoon. As a result Willie found himself only one up after the twenty-ninth. Kingsley's game then collapsed before the dread Oakmont bunkers, and Turnesa won three of the next four holes and the match.

BARBARA KNOCKS OUT PATTERSON IN SECOND ROUND

Barbara stumbled to his corner after the round ended, giving the capacity crowd of 2,219 reason to believe he would not last long. Then he amazed every one when he crashed a right on Patterson's jaw and dropped him for the full count early in the second round.

Kenneally beat Robert E. Lee, Des Moines, Ia., in five rounds; Rutecki conquered Johnny Martin, Springfield, Ill., also in five rounds, and Kainrath knocked out Bob Cole, Chicago, in two rounds.

GREENBERG HITS NO. 51, BUT YANKS BEAT TIGERS, 6-4

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Hank Greenberg's fifty-first homer of the year, a blow that put him even with Babe Ruth's record 1927 pace, wasn't enough today and the New York Yankees whipped the Tigers, 6 to 4, to move within two games of the American league pennant.

Greenberg's home run came in the fourth inning. The game was the Tigers' 138th of the year. Ruth hit his fifty-first in the Yankees' 138th contest in 1927, the year he set the record of sixty for one season.

To Weigh Fish, Build Your Own Scales

BY BOB BECKER.

How to figure the age of a trout or muskie, how to weigh a freshly caught fish when you have no weighing equipment, or how to tell the loss in weight of a fish due to shrinkage after it has been out of the water for several hours are just a few of the problems that the fisherman and north woodsman often faces.

Sometimes considerable ingenuity is required to get the answers to such questions, especially when the outdoor fan lacks suitable equipment.

They Make a Scale.

A couple of trout fishermen in a big timbered area of Ontario recently solved a problem involving the weight of a trout in spite of the fact that they didn't have any weighing equipment. They caught a good sized trout. Immediately there were arguments about its weight. They wanted to know how much their prize would weigh, but there wasn't a scale in camp. So the big question was: How could it be done without a small spring scale, or any other type of up-to-date weighing equipment?

Then one of the fishermen decided he could make an old fashioned balance or pair of scales that would do the trick. With a sharp woodsman's knife and a few other tools which he had in camp he made a balancing type of weighing scales . . . one of the oldest and most primitive ways of determining weights that is known. This called for a crosspiece or horizontal beam. From this was suspended [by wire] two pans or scales of equal weight. These were in almost perfect balance.

Determine Exact Weight.

The next problem was to get a unit of weight such as a one pound package of tobacco, a pound of butter, or some other package whose weight was known. The boys had a five pound tin of butter. With this on one side of the homemade scales and the fish on the other side of the balance they were on their way to success.

The fish was heavier than the five pound chunk of butter. So they cut up another five pound piece into five parts. Three of these one pound pieces plus the five pound unit weighed slightly more than their trout. By doing a little more adjusting of butter against the fish they finally got the weight of their trout, which was 7¾ pounds.

Cubs, Giants to Play Two Games Today

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 16.—Turnstile hunger banished pennant zeal at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. The game scheduled for the Cubs and Giants was called off to make a double-header tomorrow. The gent who called up from the Polo Grounds shortly after noon said it was raining on the diamond. It was a beautiful day elsewhere in New York.

So the Cubs, who were three games behind the Pirates when they ate their lunches, spent the immediate moments looking about for radio sets strong enough to fetch in the play by play from Boston on the Bees-Pirates double-header. Those who tote their own sets were unable to reach beyond Hartford, but were saved an afternoon of anguish by Dr. Andy Lotshaw, who had a high powered set and was kind enough to issue bulletins from inning to inning.

Eighteen Games to Play.

After the Lotshaw relay broadcast, which the doctor continued faithfully through every inning of both games the Cubs looked forward to the morrow with the knowledge that, as a result of the double-header in Boston they still are three games back of the Pirates. The Cubs have eighteen games to play, including three with the Pirates. The Pirates also have eighteen remaining.

The Chicagoans expect to do some wholesale winning tomorrow afternoon. Bill Lee in the first game will go after his 19th victory of the season and his third successive shutout. Clay Bryant, who won four straight to run his victory string to 16, but who wasn't such great shakes in Boston the other day, will pitch the second game. The Giant selections aren't exactly a weesome—Johnny Wittig in the first game, Bill Lohrman in the second.

Double-Headers Pile Up.

The postponement yesterday stacked up the double-header business in a manner not encountered by the Cubs, who have had more than their share of good weather luck this season. The Cubs will play a double-header in Brooklyn Sunday, a single game Monday in Brooklyn, and a double-header in Philadelphia Tuesday. As the card now stands these three double-headers in four days will wind up the two play business for the remainder of the season.

White Sox Face Athletics Today in Double-Header

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox are again face to face with a big load of work in which there'll be no time to lean on a shovel. Because Comiskey park was muddy yesterday the scheduled single game with the Athletics was canceled. It will be played this afternoon as part of a double-header but that is only one item in the Sox' immediate worries. They also have double-headers to dispose of tomorrow and Monday with the Boston Red Sox who are trying to get a firm clutch on second place money.

For today's pitching, Manager James Dykes of the Sox will rely on Ted Lyons in one game and probably Jack Knott in the other. The Knott start is doubtful for two reasons. The manager is still flirting with his hunch that Frank Gabler might win another game this season if given a chance and he would like to hold Knott for Boston so as to avoid the possible charge that he didn't pit his best against a money contender.

The way in which George Meyer, brought in recently from Dallas, has beeen performing at second base has already aroused the manager's interest in the swell scrap bound to occur during the next spring jaunt. What Meyer will hit after the enemy wises up to him is questionable but he certainly can get around for ground balls and his defensive skill alone may be enough to worry the two other candidates—the injured Jack Hayes and Ollie Bejma, purchased from St. Paul.

The worst the Sox can get out of it is some reserve strength for the position. They haven't had any of this for some time.

Budge, Wood Gain U.S. Net Semi-Finals

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Only two nations still were represented at the end of today's program that brought the men's and women's national singles tennis competition to the semi-finals.

The United States has three survivors in each division and Australia one in each. Tomorrow, defending champion Don Budge will face Sidney Wood of New York, and Gene Mako, Budge's doubles partner, will play John Bromwich of Australia. In the women's matches it will be Alice Marble against Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan and Dorothy May Bundy against Nancy Wynne of Australia.

Hopman Is Overpowered.

Budge today overpowered Harry Hopman, Australian Davis cup captain, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3; Wood beat Bryan Grant, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2; Miss Marble routed England's Kay Stammers, 6-8, 6-3, 6-0, after a fumbling first set, and Mrs. Fabyan, winner of the last two United States doubles titles with Miss Marble, upset Jadwiga Jedrzejowska of Poland, topseeded invader, 6-1, 6-4.

Budge was on top of Hopman all the way. The veteran international-ist's experience didn't help him get his racquet on the ball as it went whistling by. The only time the Australian was in it was at the start of the third set, when Budge eased up to give Hopman a 2-0 lead. Then Budge came storming back for three service breaks and the match.

Wood was quite as impressive. Scoring repeatedly with his new, flatter forehand, he had Grant sliding back and forth like a base runner trapped between the bags. Overhead he was destructive and his ground strokes rarely missed.

Mrs. Fabyan Is Impressive.

Mrs. Fabyan, fourth in the seeded list and sixth in United States ranking, took advantage of Miss Jedrzejowska's wildness to take the first set with the loss of only one game and volleyed beautifully to capture the second after the foreign star had gone into the lead at 4-3. The trim little American ran through the next three with the loss of only 3 points.

Club Officials Lay Plans for World Series

New York, Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Despite the fact that any club now in the first division may win the National league pennant, plans for the world series were arranged today at a meeting over which Kenesaw M. Landis presided. Representatives of the Yankees, Giants, Cubs, Pirates, and Reds met with the high commissioner, went over the dates and the prices.

They also gave mean and envious looks to Ed Barrow, Yankee business manager, who already has tickets for the three games scheduled for Yankee stadium and is taking orders for them.

If Chicago Wins . . .

The series will open Wednesday, Oct. 5, with the first two games in the home park of the National league champions. The third, fourth and fifth contests will be played in the Yankee stadium. The sixth and seventh games, if necessary, will be played in the National league city.

If Chicago wins the National league flag an open date between the second and third games will be allowed for traveling. If any of the three other teams triumph the series will be played on consecutive days. Games will be started at 1:30 p. m. week days, while the Sunday game in this city will begin at 2 p. m.

In the event of a tie for National league honors the world series will begin three days after the tie is decided. Landis also announced players eligible for the interleague baseball classic.

42,000 Reserved Seats.

Tickets for the games in Yankee stadium will be sold as usual in blocks of three. Prices range from $6.60 a game in the boxes and $5.50 in the lower grandstand to $1.10 for unreserved bleacher seats.

Reserved seats will number about 42,000, with 28,000 unreserved. Fourteen thousand of the unreserved seats are in the top tier of the grandstand and 14,000 in the bleachers.

The Monarch Beers bowled games of 1052, 1090, and 1056 for a 3198 total last night at the Congress Recreation, high score of the season. Bill Flesch's 663 was high for the team. Each member totaled more than 600. They won all three games from the Baby Ruth Candies. The Power House Candies, in winning two games from the Prager Beers shot 3105 and are now leading the league. The Schlitz Beers took two games from the Thompson's Restaurants, and the Ambrosia Beers defeated the champion Pabst Blue Ribbons.

Defending Champions Play in Softball Meet

The Harmonica Toms of Cicero, defending champions, will play in the third annual softball Tournament of Champions tonight in Parichy field, Harlem and Harrison, Forest Park. Four other games are on the card.

CARDINALS, RAMS TO BATTLE WITH PASSES TONIGHT

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Milan Creighton and his Chicago Cardinals headed east yesterday in quest of their first National Football league victory. Tonight on the Shaw High school field in East Cleveland they will pit their aerial attack against the Rams. The Rams in turn will rely largely on passes in the hopes of scoring their first victory of the season and the second in two years of major league competition.

Creighton left satisfied with the progress of his team. Even the 16 to 13 defeat by the Bears in Soldiers' field last Sunday night did not weigh heavily on his mind. Creighton is convinced he has the best team of his coaching career and that it will prove itself even better than it appeared before Lady Luck took a hand in the Bear game.

Pro Debut for Robbins.

Pat Coffee, veteran left half back and passer, will alternate with Sloan and Jack Robbins, Sloan's teammate at Arkansas last year, will make his pro debut at the position sometime during the game. Robbins, a member of the Tribune's All-Star squad, joined the Cardinals too late to get an opportunity against the Bears last week. Frank Patrick, former Pittsburgh full back and the winner of a starting position on the Tribune's All-Star team, also will make his debut tonight. Creighton has shifted him to left half back.

Cleveland, beaten by three long Herber to Hutson passes in its opening game in Green Bay last week, displayed considerable overhead strength in defeat, scoring two touchdowns on passes.

Bears Invade Green Bay.

Halas said yesterday that he would start the same team which kicked off against the Cardinals. Most of the work this week has been on pass defense in an attempt to stop the Herber to Hutson combination.

CLARK REGATTA TODAY IS LAST OF BIG EVENTS

Sailing yachts of all classes and from all Chicagoland clubs will race this afternoon off Navy pier in the Chicago Yacht club's annual autumn Commodore Sheldon Clark regatta. A twelve mile triangular course has been laid out by Race Committee Chairman Byron Willis and his assistants, John Stieber and Charles Weil Jr., for the larger classes. The smaller sailers, Stars and Tumlarens, will compete on an eight mile course. The regatta is open to craft of all clubs, and is the last important yachting event of each season.

The warning gun for competing boats will be fired from the northeast end of the pier at 2:20 p. m., to be followed five minutes later by the preparatory gun. The Jackson Park Yacht club's annual race for yachts women will be started off the outer Jackson park harbor tomorrow at 11 a. m. Yachts of all Chicago clubs with a woman skipper in command are eligible to compete.

Montanez Beats Garrison Before 5,500 in Garden

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Pedro Montanez, Porto Rican lightweight, tonight won a ten round decision from Jimmy Garrison, Kansas City, before 5,500 in Madison Square garden. Montanez weighed 139¼ and Garrison, 139.

COUNTRY'S BEST CYCLISTS TO RIDE FOR TITLE TODAY

150 Will Compete Over Garfield Courses.

Approximately 150 of the fastest amateur bicycle riders in the United States will start after the national road cycling championship over the Garfield park boulevards this morning. Two events will be held today, the five and ten mile races, with the one and twenty-five mile events tomorrow morning.

Pitted against Defending Champion Earl Kelly will be the pick of more than 2,500 entrants who competed in the thirty-nine districts of the Amateur Athletic union. The championship is awarded on total points acquired in each of the four championship events.

Roy Davis Is Starter.

JOHNSON LIFTS LIMIT ON HIGH SCHOOL COURSES

Lets All Freshmen Take 4 Major Subjects.

All freshmen in Chicago high schools will be allowed to take four major subjects, such as English, history, science, and mathematics, during the first semester of the school year now starting. Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, announced this change in policy last evening.

This is a modification of his plan, introduced in February, 1937, and since subject to criticism, whereby students unable to carry the usual work were allowed to take only three main subjects in their first year.

When past records indicate that a student cannot handle more than three subjects, parents must request that he be allowed to try the extra work. Results of his first semester's work will determine whether he can take three or four subjects during the next year and a half.

Cites Higher Enrollment.

Dr. Johnson's plan has been criticized by the citizens' schools committee, the Chicago Teachers' union, and the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers. In reply, the board of education has issued figures on enrollment which, Dr. Johnson asserted, show that the plan has been successful in its main objective—keeping the children in school.

An increase in high school enrollment, which is now at an all-time high, means that less work for those who learn slowly has prevented them from becoming discouraged at low grades and dropping out, it was pointed out.

The wider choice of subjects and new courses to suit individual needs and talents have induced more children to remain with their classes than ever before, Dr. Johnson explained.

Must Serve All Intellects.

"We are running the schools for the benefit of the public at large and not for the children of a select few," he asserted. "We have planned the work to meet requirements of all types of mental ability. That is our obligation. To achieve it we have made adjustments in the old system of education.

"But the board of education recognizes that it is merely administering a publicly owned institution. Certain people didn't like our plan to lighten the burden on slower students. We think they are wrong but we have made this change to oblige them because they share in the ownership of the schools.

"Now every student will have a chance to take four subjects if his parents want him to. If he cannot carry all the work the records will show it and adjustments will be made to help him. Those who can do a normal amount of work will have their chance to prove it and they won't be affected by the plan."

Diplomas Not Threatened.

Taking only three major subjects in the first two years will not effect the student's chances for getting into college nor prevent him from obtaining a diploma, it was explained. He will receive three units per year for the major subjects and three-quarters of a unit each year for physical education and art or music. This will give him seven and one-half units for the first two years. In the last two years four subjects and physical education are required, providing a total of eight and one-half units or sixteen for the four years, the number necessary for graduation by Chicago high schools.

Dr. Johnson will explain the plan to the parents at 11 a. m. tomorrow over station W-G-N.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: "Dark Hazard"

CANADA REOPENS QUIZ ON DEATH OF HORLICK HEIRESS

Son Questioned on His Poison Suspicion.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—The Canadian investigation into the death of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, malted milk heiress, who died last July 6 at Toronto, was reopened here today. Her only son, William Horlick Sidley, was questioned concerning his statement, filed with the Ontario courts, that he suspected his mother was "slowly poisoned."

R. H. Sankey.

Young Sidley first made this charge in Toronto at the home of Dr. Smirle Lawson, coroner, the evening before his mother's death. He later repeated it in an affidavit. In that affidavit he described how he had tried unsuccessfully to have physicians of his own choice visit his mother when she lay dying in the home of William Perkins Bull, Toronto barrister and financier.

Oppose Fight on Inquest.

The examination conducted here today was part of the proceedings now pending in the Canadian courts. In those proceedings four of the executors of a will executed by Mrs. Sidley seek to prevent a resumption of an inquest into her death. The executors filed a petition for an injunction to halt the coroner, and crown attorneys now are opposing this petition.

The men who questioned young Sidley were W. B. Common, senior solicitor of the Ontario attorney general's office, and R. H. Sankey, attorney for Dr. Lawson. They are completing preparations to go into a provincial court and oppose the injunction petition on Sept. 23.

Common explained today that it had been necessary for him and Sankey to come to Racine because young Sidley refused to return to Toronto at this time. By agreement Court Commissioner Eugene Haley, an appointee of the Ontario courts, conducted the hearing today under Canadian legal rules.

While the hearing was private, it was learned that young Sidley was questioned closely concerning his activities in Toronto the evening before Mrs. Sidley's death in the Bull mansion. Sidley testified: "I told Dr. Lawson that I suspected the worst, and further that my mother may have been slowly poisoned."

Separate from Will Contest.

Sidley said that he had gone to Dr. Lawson in order to insure the holding of an inquest. He said that he told Dr. Lawson how, although physicians attending Mrs. Sidley had at first agreed to permit him to bring in his own doctors, they later refused these physicians the right to see her.

The examination today went over these points repeatedly and each time young Sidley reiterated his allegations.

The hearing was entirely separate from the will contest case young Sidley filed recently in the Probate court here. In that suit he opposes probation of the will now on file. This will was executed last April 9 in Toronto and is the latest of four similar documents drafted by Mrs. Sidley since 1924.

Under the will now on file young Sidley shares equally with Bull. Each of them was given $250,000 outright and a one-third interest in the residual estate after other bequests that total about $850,000 are fulfilled. Mrs. Sidley's fortune is estimated at about $4,000,000.

COUNTY'S YOUNG DEMOCRATS TO CONVENE TODAY

Young Democrats of Cook county will hold their annual convention in the Hotel Sherman today. An attendance of more than one thousand is expected. Pre-convention gossip last night carried the name of Joseph Smietanka, present treasurer, as the probable choice for president.

John E. Cassidy of Peoria, candidate for lieutenant governor on Gov. Horner's ticket in 1936, will be the convention keynoter. Other speakers: Charles K. Schwartz, Horner Cook county leader, and Sam Keyes of Lincoln, state president of the Illinois Young Democratic Clubs.

Court Bans Advertising of Reducing Formula

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday issued an injunction prohibiting the advertising for sale of a weight reducing drug known as Formula 281. The injunction is directed against the Hartman Wholesale Drug company, the Isabella laboratories at 220 South State street, and Harry Gorov, operator of the laboratories. According to an affidavit filed in court, the drug causes cataracts in some cases. At a previous hearing Gorov announced he was closing his laboratories.

MALONE'S $5,000 U. S. FINE IS PAID BY HIS BROTHER

The $5,000 fine imposed on William H. Malone, former chairman of the Illinois state tax commission, for evading income tax payments, was paid yesterday. It was given to Henry Freeman, clerk of the federal court, by Malone's brother, George S. Malone, of 816 North Dearborn street. In addition to the fine, Malone was sentenced to two years in prison. He entered the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., on June 1, but later was transferred to the federal prison hospital at Springfield, Mo., because of impaired health.

ICKES ENGINEER EXAMINES LAST SUBWAY TEST PIT

Col. Henry M. Waite, chairman of the federal engineering board now studying Chicago's subway plans, last night inspected the last of three test pits which were sunk by the city to gather information on the subsoil where the proposed tunnels would be dug. The pit is at Sherman and Jackson streets.

Material drawn from the pit will be tested by Prof. Herbert Ensz of Armour Institute of Technology, for moisture content and strength. His conclusions will be presented to the engineers and included in the board's report to Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes early next week in Washington. On this report is expected to depend whether Chicago gets a PWA subway grant.

Mayor Kelly said last night he will fly to Washington if his presence is needed in seeking subway approval. He and Mrs. Kelly are leaving tonight for Los Angeles, Cal., where he will invite the American Legion to hold its 1939 convention in Chicago.

PHYSICIAN TELLS VALUE OF SCHOOL SAFETY TRAINING

The value of teaching children safety measures was stressed yesterday before the council of the International Society for Crippled Children, meeting in the Knickerbocker hotel. Dr. Edward L. Compere, newly elected president of the Illinois Society for the Crippled, was the speaker. Dr. Compere pointed out that of 1,400,000 casualties from motor accidents last year 110,000 resulted in permanent disability. He praised the safety patrol system and safety demonstrations in the schools.

SHIP'S CAPTAIN SIGHTS GIANT SERPENT IN SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 16.—Returning after a long cruise, Capt. Ernst Feldman of the Latvian steamer, Esturia, has informed the Academy of Natural Science in Riga that he saw a sea serpent a few weeks ago when en route to Spain from Texas. His ship was carrying a cargo of gasoline.

"We were 110 miles southeast of the Azores at 10 o'clock one morning," he said. "The sea was calm and visibility good. About five miles away we noticed a disturbance in the water. Through glasses appeared several large animals fighting.

"It looked as though one of them was a whale. In a few minutes they disappeared beneath the surface, but one swam on the surface toward the ship.

"It was a snakelike serpent about 120 feet long with protuberances on its back resembling fins and swam in a weaving motion like that of a snake swimming in a creek.

"We estimated its body at six feet thick. It had a long green head which every few moments spouted water like a whale. We watched it 15 minutes before it disappeared."

Capt. Feldman named the animal Atlantosaurus. The crew of the ship confirmed his story. A copy of the ship's log entry was given to the academy.

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—City Councilman Michael J. Quill, international president of the C. I. O.'s transport workers' union, was described a communist today by John J. Murphy, a witness before a subcommittee of the Dies congressional committee, which is investigating un-American activities.

Murphy, transport worker, testified that he joined the communist party in 1934 and attended unit meetings of the party with Quill, who is vice chairman of the American Labor party which backed him for his post on the council.

Murphy testified he had not been a communist party member in more than a year.

PERMIT GRANTED TO RUN 15 BUSES ON NORTH SHORE

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday granted the Willett company permission to run buses in Waukegan and North Chicago for fifteen days. Transportation in the two towns has been tied up since Aug. 16 by the North Shore electric line strike.

A. T. Willett, secretary-treasurer of the company, said fifteen buses will begin operating Sunday on routes of bus and street car lines normally run by the North Shore line. Forty men, all members of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Workers, will be put to work. The permit can be terminated on forty-eight hour notice by officials of the railroad.

Col. A. A. Sprague, receiver for the line, announced late yesterday that he will submit a written report to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson early next week outlining negotiations for settlement of the strike. His decision was reached after another fruitless conference in his office yesterday.

MAYOR TRAILING IN LOS ANGELES RECALL ELECTION

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Superior Judge Fletcher Bowron, reform business candidate, was leading Mayor Frank L. Shaw by nearly two to one in today's mayoralty recall election on the basis of returns from a fifth of the city's 2,516 precincts.

On the recall of Mayor Shaw the vote from 520 precincts was 45,622 for and 25,050 opposed.

Bowron's vote for election as mayor was 44,967 to 23,766 for Shaw. The vote for two other candidates, Albert F. Osterloh and Alonzo Jeglel Riggs, was negligible.

The move to recall Mayor Shaw grew out of the bombing of Harry Raymond, a private detective, and the subsequent conviction of the head of the police intelligence squad and one lieutenant, with the disclosure during the trial that this squad had been used to "spy" on a number of opponents of the city administration.

PAROLEE, SOUGHT FOR QUIZ, JUMPS THROUGHWINDOW

A parolee, who tried to escape arrest for questioning about his conduct since leaving prison, jumped from the third floor window of his apartment at 749 Fletcher street yesterday. He landed on the roof of a one story garage and was siezed. He was injured slightly.

The parolee is Burks Elbridge Williams, 22 years old, who was sent to Pontiac reformatory from Greenville three years ago for forgery. He was paroled to relatives at the Fletcher street address last May.

Yesterday L. Beck, a parole agent, sought to question him. When he couldn't get into the apartment he called Sergt. Frank M. Bauler of the Sheffield avenue station. When the two returned, Williams plunged through a window, taking a screen with him. He will be sent to the detective bureau showup tomorrow.

WOMAN ILL, SO JUDGE BRINGS COURT TO HOME

Judge Edward B. Casey, his bailif, and his clerk held court last night at 7135 Diversey avenue. This unusual location was to permit Mrs. Marie Swenson, bedridden for a year, to swear out a warant charging her husband, Theodore, with nonsupport. Swenson, a plumber, is now living at 3028 Kenmore avenue.

Judge Casey.

The Swensons were married in January, 1929, and separated last May 19. Since then, according to Attorney S. Edward Bloom, representing Mrs. Swenson, Swenson has sent her only occasional small sums. Mrs. Swenson says her husband makes $63 a week.

Mrs. Swenson, who is being cared for by her sister, Mrs. Harriet Wolf, filed a separate maintenance bill in Superior court in June, but has been too ill to appear. She is 37 years old; her husband is 40.

MODELS CONDUCT A HIRING FAIR AND THIRTY GET JOBS

There are all sorts of shows to which buyers go, but there was much that was new about a show last night in the La Salle hotel. It was the first of a weekly series. Models were on parade.

Fifty lovelies, of all sizes and types and colorings, were on display. Some of them wore bathing suits. Some didn't. They wore gowns or other feminine frippery. And of the fifty, thirty were promptly engaged for one stunt or another. The customers, from shops, furriers, hotels, and an air line, weren't there for fun and frolic. They scanned with critical eye and chose the curves that best fitted their particular needs. They were admitted only by invitation.

The series of events is under the sponsorship of Mannequins, Inc., a social and welfare club for girl models. Miss Jerry Wickert, a tall girl who says her hair is honey blonde, is the club president. She said blondes are becoming scarcer. They're letting their hair grow out natural, she explained.

SENDS EVANSTON BURGLAR-SWAIN TO JAIL FOR YEAR

Judge Harry H. Porter of the Evanston Municipal court yesterday sentenced Lawrence Mueller, 19 years old, 1710 Lake street, Evanston, to one year in the Bridewell for burglarizing a drug store on Sept. 7. The charge was reduced to petty larceny by agreement.

Mueller didn't seem to mind. He exchanged smiles with his sweetheart, Dorothy Harrison, 15, who accompanied him on the burglary. They planned to use the money—$42—to be married.

The girl is the granddaughter of Samuel Harrison, veteran Evanston justice of the peace. Juvenile authorities have paroled her to her mother. She will start her third year at the Evanston Township High school next week.

ARMOUR UNION RULED OUT BY LABOR BOARD

Opens Way for C.I.O. Employe Control.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—The National Labor Relations board again supported the C. I. O. today by issuing an order against Armour & Co. of Chicago.

Robert H. Cabell denies labor board charges.

The board ordered the meat packing company to dissolve its Employés' Mutual association as representative of the 7,000 employés at the Chicago plant. It opened the door for a C. I. O. union to enter the company by ordering an election within thirty days.

The board said the company "must cease its efforts to discourage membership in United Packing House Workers local union No. 347 [C. I. O. affiliate] and must post notices for 30 days in conspicuous places throughout the Chicago plant stating that the company will cease this and other unfair labor practices, and that the association is disestablished."

Eases Way for C. I. O.

By ordering the company representation union dissolved, the C. I. O. would meet less competition in establishing its own bargaining organization. Frequently in the past the board has been charged with favoring the C. I. O. The American Federation of Labor particularly has criticized it for alleged partiality.

At the same time the board ordered Armour to reinstate two discharged employés to their former positions. The men, Peter Davis and Jacob Brya, were C. I. O. organizers in the plant, it was said.

The board declared that the union activities of the men were the cause of their discharge and that defenses of inefficiency and rules violations interposed by the company "would not bear scrutiny." Davis' discharge resulted from refusal to obey an order by his superior to remove his C. I. O. steward's button, the board said.

One break was given the company when the board dismissed discrimination charges involving the layoffs of four employés in the company's beef cutting department. The board said substantial evidence was lacking.

The board said that from 1921 to April, 1937, there was an employé representation plan at the plant under which the employés annually elected bargaining representatives and the company appointed an equal number of management representatives to the conference board.

Following validation of the national labor relations act—commonly called the Wagner act—by the Supreme court on April 12, 1937, the plan was discontinued. Subsequently, the association was formed. Approximately 85 per cent of the employés signed cards authorizing the association to represent them until an election could be held.

An election was held on June 2, 1937, in which the employés voted to have the association as an unaffiliated union represent them. Ten days later a second election selected divisional and precinct representatives.

Charge Unlawful Support.

"The board found the manner in which the two elections were conducted constituted unlawful support to the association on the part of the company," the NLRB announcement said. It protested that the tellers were paid by the company and that the election was held on the plant premises during working hours. It protested that the C. I. O. union did not have this chance.

"The board found that the company has dominated, interfered with, and supported the association," the announcement said, "and that disestablishment of the association was necessary to protect the rights of the employés to join labor organizations of their own choosing."

American Federation of Labor headquarters here said that no decision had been made on whether it would participate in the Armour election.

DENIED BY CABELL.

Robert H. Cabell, president of Armour & Co., said yesterday in reference to the labor board's order:

"The labor board's decision as reported by the press does not appear to be in accord with facts presented at the hearing in Chicago. We did not organize the Employés Mutual association, nor have we opposed organization of the C. I. O. or any other union. We are ready to deal with our employés through representatives of their own choosing."

He said he was unable to say what course would be taken on reinstatement of employés. He said one had been discharged as incompetent and the other for breaking company rules and troublemaking.

Van A. Bittner, regional organizer of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee and chairman of the Packing House Workers Organizing Committee, made public a letter to P. W. O. C. officers and members calling them into a conference Sept. 26. Peaceful negotiation with representatives of Armour plants in Chicago and elsewhere for a wage agreement is the objective, Bittner said.

The C. I. O.'s announcement of a drive to force Armour into a labor contract was made shortly before word of the labor board's action reached Chicago. Bittner denied having advance notice on the order.

Public Service May Refund 80 Million Bonds

The Public Service company of Northern Illinois yesterday called a special meeting of stockholders for Sept. 28 to approve plans for refunding $80,000,000 of outstanding bonds.

Stockholders will be asked to authorize the execution of a new first mortgage covering the bonds. The proceeds will be used to retire a corresponding amount of securities now outstanding. The company plans to offer the new bonds in October if market conditions are favorable. The operation would be one of the largest pieces of utility financing in recent years.

Part of Edison Refinancing.

The refunding plan is another step in the comprehensive recapitalization and refunding program for the Commonwealth Edison group of companies being carried out under the direction of Chairman James Simpson.

The Edison company this year has sold more than 100 million dollars of refunding securities. It is now taking subscriptions from stockholders on an issue of $39,000,000 issue of convertible debentures. The proceeds of the latest financing were used in part to retire bonds of the Public Service company, its subsidiary.

The redemption left Public Service with $80,000,000 of bonded debt, all of which will be refunded at lower rates under the plans announced yesterday.

Underwriting Is Expected.

Halsey, Stuart & Co. is expected to underwrite the new bonds. Stockholders of record Sept. 17 will be eligible to vote at the meeting.

The Superior Steel company yesterday called a meeting for Oct. 10 to authorize an issue of $2,000,000 of bonds. Proceeds of the issue will be used to retire $1,463,000 of indebtedness and to increase working capital.

Connecticut plans to enter the market soon with a new issue of $12,500,000 of refunding bonds, maturing serially in one to twenty years. North Carolina will consider tenders on Sept. 27 for a new issue of $4,620,000 of permanent improvement bonds.

SEC CUTS FEES OF CHICAGOAN IN UTILITY CASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—The Securities and Exchange commission today approved fees of $18,750 for Attorney Millard B. Kennedy of Chicago as counsel for the trustees of Midland United and Midland Utilities companies of Chicago. Kennedy had requested $27,000.

The fees cover the period from Sept. 1, 1937, to May 31, 1938. They were subject to SEC approval under the public utility holding company act of 1935. They are still subject to approval of the federal court at Wilmington, Del., as the companies are undergoing reorganization under section 77b of the bankruptcy act.

The SEC also allowed Kennedy expense of $809 for March, April, and May of this year. He had requested $1,335.

The SEC also reported that Hugh M. Morris, surviving trustee, and Kennedy have announced their intentions of resigning and that no payments shall be made after the effective date of their resignations. Hearings are now pending before the SEC on reorganization plans for the two utility holding companies.

FREIGHT TRAFIC SLUMPS DURING LABOR DAY WEEK

The Labor day holiday caused a slump in railroad freight trafic in the week ended Sept. 10, the Association of American Railroads said yesterday. Shutdowns in all types of industry resulted in sharply lower shipments of miscellaneous freight, less than car load lot merchandise, coal, and forest products.

During the week railroads handled 568,887 cars of revenue freight. This was a decrease of 79,152 cars, or 12.2 per cent, from the preceding week, when 648,039 cars were loaded, a new 1938 high. Trafic showed a decline of 139,315 cars, or 19.7 per cent, from that of the corresponding week last year. In the week ended Sept. 3 freight loadings were off 153,500 cars, or 19.1 per cent, from those of the similar period last year.

Car loadings of the various commodities follow:

U. S. COLLECTS BILLION IN 2½ MONTHS, BUT SPENDS MUCH MORE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—(AP)—The treasury disclosed today that its income for the fiscal year, which began July 1, has passed $1,000,000,000, but was $750,381,553 short of expenditures in the same period.

Due to the business recession and the administration's spending program, revenue is lagging and expenditures are ahead of last year. On Septfl 14 treasury receipts amounted to $1,008,549,838, compared with $1,110,337,833 in the comparable period of last year. Meanwhile expenditures for the 2½ months reached a total of $1,758,931,391, or about $225,000,000 more than in the corresponding weeks of last year.

The deficit will decline temporarily in the next few days due to collection of Sept. 15 income tax payments. More than half of the deficit so far this year was caused by WPA expenditures totaling $452,187,215. WPA, which now is supporting a record pay roll of more than 3,000,000 persons, spent only $278,581,342 in the similar period last year.

Sloan Turns Optimistic on U. S. Outlook

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pontiac, Mich., Sept. 16.—Recent evidences of changes in America's thinking have converted Alfred P. Sloan Jr. from pessimism to optimism. The chairman of the board of General Motors corporation admitted this today when he spoke at a meeting to observe the introduction of the 1939 line of Pontiac automobiles at the Bloomfield Hills Country club.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr.

"I feel better about America's picture than I have for many years," Sloan declared. "And I say that honestly.

"I am an optimist naturally, but I must be optimistic in a fundamental way. I am not optimistic when our nation is laboring under the delusion that we can get something for nothing, that we can get riches out of the air.

Encouraged "Fundamentally."

"I am now being encouraged and in a more fundamental way. It is apparent that the people are recognizing the fact that we cannot go on the way we have been doing. I say this because of the many evidences of a change that have come to me. And these evidences have even come to me from persons close to the government."

Although Sloan made no direct reference to the recent defeats given the Democratic federal administration in state elections, it was apparent that he had this situation strongly in mind. Because of his position as one of the top flight leaders of American industry, his comments created something of a sensation among the 300 persons attending the Pontiac meeting.

Greater Production Needed.

"We can't get rich without working," Sloan continued. "We can't get something for nothing. The way to the payment of higher and more wages is through increased productivity."

Sloan said that in his opinion one thing upon which an increase in business rests is the extent to which activity in the capital goods industries can be stimulated. He estimated that about half the nation's workers normally are engaged in capital goods industries.

Discussing chances for the 1939 automobile business, Sloan declared that the outlook is much improved. Recently consumption has exceeded production, he said, and this gives us the hope of a reasonable improvement in the sale of cars next year.

Public to See Cars Oct. 14.

H. J. Klinger, general manager of the Pontiac division of the General Motors corporation, announced that with 1,200 new 1939 model cars already built, Pontiac has set Oct. 14 as the date for the showing of the new cars to the public.

Klinger disclosed that Pontiac is adding to its 1939 line a new 6 cylinder car which dips deeper into the competitive low priced car field. He said that all Pontiac cars may be priced somewhat under the 1938 line despite improvements that have been made.

"Banks Under Roosevelt," by J. F. T. O'Connor. Callaghan & Co., Chicago. Price, $2.50.

This is a nontechnical history of the banking crisis of 1933 and subsequent actions of the Roosevelt administration in dealing with the crisis and banking in general. It is written by a man who should know the complete story, the controler of the currency during the five year period from 1933 to 1938. O'Connor resigned the office effective last April 1.

A brief summary of events and conditions leading up to the crisis comprises the first two chapters. A chronological record of proclamations, acts of congress, etc., relating to banking during the period is included in the appendix. The appendix forms almost half the 167 page volume.

WHEAT RALLIES AS PEACE HOPES FADE IN EUROPE

Exports of American Grain Increase.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$ .65⅝	$ .64⅜	$1.04½
Corn	.51¼	.50⅜	.63
Oats	.25¾	.25½	.30⅝
Rye	.43⅝	.43⅛	.79¼
Soy beans	.79½	.79¼	.95⅝

Less favorable political news from abroad resulted in higher wheat prices yesterday. Trading, however, was relatively light except for a brief period early in the day. Speculators generally were inclined to operate with much caution.

Closing trades on wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were at net gains of ⅝ to 1 cent. Winnipeg prices advanced ⅝ to 1¼ cents. The Liverpool market closed 1⅝ cents a bushel higher.

Europe Fears for Supplies.

Importing countries in Europe showed considerable anxiety regarding future supplies of cash wheat. Sales of American grain were rumored to have been between 500,000 and 1,000,000 bushels. This was the first foreign business of consequence in several weeks.

About 1,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and flour was reported to have been sold abroad. The United Kingdom, Antwerp, and Rotterdam were said to have been the buyers.

Trade reports yesterday indicated that 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 bushels of North American cash wheat and flour had been sold in the last two days for shipment to Europe.

Strength in the Liverpool market was attributed to reports that Russia will make no further offers of wheat export.

Corn Futures Advance.

Corn futures closed ⅝ to ⅞ cent a bushel higher. The strength was said to have been a reflection of the action of wheat. There was some buying of futures believed to have been in connection with export business. No sales could be confirmed. Chicago cash grain handlers said Argentine corn was being offered to Europe at a large discount under American grain.

The war scare in Europe has reacted to the benefit of American farmers. In the last three days it is estimated more than 600,000 bushels of corn has been sold for deferred shipment from the country to Chicago.

WORK ON $850,000 FLATS TO START NEXT WEDNESDAY

Ground will be broken next Wednesday for the $850,000 apartment building on the east side of Wolcott street, between Ainslie and Argyle, first announced last June. Christian S. Michaelsen, architect, said yesterday the 147 suites of three to five rooms will be ready for occupancy by Feb. 1, 1939. No rental agent has been named.

M. J. Boyle & Co. has the general contract. The masonry contract is the only subcontract that so far has been awarded. Bids on other contracts are under consideration. The project is owned by the Wolcott Apartment Building trust.

It was financed with a $600,000 mortgage negotiated by the Madison-Crawford National bank of Chicago and purchased by the Prudential Life Insurance Company of America through its Chicago branch. The loan, insured by the Federal Housing administration, is at 4½ per cent interest and will be paid off in twenty-six years. The McCarthy Company, Inc., was broker. N. Ronneberg, Inc., is engineer.

HOPES FOR RAIL PAY SETTLEMENT WITHOUT STRIKE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—[Special.]—Hopes that the wage controversy in the railroad industry could be settled without a strike were expressed today by William M. Leiserson after a conference with President Roosevelt.

Leiserson is a member of the national railway mediation board. He said the board had reported the status of the negotiations between the railroads and the employé spokesmen. He did not indicate the President's reaction.

Pound, Franc Sink Further; Gold Climbs

Failure of the Chamberlain-Hitler meeting to yield a definite promise that war will be averted laid the basis for the renewed weakness in the money markets.

British and French currencies were conspicuously weak at New York. The pound fell ⅞ cent to $4.80. The franc dropped 0.00625 cent to 2.69125 cents. Swiss and Netherlands currencies were lower.

Gold Rises 11 Cents an Ounce.

London brokers raised the price of gold to 144 shillings 8½ pence an ounce, an increase of 5½ pence [about 11 cents] over the preceding day. Because the pound cheapened in relation to the dollar the London price for gold in terms of American currency was lower than on Thursday.

Converted at yesterday's pound sterling rate the London gold price was $34.75, compared with $34.78 on the preceding day.

Gold totaling $5,425,000 was engaged in London for shipment to the United States. Exchange experts said that larger transactions were blocked by the action of British and American underwriters in canceling war risk insurance now in effect. Insurance on shipments of gold must be arranged for each individual consignment.

Gold Buying Held Up.

New York banks are said to have decided to purchase no more gold in London for shipment to America until war risk insurance is again placed on a more stable basis.

Widely varying quotations on war risk insurance were reported to have been submitted to banks seeking to arrange gold shipments. It was understood that a rate of 12½ cents to the $100 insured had been obtained yesterday, as was the case on Thursday, but other quotations of 25 to 50 cents to the $100 were said to have been offered.

CHICAGO STORE SALES 11.6 PCT. BELOW YEAR AGO

Chicago department store sales in the week ended Sept. 10 were 11.6 per cent less than in the corresponding week of 1937, the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago said yesterday. In the preceding week sales had risen 6.5 per cent above those of the similar week last year, the first time in months that they had run above the 1937 level.

Department stores in the seventh [Chicago] federal reserve district reported sales were 9.6 per cent below those of a year ago. The only city in the district to show a gain was Milwaukee, where sales were 4.4 per cent higher.

National sales were 7 per cent under those of last year. Stores of the eighth [St. Louis] federal reserve district, with sales 19 per cent under those of the like 1937 week, showed the largest decline. Stores of two districts—the first [Boston] and the fifth [Richmond]—had larger sales than in the same week last year. The former district's sales were 5 per cent above 1937, and the fifth district's sales were 1 per cent higher.

NEW BUILDING IS HEAVIEST FOR AUGUST SINCE '30

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Building construction last month was the heaviest for any August since 1930, the F. W. Dodge corporation reported today. It topped July by one-third and the same month last year by 12 per cent. Contracts awarded in 37 states east of the Rockies totaled $313,141,000, compared with $239,799,000 in July and $281,217,000 a year ago.

Residential building has set the pace in the swift advance of this important branch of the national economy, and is looked to by many economists to lead the country from the current recession. Home construction contracts for the month approximated the best August since 1929, more than one-third higher than the like period last year. The total was $99,732,000.

After allowance for seasonal factors and changes in construction costs, residential building in the final week of August shot up to the highest level for any month since May, 1931.

STOCKS WEAKEN ON NEW TURN OF EVENTS ABROAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 16.—New weakness in the final hour of trading unsettled the stock market for the second time today and forced leaders fractions to about 2 points lower. The outbreak of selling followed a determined effort by traders to nullify early slumps of fractions to 3 points.

Except for the first and last hour splurges, trading was light. Volume was 671,680 shares, compared with 1,142,300 yesterday. Industrial issues lost 1.37 on the average, the rail group sagged 0.52 and the utility division eased 0.29.

A total of 704 issues was traded, with 448 closing lower, 130 higher, and 126 unchanged.

Anxious over Situation Abroad.

Renewed anxiety over the European situation again influenced traders. Foreign markets gave the cue, with American shares on the London and Amsterdam exchanges incurring sharp reverses. Wall street, it was pointed out, saw in the weakness of European markets less optimism on the continent and elsewhere that the Czech-German situation will be settled peaceably and soon.

The desire of many to lighten holdings over the week-end in view of unsettled conditions abroad also accounted for some of the selling, brokers reported. Many traders declined to make commitments for the same reason, it was said. This made for thin situations in several spots.

Motors Active and Lower.

Motors were among the most active stocks. General Motors continued as the volume leader. It lost 1¾ points. Chrysler started 1⅜ points lower after a delayed opening, extended that loss to 3 points, then steadied to close 2⅞ points lower.

In the steels United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Republic, and Crucible each lost more than 1 point. Most coppers kept their losses to fractions, although Anaconda and Kennecott both lost 1 point.

United States Rubber, Goodyear, and Goodrich closed 1 point or more lower. Oils ruled fractionally lower.

Rail issues were sluggish throughout the session. The decline in freight loadings and pessimism over the wage negotiations were said to weigh on the group. Conspicuous was Union Pacific, which slumped 3¼ points on some 800 shares.

Foreign Markets Lower.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Stock exchange traders awaited today more definite news regarding Prime Minister Chamberlain's visit to Germany before making new commitments. Price movements were irregular. British government bonds closed about ½ point lower and Trans-Atlantic shares were down 1 to 3 points. Considerable business was done in tobacco issues at lower prices and the industrial group was heavy. European bonds finished slightly lower.

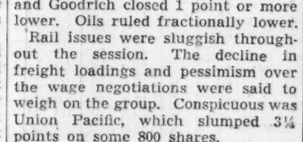
Prices on the Paris bourse closed weak today with all sections of the list under selling pressure.

CEA WILL PRESS CHARGES AGAINST COMMODITY FIRM

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, head of the Commodity Exchange administration, said today that charges against S. W. Gongoll & Co. of Minneapolis and eight affiliated organizations would be pressed even though they now are in voluntary receivership. Duvel said he would seek to bar those involved from trading privileges on all commodity exchanges in this country.

Charges against the Gongoll organizations alleged violation of the commodity exchange act by "failing to report and falsely reporting transactions and open positions in commodities, as well as by operating as a futures commission merchant without being registered by the Commodity Exchange administration."

A hearing is scheduled in Minneapolis Oct. 12.



The Underwriter's Risk.

The investment house that contracts to distribute an issue of securities for a corporation assumes a risk that the corporation is usually unwilling to carry itself.

When XYZ company decides to float a million dollars of securities to refund outstanding debt or raise new money for expansion it is essential to the management to know in advance that the operation can be carried out successfully. It contracts with investment bankers to underwrite the flotation. The terms which the corporation gets depends on its credit standing, the condition of the securities market and other factors.

If securities of the XYZ company are readily marketable the risk to the underwriter is not great. The chances are the issue can be turned over rapidly. Consequently the underwriters will ask a smaller profit margin than they would require on a less marketable issue.

The element of risk is always present, however. The underwriter gambles that he can resell the securities at a higher price than he paid the issuing company. Developments may intervene that so alter market conditions as to result in a loss instead of a profit to the underwriter.

Small Business Men Tell Ways to Aid Revival

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 16.—A six point program of immediate action to help business was adopted today by delegates of the National Small Business Men's association. The proposals, approved at the final session of the association's first annual convention, asked for changes in governmental policy and legislation. Today's meeting was held in the William Penn hotel.

Beside the immediate program, delegates approved a declaration of long range principles dealing with the government's relation to business, and with taxation, labor, and government organization. Both platforms were the outgrowth of resolutions submitted during the four day convention. All resolutions were discussed in open session this morning by the 100 members present.

Six Immediate Objectives.

The six short run objectives are:

1. That the government retire from business competition with citizens; that it coöperate, not compete, with business.

2. Amendment of the Wagner Labor Relations act to give employers and employés equal rights and responsibilities.

3. Placing social security on a pay as you go basis, and using social security taxes solely for the benefit payments to workers.

4. Applying good business practice to government operation; by immediate economies; by immediate steps to bring a truly balanced budget; by a surrender of the President's "blank check" powers over spending and his control over purchasing power of the dollar; by return of relief administration to states, and by using taxation for revenue only.

5. Repeal by congress of all laws under which it has delegated its legislative powers, to bring back truly representative government.

6. Assurance of the constitutional guarantee of free speech, with specific reference to the press and radio.

Will Quiz Political Candidates.

Dewitt M. Emery, founder and president of the association, said the organization will undertake to find out how political candidates stand on these issues. It will then inform its members and the public of the candidates' position in order to guide voters in the November elections, he added.

This plan will also be followed with the long range program, Emery said. It proposes broadening of the income tax base, extension of civil service, and active coöperation of business, labor, agriculture, and government, with the government "acting solely as impartial moderator."

The program also opposes the O'Mahoney bill, calling for federal licensing of corporations, and urges enforcement of anti-trust laws. It affirms free enterprise as the way to recovery.

Urges Private Employment.

In a preamble to the adopted resolutions, the delegates declared:

"Recovery and prosperity can take place only with the restoration of millions of workers to self-sustaining employment. In order to induce the investment of private capital and expansion of industrial recovery, and to provide the greater number and better jobs, we recommend that government definitly encourage business by removing business expansion penalties from the tax structure, providing a sound fiscal basis for government credit and ceasing its futile efforts toward reform at the expense of recovery."

Admittedly seeking some issue on which they could give the administration a "pat on the back" to prove they were not an anti-New Deal organization, the delegates finally decided to praise Secretary of State Cordell Hull. They commended his "sound position and action" in opposition to confiscation of private property by the Mexican government.

Emery, who founded the organization ten months ago, was reelected president for one year by the board of trustees, which was chosen by the delegates.

BUTTER CLIMBS TO ANOTHER NEW PEAK FOR MONTH

Butter advanced ¼ cent a pound yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Butter for delivery next November closed at 24⅞ cents a pound, the highest price in more than a month.

Buying demand for butter futures picked up after a strengthening of prices in the cash market. The cash quotation on 89 score butter was raised ¼ cent a pound.

The Dairy Products Marketing association, government subsidized stabilization unit, bought about 600,000 pounds during the day in Chicago and other markets, including 146,000 pounds of undergrade butter.

MEXICO DRIVES TO SOCIALIZE MINE INDUSTRY

Follows Plan Used in Oil Seizures.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 16.—The Mexican government, taking advantage of the concentration of attention on the European crisis, has started a drive to socialize the $400,000,000 foreign mining industry. It is largely United States controled.

About 4,500 men are on their eighteenth day of strike at the Rosita coal mine in the state of Coahuila, property of the American Smelting and Refining company, and 4,000 are on their third day of strike at the Cananea copper mine in the state of Sonora, belonging to the Anaconda Copper company. The federal labor board is bringing pressure to force "economic arbitration" of the conflicts under the new Mexican system, by which foreign companies will be forced to pay all except a small margin of their profits to the workers. The federal labor board will decide what the companies' earnings are. A large measure of administrative control also will be given to the unions through control of so-called "confidential employés."

Follows Procedure in Oil.

This procedure is the same as that leading to the oil companies' expropriation. High officials of the labor board have frankly told the company representatives that socialization of the mining industry is their aim.

With the example of the oil companies before them, heads of the major United States mining companies here, while continuing the labor board conversations, have made it clear they are willing to discuss wage increases, but not the administrative clauses proposed in the collective contracts. These give the workers a strong hand in the management of the companies.

In the case of the oil companies the government tested Washington reaction by nationalizing 350,000 acres of Standard Oil of California company concessions several months before the major expropriations. The same testing process has been followed thus far with regard to the mining industry. Laborers have taken over the operation of smaller mines after sabotage made operations impossible.

Will Attack by Units.

Indications thus far are that instead of attacking the mining industry as a whole, the government in the drive against the major companies intends to act by units. The process is easier in the mining than in the petroleum field. It may be the government will halt the new drive if pressure is exerted, but this is by no means certain.

As the Mexican public views it, the petroleum expropriation has been successfully accomplished, although whether that will be a boon to Mexico is another question. The United States notes on the land expropriations have been widely regarded here as purely government reaction. That is why there has been do diminution in President Cardenas' popular support thus far.

Gold, silver, copper, and zinc are easier to market than oil, largely controled by a world cartel.

AAA WILL OPEN CHICAGO FLOUR SUBSIDY OFFICE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—(AP)—The Agricultural Adjustment administration announced today branch offices for administration of the flour export subsidy program would be opened at Chicago and Kansas City on Monday.

Each office will issue daily announcements of the rate of subsidy payments to be made in connection with sales of flour for export, will receive notices of sales, and carry out the necessary work incident to reimbursing exporters for flour exported under the program.

The Chicago office will be in the charge of G. C. Martin, Ottawa, Ill., assisted by G. P. Lachar of the Washington office of the AAA marketing division.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The bond market declined only slightly today. It was an orderly, quiet easing of prices, with losses in the bulk of corporate issues no larger than fractions.

Up sharply in the rail section were Nickel Plate 6s of '38, which jumped 9⅜ to 55 on turnover of $192,000, face value. These are the bonds the road has asked holders to deposit under a plan for extension of their maturity for three years. They mature Oct. 1. Around 85 per cent of the bonds have already been deposited, the company reports.

Other Nickel Plate bonds also were strong. The 5½s of '74 A rose 3¾ to 38¾ on dealings in $80,000, and the 4½s of '78 gained 2¼ at 36¼ on turnover of $105,000.

United States government loans showed losses ranging up to 22-32nds point, although one treasury issue, the 3s of '49-'44, recorded a gain of 4-32.

In the foreign section Czech 8s of '52 dropped 9 on the sale of a single bond at 78. Japanese 6½s rose 1⅞ at 71⅛, and the 5½s gained 1⅜ at 51⅞.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks declined fractions to a little more than a point yesterday. Trading, aside from Commonwealth Edison rights, was reduced. Turnover was 20,500 shares and 34,500 rights, compared with 26,500 shares and 19,500 rights Thursday.

Of 91 issues traded, 19 advanced, 51 finished lower, and 21 were unchanged. The Tribune average of 20 representative issues closed at 10.09, compared with 10.34 the day before and 9.91 on Wednesday.

Edison rights ranged between 10 and 13 cents, closing 4 cents net lower at 11 cents. Commonwealth Edison capital stock was the volume leader, finishing ⅝ lower at 24⅜ on sales of 1,700 shares.

Bank Stocks.

Three leading Chicago bank stocks declined in quiet trading yesterday. Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust shares were off $2.50, at $61.50 bid, $63.50 asked. First National shares closed $3 lower, at $209 bid, $213 asked. Harris Trust and Savings stock declined $5 to close at $280 bid, $290 asked.

Illinois Central to Pay for Cars on Rental Basis

The Illinois Central system has completed arrangements for the rental purchase of 1,000 steel sheath and wood lined box cars from the American Car and Foundry company, it was announced yesterday. The cars, worth $2,700,000, will be paid for over a fifteen year period on a rental basis. Title to them will be transferred to the railroad at the end of that time.

PORK AND HOGS LOWER DESPITE COOL WEATHER

Despite cooler weather markets for fresh pork and hogs weakened at the Chicago stockyards yesterday. Losses of 50 cents were general in fresh pork, with the clearance incomplete. According to packers this was the result of consumer resistance to retail prices in the last few days.

A "Friday market" existed for hogs. Prices ruled weak to mostly 10 cents lower. Some kinds closed 15 cents lower, particularly young new crop stock weighing downwards from 200 pounds.
